100 Million In Subsidies To Curb Bread Prices

Program Awaits Vinson Signature; Battle on CCC Bill Will Open Today

By Christine Sadler

In a last-ditch fight for subsidies to hold down the cost of living, the Administration is ready to announce this week a 100-million-dollar flour payment program to keep bread prices stable.

This largest food subsidy of all will be financed with funds from the Reconstruction Finance Corp., according to plans awaiting the signature of Economic Stabilization Director Vinson, and will be paid to millers. It will run the Nation's cost of price control over farm products close to a billion dollars annually.

The announcement is expected to come while the House is marshaling votes on the move to ban subsidy payments after December 31, by the Commodity Credit Corp., which has paid most of the bill to date, with RFC financing only the celebrated "rollbacks" for meat and butter.

Argument on the CCC measure will open on the floor this afternoon and be limited to two days. Although congressional friends of the subsidy idea expect to put up a strong fight, they also expect to lose—and they privately concede there is enough antisubsidy sentiment in the House to pass the ban over a presidential veto.

Coupled With Price Ceiling

The flour subsidy is needed, the Administration asserts, to keep the cost of bread from going up 1 to 2 cents a loaf. Coupled with it will be a price ceiling at parity on hard winter wheat. Such a ceiling already has been placed on soft wheat and has put millers and bakers in a price "squeeze" position. Under the Price Conltrol Act, OPA cannot set a ceiling on farm products at less than parity. Wheat prices have advanced steadily since war began and hard wheat has been selling at near parity for several weeks.

Senator Reed (Republican), of Kansas said last night he understood the flour subsidy would amount to 14 cents on each bushel of wheat processed, this sum being the difference between the parity price of wheat and the OPA flour ceiling.

"This is just what I've been expecting all along," he declared, "and I'm still opposed to it. It's just part of the subsidy program to which Congress is overwhelmingly opposed. But that doesn't seem to make any difference to those birds putting it into effect."

Farmers' Opposition Asserted

Representatives of two farm organizations told the Senate Agriculture Committee yesterday "the rank and file" of American farmers are almost unanimously opposed to continuation of subsidies. The witnesses were W. R. Ogg, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and Fred Melius of Omaha, president of the Nebraska Farmers' Union.

Hull to Address Congress Today

Secretary of State Hull will cut a new pattern of relations between the executive and legislative branches of the American Government today in a report on the Moscow conference at an informal joint session of the two houses of Congress.

Whatever may come of the breaking of precedent, the 25-minute speech at 12:30 p. m. (Eastern War Time), is expected to provide the Secretary with opportunity to recommend a nonpartisan foreign policy dedicated to the program of international collaboration pledged at Moscow. The speech will be broadcast over all networks.

Price Crack-up Threatened

Rail Pay Boost Nears Vote As Stabilization Battle Opens

(Ford workers ask new wage rates "without regard to Little Steel Formula." Page 17.)

By Robert C. Albright

The Administration's wavering stabilization line last night was under fire in both Houses of Congress as a Senate Interstate Commerce Subcommittee neared approval of a flat 8-cent-an-hour wage increase for 1,097,000 nonoperating rail employes.

The Truman resolution, validating the across-the-board rail increase in the face of Administration warnings that it will crack the Little Steel formula, was considered by the Senate subcommittee in executive session and probably will be reported today.

The test rail wage increase moved toward a show-down in the Senate even as a swelling House subsidy rebellion threatened to crash through controls on consumer prices. The CCC extension bill, banning consumer subsidies, was due up in the House today.

Behind each move was a potent pressure group. While the farm organizations hammered at the price line, railway labor claimed the votes in the Senate to approve the 8-cent wage increase.

The Senate subcommittee considering the Truman resolution held an afternoon-long session in the office of Chairman Edwin C. Johnson (Democrat) of Colorado.

Pending an expected decision, the subcommittee tentatively substituted language from the House Crosser resolution. One subcommitteeman termed it "more comprehensive."

As thus revised, the Truman measure declares the August 7, 1943 agreement between rail management and the nonoperating employes on the flat wage increase retroactive to February 1 "in accord with the requirements of the Railway Labor Act and all other requirements of law, and shall be held so to be, anything in the laws of the United States to the contrary notwithstanding."

The August 7 wage agreement, in line with the May 24 emergency board decision on the rail wage dispute, had been set aside by War Stabilizer Fred M. Vinson. Later Vinson approved a second emergency board recommendation. This called for sliding scale wage increases ranging from 10 cents an hour for workers receiving the minimum 46-cents-an-hour pay, to a 4-cent increase for workers paid 97 cents an hour or over.

On Tuesday, Vinson sent the subcommittee an urgent warning that if Congress exempts rail labor from the Little Steel formula "then the executive department, would in all fairness, be compelled to abandon it for other groups."

Chairman Johnson declined to predict what the Senate would do,

Hurdles Ahead

By Ben W. Gilbert

Representatives of about 50 per cent of the soft coal industry yesterday accepted Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes' invitation to resume negotiations with the United Mine Workers to work out a wage contract amid indications that many obstacles remain in the way of coal peace.

President John L. Lewis and other UMW officials met with operators' representatives in a conference room in the South Interior Building to lay the groundwork for formal wage negotiations. Conferences are expected to continue today.

A major hurdle is to get an agreement acceptable to the whole industry. Representatives of the "captive" mines and the Southern Appalachian wage conference shunned the meeting, and doubts were expressed that they would participate in any negotiations.

Ask New Conference

UMW officials agreed to discuss a contract, but suggested that the operators formally reconstitute a wage conference so that they could know whom they were talking to. It appeared that the old joint Appalachian conference had fallen apart, but it was expected that a new one including such outlying regions as Illinois and Indiana could be constituted.

Developments raised the possibility that the War Labor Board would reject a union-management contract patterned after the Government-union contract which Ickes signed for the duration of Government operation of the mines.

The $1.50 a day wage increase provided by the Ickes-Lewis agreement was based on the assumption that underground travel time averages 45 minutes a day, thus increasing work time a full hour.

OPA Reduces Points on Pork To Ease Glut

Slash Effective Tonight at Midnight, Bowles Announces

A reduction of 2 points per pound in the ration cost of all pork cuts, effective at midnight tonight, was announced by the Office of Price Administration last night.

The action was taken as one means of meeting the problem caused by "markets flooded with pigs" and a shortage of storage space.

The reduction will be in effect for "a limited period" and will mean that some of the lower-point pork products now will be ration free.

Chester Bowles, the price administrator, pointed out that the higher-valued cuts will be reduced at least 20 per cent, or from 10 points to 8 points per pound. Over the list as a whole the average point reduction will be one-third.

OPA emphasized that the reduction will be for a limited period only, and applies only to pork, and 100 per cent pork sausage. It does not change the present point value of lard, those sausages not made exclusively from pork or any other products rationed under the meat-fats order.

Canned meats, even though they are made from pork, remain unchanged.

The point reductions came shortly after Marvin Jones, head of the War Foods Administration, had de-

All Lend-Lease Butter Went to Russia

All butter shipped abroad under lend-lease agreement during the first nine months of this year—42.2 million pounds—went to Russia and was used principally as a protective food for convalescent soldiers of the Red army, the Foreign Economic Administration revealed yesterday.

The shipments totalled 2.5 per cent of this country's total supply, FEA said, in a report that also showed beef and veal received from Australia and New Zealand under lend-lease for the period just about equaled the 1,718,200,000 pounds shipped abroad for use by United States Allies.

Rabies Epidemic Still Rages; D. C. Dog Law Violator Fined

The first court case under the District's emergency dog muzzling regulation resulted in a $5 fine for a dog owner yesterday as a Health Department doctor reported "rabies in animals still remains at epidemic proportions."

Dr. James G. Cumming, head of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases, reported that 115 persons have been bitten here since October 24, when the muzzling regulation was put into effect. This represented a drop of 30 per cent in the past month.

The dog owner fined was Waldo Spelta of 3605 Albemarle st. nw. He was penalized $5 by Judge Thomas D. Quinn for allowing his dog to run unmuzzled on a lot adjoining the Spelta home.

The defendant pleaded not guilty and said the dog never left the vicinity of the house and could not be considered as running at large.

Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech, however, in an interpretation of the October 24 statute, explained that any person who allows a dog to go unmuzzled when the animal isn't in the control of its owner may be fined $5 to $25. Keech said dogs unmuzzled on a leash or secured within a fenced yard are within the law.

In the meantime, two persons were reported bitten by dogs yesterday. They are Anpon Reichert, 68, of 403 2d st. se., and Richard Alexander, 9, of 6519 1st st. nw.

Reichert was attacked in the 700 block of Pennsylvania ave. se. and received first aid at Providence Hospital. The Alexander boy was bitten on the right thigh in the 100 block, Whittier st. nw., and received first aid from a neighborhood physician.

Cumming said seven to ten persons are now undergoing rabies prevention treatment. Since the

150,000 Nazis Hurl Back Reds In Big Attack Near Zhitomir; Loss of Leros Stirs London

Allies Blast 2 Airdromes At Marseille

Big Bombers Used To Harass Ships In Mediterranean Are Left Aflame

Algiers, Nov. 17 (AP).—Attacking on a front of 1000 miles, Allied bombers struck their heaviest blow of recent weeks at the Nazi air force yesterday when they smashed enemy airdromes near Marseille in southern France and in the Athens area in Greece.

Onslaughts by Flying Fortresses and Marauders against fields at Istres le Tube and Salon near Marseilles were aimed primarily at destruction of fleets of German long-range bombers that have been harassing Allied shipping in the Mediterranean. Many grounded bombers were left flaming, and a tremendous explosion indicated an American bomb found an ammunition dump.

Another force of Mitchell medium bombers whipped eastward from their Italian bases to blast the Elevsis airfield near Athens for the second straight day in futile support of Allied ground troops defending Leros Island in the Aegean Sea. Ten fires were started at Elevsis in hopes of reducing the Nazis' striking force in the Aegean, but the fight for Leros already was in its last hours and its loss was announced at Cairo today.

Weather Slows Troops

While the Allies' Mediterranean air activity fanned out on an ever broadening front, ground operations in Italy were cursed by dismal weather, with high winds, rain and snow hampering the movements of men and supplies. For a week Allied gains had been measured by yards, and resumption of major fighting did not appear imminent.

Several brisk patrol actions were reported from the various sectors. The most important resulted in Americans of the Fifth Army regaining some high ground on Monte Santa Croce north of Venafro which had been lost the preceding day in two strong German counterattacks.

Near the Tyrrhenian Coast, British forces intercepted a German patrol that had crossed the Garigliano River and shot it up badly. Eight Army troops improved their positions north of Atessa.

(The German radio asserted that American troops "are exhausted by peated attacks" on the Italian Front and "seem urgently to need a short interval of rest.")

The two Marseille airdromes torn up have become increasingly important to the Nazis since they lost their fields on Sardinia and in southern Italy, from which they once dominated the central Mediterranean. The last previous raid on the Marseille area was in mid-

Britons Puzzled As to Why Isle Was Not Sent Reinforcements

By Stephen Barber

Cairo, Nov. 17 (AP).—The tiny but strategic Island of Leros has been captured by the Germans in five days of heavy fighting despite a "most determined resistance" put up by its British and Italian defenders, the British Middle East Command announced today.

The Allied forces were unable to beat off the Nazis, who subjected the island's 28 square miles to a terrific aerial pounding, meanwhile, continuing to land reinforcements by boat and by parachute. The battle, which began with a German landing Friday, ended last night.

Capital Mystery

FaymonvilleRecall From Soviet Stirs Talk of Political Intrigue

By Bert Andrews

New York Tribune, Inc.

One of Washington's most intriguing present-day mysteries—a thriller dealing with the reasons behind the recent recall of Brig. Gen. Philip R. Faymonville from his post as chief of the American supply mission to the Soviet Union—popped out into the open yesterday as the unexpected result of a routine request made of the War Department for a copy of the official biographical sketch of the Army officer.

After several hours of cutting through atmosphere thick with hush-hush fog, the following outstanding facts emerged:

The chief figure in the puzzle no longer wears the single star of a brigadier general, which was given him as a "spot promotion" when he was sent to Russia, and put in charge of all lend-lease operations but has automatically reverted to his permanent grade of colonel of ordnance and is now out in Arkansas.

A similar reversion in rank has been decreed for Brig. Gen. Joseph A. Michela, who was American military attache in Moscow until recently and who is also back in Washington with the temporary grade of colonel, his permanent grade being captain of calvary.

There is much speculation although no official information, the Army's policy of no-comment being what it is, that both men departed from Moscow as a result of housecleaning ordered by W. Averell Harriman, who recently succeeded Admiral William H. Standley as Ambassador to Russia.

There is even more speculation that Colonel Faymonville, long regarded as one of the outstanding pro-Russian experts of the Army, and Colonel Michela have fallen into political if not military disfavor.

There is evidence that Colonel Faymonville is still in the good graces of the Russians, through their embassy here.

There are indications that his switch to a job that is humdrum routine in comparison with the one he held in Moscow occurred after a visit to the White House.

And there now are biographical sketches of Colonel Faymonville available to all-comers in the War Department, although the first request for one brought offers of

Kara Airdrome On Bougainville Hit By 40 Tons of Bombs

Southwest Pacific, Allied Headquarters, (Thursday), Nov. 18 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney's Air Force, centering its attacks on Japan's hard-pressed merchant marine, have scored damaging blows on two more merchantmen, General MacArthur's headquarters reported today.

Catalina flying boats, whose recent night-flying activities have resulted in heavy damage to an enemy cruiser and the enforced beaching of a 9000 ton cargo ship, both in the general area of Rabaul, went after an enemy convoy near there and left a 6000 ton merchant ship in a sinking condition.

The convoy consisted of two destroyers, two merchantmen and two corvettes, and was attacked during Monday night and early Tuesday 23 miles north of Rabaul, moving northwest.

Tuesday a Liberator bombed a 2500-ton Japanese merchantman 40 miles northeast of Hansa Bay, New Guinea, and left it sinking.

Other limited activities reported today included a 40-ton bombardment of the Kara airdrome on the south coast of invaded Bougainville, one of the Japanese fields which have been kept inoperative and unable to interfere with the beachhead of Admiral William F. Halsey's forces at Empress Augusta Bay.

Elaborating, Admiral Halsey's headquarters said 100 Dauntless dive-bombers and Avenger torpedo bombers, escorted by Corsairs, attacked Kara Monday, encountering no enemy interception and all the planes got back.

Along Bougainville's west coast, Allied air patrols destroyed 10

Cairo Expects Big 3 Parley, Budapest Says

Broadcast Reports [illegible] Hotel Readied [illegible] Important Meeting

London, Nov. 17 (AP).—Axis speculation over a possible conference by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin was intensified today by a Budapest broadcast hinting that Cairo might be a likely place for such a meeting.

"Well-informed circles," the broadcast said, "are of the opinion that a meeting between Churchill, Stalin and Roosevelt will take place in the near future."

It then quoted "Cairo circles" as saying that the Mena House Hotel there was being redecorated and put in readiness for an "important conference."

Washington, the broadcast added, views the prospects of a meeting between the three Allied statesmen "with great confidence and even greater results are expected than at Moscow."

The Daily Mail, meanwhile, quoted the Ankara radio as saying that "according to well-informed Allied circles, a Churchill-Roosevelt-Stalin conference will take place in the near future."

No official comment on either broadcast was forthcoming in London.

Russians Admit 'A Few Places' Are Abandoned To Enemy Units

London (Thursday), Nov. 18 (AP). A mounting German counterattack with a field force reported to total 150,000 men sent the Red army into reverse yesterday in the Zhitomir-Korostyshev region of the northern Ukraine—a small sector of the vast Eastern Front—in the first admitted Soviet setback since the Russian offensive began four months ago.

However, in the Dnieper Bend Soviet forces killed 200 Germans and seized several towns, and in the Korosten rail junction area north of Zhitomir, 60 more towns and hamlets were captured. Advances were also made in the Gomel-Rechitsa area and a new Soviet drive was reported under way near Orsha.

The unusual announcement of the Soviet retreat came in the Moscow communique, recorded by the Soviet radio monitor here.

The Germans concentrated large forces of tanks and infantry on a narrow sector of the front, the communique said, and after killing 1500 Germans and destroying 80 tanks and troop carriers, the Russians "under pressure of the numerically superior enemy forces abandoned a few populated places."

Seen as Defensive Move

The German counterattack was seen in London as purely a defensive move and the Berlin radio itself, while talking of "growing German counterpressure," said [illegible] were forced to carr[illegible] "a certain backward move[illegible] which at the moment is not considerable."

The Nazi push was directed the underside of the Red army's westernmost salient at Zhitomir, an important rail junction announced as captured Saturday, and Korostyshev, 15 miles eastward on the Zhitomir-Kiev highway.

One Berlin report said the highway had been reached by a German spearhead and a Reuters Moscow dispatch said Field Marshal Gen. Fritz von Mannstein had thrown 150,000 men and hundreds of tanks into the counterblow. The thrust also appeared aimed directly at Zhitomir itself.

The German attack appeared to have a two-fold purpose. One was to keep the Russians from closing the German escape route from the Dnieper bend area in the south. The other was possibly a Nazi attempt to cover preparation of defenses behind the Bug River for the next stand. The Bug is about 50 miles southwest of Zhitomir at Khmelnik where the river, coming from Proskurov, turns to the south.

Raging Battle

In one area of the raging battle, the Russians said, Soviet units repulsed several violent German counterattacks.

Farther east in the Zhitomir area the Russian-held town of Fastov has been under attack for days with as many as 11 waves of attackers.

In the south Ukraine, where the Russians were attacking to clear out the Dnieper River bend, four German counterattacks were thrown back, and Tomakovka, 22 miles northeast of the manganese center of Nikopol and an equal distance west of Zaporozhe, was captured. The Russians were also attacking n r Krivoi Rog, im-

Management Blamed

Former Brewster Head Tells About 'Unbelievable Confusion'

By Mary Spargo

Managament failures caused such "unbelievable confusion" at the Brewster Aeronautical Corp., that the Navy had to seize the plants, Ralph M. Singer, $80,000-a-year executive and former Brewster president, told the House Naval Affairs Subcommittee yesterday.

He was questioned by Chairman Drewry (Democrat) of Virginia as to whether such "unbelievable confusion" resulted from accident or intent, but said he did not know the answer.

The company, with approximately 12,000 employes in 1942, was still trying to produce a bomber for the British without a single engineering design, Singer said.

The former Brewster president, now an executive of the Evans Products Co., said that he wanted to have R. D. MacCart, chief engineer, discharged, but said James Work, founder of the company and chairman of the board of directors, refused to accept that recommendation. MacCart, now on the West Coast, has been asked to testify by a subcommittee headed by Representative Grant (Republican) of Indiana.

Singer declared the company had great difficulty in meeting its payrolls, and said that if the Navy had not stepped in when it did, the sheriff would have.

There was no control over supplies at the plant, Singer said, and no way to tell whether a completed part would fit a plane.

Although Work claimed to be ill and rarely visited the plant, Singer testified, he nevertheless retained policy control on both managerial and labor problems. Singer declared that Thomas V. De Lorenzo, president of Local 365, UAW-CIO, constantly consulted Work for the final word on labor disputes, rather than accepting the statement of the president of the company.

Singer asserted that Work exercised control because he, I. J. and A. J. Miranda, and F. William Zelcer, principal stockholders, were very friendly and cooperated fully. The board of directors at the time Singer was president did what Work wanted, Singer said.

He was asked by Representative Harris (Democrat) of Virginia if the Mirandas and Zelcer had not been in position to dictate to Work because he owed them so much in commissions.

Singer's testimony was followed by introduction into the record of a letter from Artemus L. Gates, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air, to Chairman Vinson (Democrat) of Georgia, chairman of the full Naval Affairs Committee.

The letter was a specific denial of charges voiced earlier by Zelcer, that Brewster was doing a fine job until it was taken over by the Navy.

Foe Shot at Own Ships

Whole Japanese Task Force Whipped by Three Destroyers

By John G. Norris

Three American destroyers took on and badly whipped a Japanese cruiser-destroyer task force of three times its strength in the naval battle off Vella Lavella Island in the Solomons last month, the Navy disclosed yesterday.

Official reports of the night engagement October 6 previously had announced that the enemy lost three ships in the fight and that we lost one, but it had not been known that the American force was so heavily outnumbered.

Yesterday's announcement also disclosed that the Nipponese warships became so badly confused under the deadly fire of the American 5-inch guns that they shot at each other.

One of the Japanese vessels destroyed in the fight was a light cruiser. It was blown up by shells from the USS Selfridge. At least two other warships were damaged in the fight.

Announcing details of the battle yesterday, the Navy said the American task force was commanded by Capt. Frank C. Walker of Long Beach, Calif., and that it consisted of the 1805-ton Selfridge and two other destroyers, the 2100-ton O'Bannon and Chevalier.

Loss of the Chevalier was reported earlier by the Navy. The vessel was hit by a torpedo and later sunk after colliding with another ship.

Comdr. George R. Wilson of Oakland, Calif., commanded the Chevalier; the skipper of the Selfridge is Comdr. George E. Peckham of Cresco, Iowa; while the commander of the O'Bannon is Comdr. Donald John MacDonald of New York City.

"The battle lasted less than 30 minutes," said the Navy. "Aware that they were far outnumbered, and in waters controlled by the

War Sidelights

Italian Soldiers Raid Newspaper

Naples, Nov. 17 (AP).—An attack by Italian soldiers on the office of a liberal newspaper was investigated today by Allied authorities.

They said a group commanded by a major entered the Avellino office of the Irpinia Liberia, smashed furniture, destroyed type and threatened the editor—apparently because an editorial demanded abdication of King Vittorio Emanuele "to clear the foul air of Italy."

Antimonarchists in Avellino were threatened by the same soldiers.

Sections of the Italian army are promonarchy, while others in the vicinity of Rome are Fascist sympathizers. An Allied military government may be formed to administer the country until the Allies reach Rome.

Rommel Kin a WAC

Pittsburgh, Nov. 17 (AP).—Ruth A. Hirtz, 28, who says she is a second cousin of Nazi Gen. Erwin Rommel, leaves tonight for Des Moines, Iowa, as a WAC.

"I would like to go overseas to meet my cousin—in an Allied prison camp," she said.

Britons to Get Turkey

London, Nov. 17 (AP).—There will be 60 per cent more Christmas turkey dinners in Britain this year than last, the Ministry of Food said today, estimating that 1,600,000 birds would be available.

They will be sold at a controlled price. Last year's prices were 50 cents a pound live and 90 cents dressed. The armed forces will get 85,000 turkeys and 35,000 chickens, one for every mess.

American soldiers are assured of Thanksgiving and Christmas fowl, and American civilian sale was restricted to furnish overseas supply.

Many Maps for Army

New York, Nov. 17 (AP).—More than 50 million military maps have been printed for the United States armed forces in the present war, consultant Helmuth Bay of McNally & Co. said tonight, two million of them used in gle strategic operation.

clared that "every power of the Government will be used to maintain the price of live hogs at not less than the support price of $13.75 per hundredweight at Chicago," thus allaying fears of farmers who have been sending their pigs to market recently and finding prices below the Government support level.

Jones said the Government would continue to buy pork products at prices based on the support and announced the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had been asked to withhold subsidy payments from packers paying less than the support price.

Farmers Cautioned

Farmers at the same time were urged—due to glutted marketing facilities—to get in touch with their markets before shipping their pigs.

Effective immediately, Jones said, the support price at all markets would be $1 per 100 pounds under the price ceiling set by OPA on live hogs. The support price heretofore has been announced only for the Chicago market, since WFA never anticipated the market glut caused by a record pig crop, manpower shortages in slaughter houses, and congested storage houses.

Earlier yesterday WFA, in another step to offset confusion on the hog market, announced restrictions would be lifted on farm sales of pork and lard.

Heretofore, farmers have been unable to sell more than 400 pounds of these products in one year. Under the new arrangement they can supply many small towns direct and take care of some of the surplus animals during peak slaughter months.

All the animals slaughtered on farms, however, will result in the waste of many valuable by-products that can be saved at large slaughterhouses—and WFA lifted the sale ban with reluctance for a period of 90 days.

6 Nazi Divisions Suffer Big Losses, Partisans Claim

London, Nov. 17 (AP).—Yugoslav guerillas announced today they had opened a counteroffensive against Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's month-old campaign to smash Partisan forces in the Balkans.

A bulletin, broadcast by the Partisan forces of Gen. Josip Broz (Tito), said "successful offensive operations" were being carried out in Siberia, Sanjak, Montenegro, Hercegovina and Macedonia and that "heavy losses" had been inflicted on six German divisions—60,000 to 70,000 men.

Tito Admits Setbacks

Tito admitted guerilla setbacks along the Croatian coast, where he reported the Germans had recaptured Crkvenica and had landed on the Island of Krk. The insurgents, the communique said, also were fighting defensive battles at other places along the coast.

Tito termed a German claim that Nazi forces had recaptured Tuzla in eastern Bosnia "a plain lie. Tuzla is strongly held by the Yugoslav National Army of Liberation," he said. The Partisans admitted, however, they were fighting defensive battles in the Tuzla neighborhood.

In Slovenia, the bulletin said, Partisan forces had broken up a German offensive which was started October 12, and inflicted heavy losses.

Towns, Villages Freed

The Parisans said they had liberated the town of Nevesinje and the villages of Zimje and Visin in Hercegovina. Tito charged his forces had caused considerable losses to the Germans and to the Chetniks of Gen. Draja Mihailovic, a rival insurgent army. Mihailovic is minister of war in the cabinet of the Yugoslav government in exile.

In Serbia, the communique from Tito said, two German columns attacked near Mokra Gora were forced to retreat.

Allied pilots yesterday strafed enemy transport and bombed bridges near Durazzo and harbor installations and a railway at Sibenik.

A Cairo radio broadcast said the Germans were unable to use Trieste and Fiume because of guerilla activity.

portant for the Nazi escape route.

North of Zhitomir the Russians continue to enlarge their salient, crossing the Uzh River, capturing Narodichi and 50 other towns. Narodichi is 15 miles east of the Leningrad-Korosten railway and 26 miles northeast of Korosten, a rail junction already menaced by two other Russian columns 15 miles away.

In the Gomel area of White Russia, the Russians were now battling in the streets for Rechitsa, cut off from the west when Soviet units reached the Dnieper River north of the town.

North of Gomel where the Russians had a bridgehead across the Sozh River in further menace to this almost surrounded city, the Red army improved its positions as it fought to extend the bridgehead area.

Moscow dispatches said Russian artillery was heavily shelling Gomel's outskirts and three of the six railroad lines that lead into the city have now been cut. Threatened by the Soviet advance was the German major escape route from the city—the Gomel-Minsk Railway.

British Fascist To Be Released

London, Nov. 17 (AP).—Sir Oswald Mosley, prewar leader of the British Blackshirt Party who has been detained since May, 1940, will be released from prison in a few days on medical grounds, it was disclosed tonight.

His wife, who also has been detained, is to be released at the same time.

Sir Oswald, once a member of Parliament, was head of the British Union of Fascists at the time war broke out. He and Lady Mosley were finally arrested under defense regulations.

enemy, the United States ships boldly closed with the Japanese until less than 7000 yards separated them.

"Then blinding gun flashes split the silence and blackness of the steamy Solomon Islands night and the battle was on. Torpedoes were launched by the destroyers just before the guns fired.

"Every five-inch gun available was brought to bear. The first salvos struck home on the cruiser and fire quickly raced along her topsides."

There were five Jap ships in the first group encountered by the Yank warships, and only two got away, one smoking badly and the other apparently also on fire. Hits also were scored on four other enemy ships to the rear of the first group.

Describing the battle, Commander MacDonald of the O'Bannon said:

"The ship we were shooting at, believed to be a Yubari class light cruiser, blew up with the most terrific explosion it has ever been my pleasure to observe. Parts of the ships must have gone at least 500 feet into the air.

"When the area cleared up, the ship was nowhere in sight, although she was only about 600 yards away when the firing started. It is doubtful that there could have been many survivors. The explosion of our target brought cheers throughout the O'bannon.

"Fires were observed to have started on all of the first enemy ships taken under gun fire. One ship, believed to have been the Chevalier's target was dead in the water about 10,000 yards from us. It burned furiously and then blew up with a terrific explosion."

Despite the fact that the battle was fought in enemy controlled waters, a majority of the crew of the Chevalier was rescued. Catalina flying boats and speedy little PT-boats aided in the rescue.

barges, damaged 7 others and set fire to a small cargo ship.

Seven Japanese planes definitely were shot down and five others probably destroyed in air actions over Wewak and the Ramu Valley, northeastern New Guinea.

Japs' Isle Bases Raided

Pearl Harbor, Nov. 17 (AP).—Continuing their aerial offensive in the central Pacific, Army Liberator bombers raided the Jaluit and Mille Atolls in the Marshall Islands and Makin in the Gilbert group the afternoon of November 15, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

The communique gave the following results of the attack:

One enemy ship set on fire and three others possibly hit in Haluit Harbor.

Many fires started in hangars, shops and fuel dumps at Imieji (Emidj) and Jabor Islands of the Jaluit Atoll.

Several fires started at Mille Atoll.

Clouds prevented accurate observation at Makin.

It was the third successive day on which Liberators of Maj. Gen. Willis H. Hale's Seventh Air Force had struck against Japanese bases in the central Pacific area in an offensive which the general said would be continued until they become "completely untenable."

There was no enemy interception at any point in the November 15 raid and no damage to American planes or personnel. Intense antiaircraft fire was encountered at Mille, but it was weak at Makin and Jaluit.

Nazi Arsenal Attacked In France; 25 Slain

Bern, Switzerland, Nov. 17 (AP).—Dispatches from Grenoble, France, to the Swiss newspaper La Suisse today said Grenoble citizens had attacked a German arsenal in that city, slaying 10 Nazi soldiers and blowing up a powder magazine. Fifteen Frenchmen were reported killed.

The Grenoble dispatches said the attacked was staged in retaliation for the arrest of between 300 and 400 persons following Armistice Day demonstrations on November 11.

August, when 94 enemy bombers were caught on the ground and destroyed.

In yesterday's assault the Fortresses hit Istres le Tube shortly after noon, and 15 minutes later the Marauders and their Lightning fighter escort swept over the nearby field at Salon. The Fortresses, officially described as a "considerable force," deluged Istres le Tube with bombs, and their machine-gunners shot down 12 out of 25 to 30 Nazi fighters.

The Marauders showered explosives on Salon, hitting grounded aircraft and destroying one enemy fighter in combat. Three Allied planes were missing from all the day's forays.

Pravda Calls U. S. Lease-Lend Good-Will Builder

Moscow, Nov. 17 (AP).—The Communist Party newspaper Pravda, on the tenth anniversary of the beginning of diplomatic relations between the Soviet Union and the United States, pointed today to increasingly friendly relations between the nations, and gave warm praise for American aid during the war.

The editorial said:

"It is known that during the war our country on the basis of the lend-lease agreement has received a big amount of arms, war material and food. The good will of the American Government and of the American people has been invested in these supplies."

Pravda then gave credit to President Roosevelt for helping to eliminate much of the misunderstanding of the Soviet Union.

French to Present 15 Million Check For U. S. Supplies

Henri Hoppenot, Washington representative of the French Nation Committee of Liberation, will present a check of 15 million dollars to Leo T. Crowley, head of the new Foreign Economic Administration, this morning, bringing the total payment for civilian lend-lease supplies by the French to $56,340,000.

The French have repaid "dollar for dollar" our shipments to West and North Africa, Oscar S. Cox, assistant solicitor general, said yesterday, adding that civilian lend-lease supplies consisted mostly of seeds, agricultural implements and other materiel helpful in reconstruction work.

Besides paying every cent for these civilian supplies, Cox declared, the French have reciprocated for our military supplies by delivering flour, fruits and other food to American forces stationed in Africa and fighting in Sicily and Italy.

Leros Falls to Nazis After 5-Day Battle

but this suggestion found no support in official quarters, which showed no great alarm at the turn of events in the Aegean.

(London observers were puzzled to understand why the British command, with virtual dominance of the Mediterranean and with thousands of idle troops at its disposal, was unable to secure their hold on the string of islands which bar the way to the Balkans. The islands were taken at small cost when Italy surrendered.

(The only conclusions reached in London were either that the British command has other plans for dealing with the Balkans or else island-grabbing operations are more difficult than they appear from a distance.

Believe Nazis Lost Heavily

(British commentators said the Allied command apparently found it impossible or undesirable to reinforce the British-Italian garrison on Leros, but nevertheless it was believed the Germans suffered heavy losses of picked battle-tested shock troops as well as having weakened their Balkan, Russian and Italian Fronts forces to recapture the Dodecanese.

(The London Star said that "small though it (the fall of Leros) may be against the immense background of the war, this is an unpalatable reverse." The paper cautioned critics to "hold their fire" at least until the government had an opportunity to explain.

(The German high command said German forces were under the command of Lieutenant General Mueller. The British garrison was led by a "General Tilney" and the Italians by an "Admiral Mascharpa," the German Bulletin said. British Army records show a Lieut. Col. Harold A. Tilney, 39, who is an acting brigadier general. Admiral Mascharpa is not listed in available records.)

The Germans erected a powerful air cover over Leros, a rocky island about 8 miles long and 3 miles wide, formerly used by the Italians as a naval base and situated strategically off the coast of Turkey and at the front door to the Balkans.

Nazis Bomb at Will

Under this cover they moved in with picked veterans, some from among the conquerors of Cos and others from Nazi forces on nearby Rhodes and in the Balkans. For most of the five days the Germans were able to bomb at will, and then yesterday they stepped up the pace of the aerial attack to a terrific tempo.

"Throughout yesterday," said today's British communique, "the enemy continued the overwhelming air bombardment of Leros. After very severe fighting and in spite of a most determined resistance in the face of fresh enemy reinforcements, organized resistance ceased in the evening."

The Allies were unable to match the German air power, based on the Island of Rhodes only 80 miles away, and on land were handicapped by the rough terrain and scarcity of communication lines.

In their strong and determined assault on Leros the Germans apparently sought not only to strengthen their Balkan front line but also to impress neutral Turkey with a great show of strength right off the Turkish coast.

In the days following the surrender of Italy on September 8, the British landed in the Dodecanese Islands of Leros, Cos and Castelrosso and on the Greek island of Samos less than 20 miles north of Leros. In addition the Germans indicated that the British landed on Symi and Stampalia, also in the Dodecanese.

By German account all the Dodecanese islands now are in German hands. The British acknowledge the loss only of Cos and Leros, state Samos is still in Allied hands and have been silent on the others.

Medal Given Writer Hurt In Sicily

By International News Service

Award of the Silver Star for "gallantry in action" to Michael Chinigo, International News Service correspondent attached to Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth Army in Italy, was announced by the War Department yesterday.

CHINIGO

The citation stated:

"Mr. Chinogo's absolute disregard for personal safety, his voluntary actions and willingness to be of service above and beyond any call of duty reflect the highest credit upon himself and his profession."

Chinigo was with the first group of assault troops to land on Sicilian shores July 10.

He suffered shrapnel wounds in one arm, and the second arm was fractured when he was thrown from a jeep. Despite his injuries, Chinigo, who speaks Italian fluently, continued with his party, giving valuable assistance in questioning prisoners.

Ahead of Troops

"He accompanied a patrol which entered Palermo in advance of the occupation of our troops, contacted the chief of police, and went with him to inform the Italian troops that the American forces had taken the city," the citation said.

"Accompanying a patrol on another occasion, he entered Messina prior to its occupation."

Graduate of Yale

Chinigo was graduated from Yale University with a medical degree, but took up the newspaper profession and was sent to Europe for INS. He held posts in Rome and Balkan capitals and covered the Italian and German invasion of Albania and Greece.

Chinigo is the second war correspondent to receive the Silver Star in World War II. An Associated Press reporter, Vern Haugland, got the award from Gen. Douglas MacArthur October 1, 1942, for "devotion to duty and fortitude" in the southwest Pacific.

Decorated for Injury

Algiers, Nov. 17 (AP).—John H. Thompson, war correspondent of the Chicago Tribune and Mutual Broadcasting System, was decorated today with the Purple Heart for an injury he suffered when he jumped with American parachute troops near Vittoria in Sicily July 9.

Giraud Postpones Resignation After 'Satisfactory' Talks

Algiers, Nov. 17 (AP).—After a "satisfactory" conference with the French Committee of National Liberation and another meeting with high Allied officers, Gen. Henri Giraud withdrew today, for a period of at least two weeks, his resignation as commander in chief of French armed forces.

His action was taken provisionally, although the De Gaullist-controlled committee has not given Giraud written guarantees of a free hand in running the French army, as he demanded.

Giraud expressed confidence a written statement of the committee's agreement with his conditions will be forthcoming soon. However, a De Gaullist spokesman previously predicted the committee would not accept Giraud's terms.

Beirut Calm as General, British Minister Meet

Beirut, Lebanon, Nov. 17 (AP).—Gen. Georges Catroux, French minister of state sent by the Committee of National Liberation to settle the Lebanese disturbances, conferred here today with Sir Edward Spears, British Minister.

Beirut continued calm following the disorders of last week, which came after the dissolution of the Lebanese government and arrest of many officials by order of Jean Helleu, French high commissioner. Helleu's action followed moves by the Lebanese government for immediate independence from French control.

Grand Mufti's Stand

The Grand Mufti, head of Moslems of Lebanon, said in an interview, "I recognize no other government than that of Habib Abishahla."

This government is the rump of the old Khoury government, and is said to be sitting somewhere in the mountains. The Lebanese government which figured in the dispute with French authorities was headed by President Shoukri el Kuwatli Bey and Premier Riad el Solh. A provisional administration now has been set up by the French under Emile Eddeh.

The interview with the Grand Mufti was interrupted by demonstrations of young men and women in front of the residence. They sang the national anthem of the little eastern Mediterranean republic, and shouted slogans until they were driven away by French Senegalese troops.

British Warn French

(The British radio today warned the French that the British people would not hesitate, if it was necessary, to support the British government "in the measures which it might see itself forced to take" to maintain British honor throughout the Arab world, keep the pledges of Britain to the Lebanese and to protect the strategic interests of the Allies in a region where the responsibility for defense falls largely on the British.")

(The broadcast, recorded in New York by CBS, said "there is no question of a conflict of interest between the British and French" concerning Lebanon and added, "this conception of imperialism we have left behind us a long time ago.")

Arabs Said to Gather

Cairo, Nov. 17 (INS).—Armed bands of Druse and other native tribesmen were reported massed tonight in the mountains only about 20 miles from Beirut in preparation for guerilla warfare against French troops in Lebanon, according to advices reaching Cairo.

Duce Reported Ill, in Coma

Stockholm, Nov. 17 (AP).—A clandestine German radio was quoted today by the Goeteborg newspaper Handels-Och Sjoefartstiding as saying Benito Mussolini was seriously ill at Hitler's mountain retreat at Berchtesgaden and had lapsed into a coma.

USS Bataan, New Carrier, Commissioned

Philadelphia, Nov. 17 (AP).—The new U. S. aircraft carrier Bataan was commissioned today with expressed wishes that she will aid in driving the Japanese from the Philippines.

Vice President Sergio Osmena of the Philippines, speaking at the ceremony, said a score of planes might have turned the tide of battle in the Philippines while Gen. Douglas MacArthur's troops were battling on Bataan.

The Navy set aside its usual rule of secrecy to announce the commissioning. Ordinarily, news about new ships is limited to launchings, but today's exception was made "to demonstrate the patriotic bond between the people of the Philippines and the people of the United States, whose combined forces fought so valiantly on Bataan."

"Every day now, the enemy is reeling under the mighty blows of our forces on land, on sea and in the air," Osmena said.

"Even now we can visualize the brave fliers of the USS Bataan, inspired by the name their carrier bears, winging their way to the Philippines on a mission of revenge and liberation."

President Manuel L. Quezon of the Philippines sent a message.

Wills to Become American Citizen

David Wills, journalist, lecturer and Director of Information for the British Supply Council, told the Rotary Club at a meeting yesterday at the Willard Hotel that before the year ends he will leave the council and become an American citizen.

Wills, who has written for The Post, said he planned to broadcast to the British Isles on American affairs.

Moscow, Nov. 17 (AP).—An eyewitness account of Jewish massacres in Kiev during the early days of the German occupaton has been given the newspaper Izvestia by Dmitrii Grlov, a resident, who said he saw hundreds of men and women stripped naked and then shot at the edge of a gully, into which their bodies dropped on a great pile.

In the account, distributed by Tass News Agency, Grlov related:

"Several days after the Germans entered Kiev, I went to Lvovskaya st. An incessant procession of people was streaming through it and both sidewalks were lined with German patrols. This human stream kept flowing for three days and three nights without interruption.

Stood Sight 10 Minutes

"The Germans were driving the Jews to Babyi Yar Gully beyond the city. I also stealthily made my way to that place. I was able to stand the sight of what I saw there only for 10 minutes, and after that everything went black before my eyes.

"The Germans forced people to undress and then methodically gathered their clothes and loaded them on trucks. In separate trucks they put underwear. Then they tore from naked people—there were men and women among them—rings and watches if they had any, dragged them up shivering from cold or mortal terror to the edge of the gully and shot them.

No Bullets for Children

"The Germans did not spend any bullets on little children, but simply hurled them alive into the gully.

"Those who were awaiting their turn stood silently, or sang or even laughed. I could see that those who laughed were already insane.

"And this thing lasted three days.

"All these whom the Germans did not drive to their death knew what was in store for them. Old men put on mourning clothes and gathered in their homes for prayer, then went out to Lvovskaya st. Invalids were supported by others and some were even carried.

"All of them were killed."

Aide Compares MacArthur to Napoleon, Lee

By Lewis B. Sebring, Jr.

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Allied Headquarters in Australia, Nov. 15.—A comprehensive appraisail of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's military methods was given to correspondents today at a special press conference by his assistant chief of staff for intelligence, Brig. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby.

Reading from a prepared statement, which he amplified with diagrams and maps, he said:

"The far-flung operations of this extensive front are firmly held together by the central theme of a general plan conceived by General MacArthur. As a basis of action, there has been the most careful and subtle employment of the factor of surprise; the general has always succeeded in deluding the enemy as to his objective and his purpose.

"With relatively little loss of life and a minimum of assault forces in ground action he has forced back the enemy and maneuvered him from one position to another. He has struck first on one flank, then shifted the assault to another, or has applied pressure from the center, or engaged in a combined maneuver, a combination of several directions, thereby completely bewildering the enemy.

Enemy strongholds carefull prepared by ground forces are almost invariably bypassed and their supply lines severed by air, then by small Navy craft eventually forcing the enemy to retrograde movements with little or no loss to our ground forces.

"MacArthur understands the value of military history and is completely familiar with the science of war as practiced by the great military commanders.

"One of the greatest military technicians of all times, Napoleon, first operated against the flank and rear of his opponent almost habitually. He employed this form of attack from 30 to 40 times over a period of years. We do not have to quote the famous Corsican. There was a great American commander, Robert E. Lee, who also understood war perfectly. The campaign of Chancellorsville will remain an imperishable model. The comparison of MacArthur with Lee is even more appropriate since he was operating with the limited means of the Confederacy, shifting from one flank to another—a blueprint of our operations in the Southwest Pacific.

"The general applies these classical precepts with the most modern technical means. He understands and values in particular the enormous flexibility of air. His object is more and more revealed as the calculated advance of his bomber lines through the seizure of advance bases so that his relatively small force of bombers may continue its attacks under cover of his limited fighter force operating on short and medium ranges. Each phase of the advance has as objectives the seizure of airfields which determine the scope and distance of his next advance.

"His air line base is now the Finschhafen to Empress Augusta Bay areas, taken for the main purpose of establishing new bases which in turn will serve as a springboard for still further advances, the direction of which remains for the enemy a matter of conjecture and confusion.

"As this air line goes forward his naval forces under newly established air coverage regain the sea lanes which up to now have been the undisputed principal arteries of the enemy campaign. The masterly coordination of ground, sea and air has not had a more brilliant exhibition in recent times.

"In setting his most modern pattern while exploiting the latest technical tools, the general still remains a fellow craftsman in a distinguished historical company of great commanders—Napoleon as well as Lee."

helpfulness from the public relations department but word from some other unknown person that the sketches were "restricted."

When a request was made at the War Department yesterday for General Faymonville's biography, the clerk said, "Sure!" and went to the files. No sketch was there. The clerk, puzzled, went to ask someone higher up, and reported back that the someone had said the sketch was "restricted."

Subsequently, higher public relations officials insisted that the sketch never had been restricted and should have been made promptly available.

About an hour and a half after the request, the War Department put on the press room bulletin board the following notice, which was the first formal announcement of General-Colonel Faymonville's return:

"Memorandum for the press:

"In response to queries as to the assignment and grade of Col. Philip R. Faymonville, former chief of United States Supply Mission to USSR, the War Department announces that Colonel Faymonville is at present on duty in the office of the Chief of Ordinance. While chief of the United States supply mission to USSR, an office which requires the grade of general officer, Colonel Faymonville served in the grade of brigadier general. When he left that office for his present assignment he automatically returned to his permanent grade in the Regular Army, which is that of colonel of put up, dealing with General-Colonel Michela:

"Memorandum for the press:

"In response to inquiries from the press, the War Department today stated that Brig. Gen. Joseph A. Michela, recently military attache to the USSR, is curently in Washington, D. C. General Michela held the temporary grade of brigadier general by reason of his assignment as military attache to Russia.

"Under War Department policy, General Michela, having been relieved from duty as military attache, will shortly revert to the temporary grade of colonel, A. U. S. His permanent grade is captain, of cavalry."

Still later the War Department completed stenciling a new biographical sketch of General-Colonel Faymonville, which, incidentally, disposed of his most recent service in Russa with the words:

"He was designated a member of the special war supplies mission to Russia in September, 1941, and returned to Moscow (from the United States.) He was assigned to the Army group, Washington, D. C., in December, 1941."

This sketch disclosed dates and other facts but made no mention of much of the more enlightening information contained in the files of newspapers. The newspaper stories over the years reveal:

That the San Francisco-born Faymonville always thought America would some day fight Japan and that Russia would be a good ally for that scrap; that he began studying the Russian language in 1915 while in the Philippines three years after graduating from West Point, and that service in the American force in Siberia in 1918 as a major strengthened his pro-Russian viewpoint.

Called "The Bolshevik"

That in 1933, when America was preparing to resume diplomatic relations with Russia, he was a military aide to President Roosevelt; that fellow-officers called him "The Bolshvik" because he knew so much about Russia, and that in 1934 he was sent to Moscow as military attache.

That after the 1936-1938 purge of the Russian army generals, he still held to the belief that the Russian army was as good as ever; that the only one who agreed with him was the German military attache in Russia, and that he was so optimistic about the Russian army that many American officers laughed at his reports.

That in February, 1939, he was recalled to Washington and given a routine job in San Francisco; that in September, 1941, Harry Hopkins overcame War Department opposition and had him sent to Moscow in charge of a special supply mission, and that he subsequently insisted on Russian victory and demanded more shipments every day, and that in January, 1942, he was put in charge of all Lend-Lease operations in Moscow.

With this as the background, newspapermen tried to find out what had become of Colonel Faymonville now.

They learned he had been assigned to the office of Maj. Gen. Levin Campbell, Chief of Ordnance, and supposedly could be reached at the Pentagon Building in the office of Col. C. Wingate Reed, Chief of Military Personnel. A phone call to the office of Colonel Reed brought a reply from a secretary:

"Colonel Faymonville is on temporary duty at the Texarkana Ordnance Center, in Arkansas. He will be back Friday."

Later a War Department spokesman said Colonel Faymonville was merely out of town on an inspection trip.

Still later it was learned that Colonel Faymonville still has the warm friendship of the Russians, and that he was invited to the large anniversary reception there on Sunday, November 7. It is one of the best-known facts in Washington that the Russian Embassy doesn't invite anyone it doesn't like to any of its affairs. At the reception the star was gone from Colonel Faymonville's shoulder and a colonel's eagle was there in its place. An eavesdropper heard him say to a friend:

"Well, I'll know my fate tomorrow."

The next day Colonel Faymonville called at the White House.

Tonight the speculation took several forms. Some thought Colonel Faymonville's return home was ordered directly by the White House. Others thought Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, must have had a hand in it. Many believed that Ambassador Harriman, in new-brooming the American outfit in Moscow, had merely swept Colonel Faymonville out with the rest.

Colonel Faymonville, reached by telephone in Arkansas, said:

"No comment."

50% of Owners Resume Discussions of Coal Wages

tor Fred M. Vinson in support of higher coal prices, Ickes was said to have contended that underground travel time actually amounted to 80 minutes a day, and that the $1.50 increase would only pay for 25 minutes more work time a day.

WLB on Edge

The War Labor Board, which reluctantly approved the Ickes-Lewis agreement because of the possibly disastrous effects of prolongation of the coal stoppage, has hinted that it would examine critically any new proposals which cannot be justified on the basis of travel-time facts.

Operators were said to be divided on whether to go ahead with negotiations promptly, or to wait until OPA disposes of the price question.

Some operators were said to feel that they would fare better if they permitted the Government to run the mines indefinitely and then sue for damages in the Court of Claims after the war.

One Government attorney expressed the opinion that the Government would be liable for any damages incurred since it saw fit to establish basic working conditions by signing a wage agreement with the miners.

"That contract will keep a lot of lawyers busy for many years," he said.

'Captive' Owners' Situation

It was said that the "captive" mine operators were holding aloof from the negotiations in the belief that Ickes was pushing for a contract to use as a means of securing higher coal prices from OPA. Since the "captives" are owned by steel companies and do not sell any coal to the general public, but are compelled to buy the fuel in quantity, they are not interested in higher coal prices.

Harry Moses, president of the H. C. Frick Coal Co. (United States Steel Corp. subsidiary), informed the Associated Press that reports that he had withdrawn from the Appalachian Conference were untrue. He pointed out that the Appalachian Conference was not formally in session, but added that he did not intend to participate in the current negotiations.

Meanwhile, the three-man committee appointed by President Roosevelt to study travel time in the mines, decided to send out questionnaires to the industry to gather the required data. The committee hopes that all the questionnaires will be returned within three weeks.

Brewster Witness Cites Confusion

Gates pointed to the record of failure to produce planes to support the Navy's action.

De Lorenzo's Charge

Meanwhile at Johnsville, Pa., where one of the Brewster plants is located, De Lorenzo told 400 of the plant's 6000 employes who attended a union meeting yesterday, that the House Naval Affairs Committee is trying to "break up the union."

The union leader, who crumpled before the assault of the subcommittee and revealed a string of aliases and falsifications of Federal records, told his followers that the committee is checking the draft classification of all union officers and stewards.

"That would be an easy way to break Local 365—put all of us in the Army," De Lorenzo said.

Bread Price Subsidy Planned

declared consumer subsidies are a form of inflation.

He contended the 800 million dollars already being spent in subsidies "to protect the consumer" is the principal source of excess purchasing power and that the failure to hold the line on living costs has been in defense plants—not on the farm.

Milton H. Button, Wisconsin director of agriculture, said farmer organizations in his State, with the exception of the Farmers Union, are opposed to subsidies.

James G. Patton, present president of the union, is the only major farm leader supporting subsidies—and not all of his member unions have fallen in line.

Channel Ports Again Raided

London, Nov. 17 (AP).—Typhoon planes hit Nazi-held channel ports today, following up the U. S. heavy-bomber attack yesterday which reconnaissance photos showed probably knocked out the highly important molybdenum plant at Knaben in southern Norway.

A night action against continental targets was indicated.

A large fleet of outward-bound bombers crossed the Channel coast, indicating that RAF heavy bombers, idle since Armistice night, were aiming another blow.

A Reuters dispatch from Zurich, Switzerland, said an alert was sounded at Basel tonight. In the past, such alerts often have signaled Allied attacks on southern Germany or northern Italy.

Two minesweepers, a trawler and a motor launch were damaged today by the swift RAF Typhoons, despite intense antiaircraft fire. A pilot said their cannon shells hit minesweepers lying at a dockside at St. Peter, a port on the Channel island of Guernsey.

Other planes encountered heavy flak as they hit a trawler and a motor launch moored in the estuary at Lezardrieux, France, 11 miles northeast of Brest. Two fighters were missing.

RAF mosquitoes attacked western Germany last night without loss.

U. S. Bombers Blast Docks at Hongkong

Chungking, Nov. 17 (AP).—Liberator bombers of the United States 14th air force bombed shipping and the Kowloon dock area at Hongkong Monday night, scoring many hits, a communique from Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

Mitchell medium bombers also attacked shipping yesterday at Fort Bayard on the Kwangchowan peninsula on the China south coast above Hainan island, the bulletin said.

Allies Hold Initiative, President Says; Forum Hears Wallace, Willkie

New York, Nov. 17 (AP).—President Roosevelt said tonight that the United Nations now had the "supreme advantage of initiative" and their progress could be measured by the fact that they were producing "the important events of the war."

"We must not lose this advantage—the supreme advantage of initiative," he said in a message to the closing session of the New York Herald Trbune forum on current problems.

Vice President Wallace and Wendell Willkie addressed the session in the Waldorf-Astoria ballroom. Messages also were read from Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Minister Anthony Eden of Great Britain and Gen. Charles de Gaulle, president of the French Committee of National Liberation.

Churchill observed that the forum was meeting "in the glow of one of the most cheering developments in international affairs, the Moscow conference," and referred to the pledge of the United States, the United Kingdom, Russia and China "to work together not only in winning the war but in building the structure of a lasting peace."

Wallace said that loans made abroad after the war, if properly invested, could increase jobs in the United States and furnish millions of jobs for the whole world.

Certain private interests, he said, must not be "allowed to high pressure Congress into higher tariffs while other private interests are financing unsound loans abroad at the expense of the small American investor."

Cites Need for Planning

He said that "by lack of planning and the selfishness of the so-called hard-headed men we can turn Peace H into World War III."

Willkie hailed the Moscow agreement as "a sound foundation on which we can now build" and urged that it be enlarged to include "economic as well as political and moral objectives" and participation by all the United Nations and eventually all nations.

Eden's message said the four-power declaration at Moscow "made it plain that there was and there would be no attempt to impose a sort of great-power dictatorship on other states."

President Roosevelt said that "in the years—and perhaps the centuries of peace—that are to follow this war, the forces of civilization and common decency, the overwhelming majority of the human race, must always maintain the initiative."

"In the historic conference at Moscow, we have made several long steps forward. We are making substantial advances in another field, in the conferences now being held by the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration."

Regrets Inability to Appear

In the message, read by Mrs. Ogden Reid, vice president of the Herald Tribune, at the closing session of the forum at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, and broadcast nationally, the President expressed regret that he was unable to join personally in the forum.

"I am sure that the participants in the forum will understand," he said, "that with the increasingly swift pace of events in this war it is not always possible to find the time and opportunity for all the things one would wish to do.

"Last year in addressing the forum, I said that the turning point of this war had at last been reached.

"The great advances that have been made during the year since then can be measured by the fact that now the important events of the war—and in the building for the peace—are being impelled by us of the United Nations and not by our enemies."

Willkie declared:

"Without at this moment arguing the merit or demerit of the political policy we have so far pursued in regard to those countries," he said, "we must recognize the fact that that policy has set up against us a psychological hurdle in the minds of the conquered peoples.

"They fear that our policy in North Africa, and certainly in its early stages in Italy, represents a determination to prevent social and political evolution on the Continent. This fear we must overcome."

Willkie said there were "still frightening gaps in our moral front and still soft spots in our political warfare."

"Consider for a moment our present relations with French leaders, banned from the Moscow talks, marooned in a sort of North African illegitimacy, one day recognized, the next day undermined," he said. "Or consider our relations with Italy, where we have given the Italian people good reason to be confused by our actions and by our inability to distinguish between our friends and our enemies. Or think of our dickering with the reactionary oligarchs of Spain. . . ."

Asserting that isolationism will be "impossible" in the future, Wallace said the first problem after the war will be to get food to the starving people of Europe. He said Europe eventually can pay for this food in healthful labor "provided we of the New World are willing to accept goods in payment.'"

Observing that we are "much farther from victory over Fascism than victory over the German armies," Wallace said that Fascism "fights on both side of the line" on both continents in the New World. He said that "dynamic common purpose and faith" can Rill it.

"The new democracy, if it solves the problem of full production and fair distribution, can give our common man the enthusiasm and faith of the Russian common man and even more," he declared.

Gas Lost in Rail Wreck

Fort Recovery, Ohio, Nov. 17 (AP). Nineteen cars of a Nickel Plate train, en route from Frankfort, Ind., to Lima, were derailed today and three of eight cars containing gasoline went up in flames, destroying 25,000 gallons of the fuel. A station agent said the wreck may have been caused by failure of a brake beam to function properly.

"MY CONSTIPATION WORRIES ARE OVER!"

Since I've been eating ALL-BRAN regularly!"

Tired of taking one purgative after another, and getting no lasting relief? Then by all means, read this unsolicited letter:

"Good for you, because your ALL-BRAN was so good for me. I had to take so many medicines most of the time, before I started eating ALL-BRAN. Now, I have no more of that kind of trouble. I have been eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly every morning for about 5 years. It is wonderful." Mrs. Susie Perry, 93 Bigelow St., Greenfield, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Why does KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN give such welcome relief? Scientists say it's because ALL-BRAN "gets at" one common cause of constipation — lack of sufficient "cellulosic" elements in the diet! Nature made KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN one of her most effective sources of these elements, which help the friendly colonic flora lighten and fluff up the colonic wastes, for easy elimination. It's not a purgative! Doesn't work by "sweeping out"! It is simply a gentle-acting, "regulating" food!

If this is your trouble, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly, with milk, sprinkled on other cereals, in muffins, etc. Drink plenty of water. See if you don't cheer its comforting relief! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

'Heebie Jeepies,' 'Destroyer Ills' Found Bane of Many Troops

Cincinnati, Nov. 17.—"Jeep disease" and "destroyer stomach" were described to the Southern Medical Association today as two of the newer medical complaints of men in the armed forces.

The jeep ailment is a condition suffered by many people in civilian life and which does not necessarily cause disability but, Brig. Gen. Fred Rankin of the Army Surgeon General's Office said, the rigors of mechanized warfare—"riding on jeeps, trucks and tanks"—resulted in many cases of disability.

The ailment stems from a cyst formation near the base of the spine. In some cases, the abnormality is no more than a pimple. Rough riding of mechanized warriors often causes the tissue to become further inflamed.

Operation is often indicated to remove the diseased tissue, Dr. Louis A. Buie of the Mayo Clinic reported, but he said military surgeons faced a problem in selecting cases requiring surgery, inasmuch as healing of some operations required as much as 100 days, thus tying up beds needed by battle casualties.

The "destroyer stomach" complaint was described by Lieut. Comdr. W. T. Gibb, jr., of the National Naval Medical Center of Bethesda, Md., who said it was a condition "appearing mostly in hospitals that receive men directly off the ships."

"Apparently," he said, "it is a form of sub-acute (mild) gastritis due to protracted seasickness, irregular meals and constant nervous tension, and occurs mostly in the rough waters of the North Atlantic."

De Marigny Denies Owning 'Hot' Gasoline

By James L. Kilgallen

Nassau, Nov. 17 (INS).—Alfred de Marigny was pictured today as a man who was more worried about four drums of allegedly "hot" gasoline on his premises than he was by the charge that he murdered his father-in-law, Sir Harry Oakes.

John Anderson, a banker, made the statement about the handsome French aristocrat, exonerated last week of any connection with Sir Harry's murder, at a magistrate's hearing in which De Marigny, Anderson and three others were charged with illegal possession and transportation of the high octane fuel.

Anderson and the Marquis Georges de Visdelou, De Marigny's close friend, pleaded guilty to the charges. Anderson paid a fine of £50, his choice over the alternative of a month in jail, while De Visdelou is to be sentenced tomorrow. De Marigny himself pleaded not guilty.

Meanwhile, deportation came nearer both for De Marigny and De Visdelou when a preliminary government letter "inviting" them to leave the Bahamas was followed today by an official order of deportation.

De Marigny's pretty wife, Nancy, was in bed on the verge of collapse, after her planned flight to Miami was thwarted yesterday because of lack of plane space.

Meantime, De Marigny said the reason he and the 19-year-old Nancy failed to remarry at the Catholic church on Monday as scheduled was because Bahamian law forbids marriage of a woman under 21 without consent of her parents.

Soviet Hopes to Draft 5 Million Nazis to Work, Says Editor

New York, Nov. 17 (AP).—John F. Chapman, foreign editor of the magazine Business Week, said today that Russia was already talking of "human reparations" from Germany after the war.

"The Russians," Chapman told the war conference of the Association of National Advertisers "are anxious to reconstruct that part of their country which has been devastated by war. This is an area about as long and as wide as the Eastern Coast of the United States, inland to the Alleghenies.

"Russian economists have tackled the problem with typical realism, and have estimated that it will take 10 million men about 10 years to rebuild the territory destroyed in German fighting.

"Again in the spirit of realism, the Russians are talking of demanding the aid of five million Germans for this work as a part of the peace settlement."

Henry A. Dinegar, director of the durable goods and products division of the Office of Civilian Requirements in Washington, told the meeting that the Government was relying on advertising to help prepare Americans for the critical period ahead when many products will be going back into limited production.

"The American consumer should be led to expect nothing more than the easing of limitations on production after the collapse of Germany," Dinegar said, adding that the OCR did not anticipate any early end of the European conflict.

Give War Bonds—the Present with a Future

WLB Seeks Leather Plant Strike Action

The War Labor Board yesterday asked President Roosevelt to take "appropriate action" to end a 10-day-old strike of 2000 Massachusetts tannery workers which has shut down 16 plants processing leather for war purposes in the Salem-Peabody area, it was learned.

The case was sent to the White House by WLB Public Member Wayne L. Morse.

Growing out of a jurisdictional dispute between the unaffiliated National Leather Workers Association and the CIO Fur and Leather Workers Union, the strike began November 8 when two members of the independent union were discharged.

Need Protection

The board believes, it is understood, that many workers, affiliated with the CIO union, would report to work, crossing picket lines established by the independent union, if Government protection were provided.

Board members doubted that a presidential appeal to return to work would have any effect on the strikers who have already ignored two board orders to abandon the strike.

One board official stated that the case represented as great a challenge to the Government and the no-strike policy as the coal case.

About 3500 workers are employed in 23 leather plants in the area. The bulk of the plants' work is on war orders.

Represented By CIO

Since 1939, the CIO has represented the workers in these plants and has signed a contract with the employers whcih has until December, 1944 to run.

Recently, groups of workers left the CIO and reconstituted the National Leather Workers Association which was in existence prior to 1939, but was absorbed in the CIO. The group took possession of CIO funds, a matter which is now before the courts for settlement.

On November 10, the Boston regional board of the WLB held a "show cause" hearing to determine why the strike should not be ended. An order to end the strike was issued November 11, but ignored.

The following day, the workers voted to stay out. On November 15, the national WLB ordered the strikers to return to their jobs, advising them that the matter would be referred to the President for action if they failed to return to work by yesterday.

WASPS Given Official Uniform and Insignia

By the Associated Press

The WASPS—civilian women pilots in the Army Air Forces—now have official uniforms and insignia, the Army reported Tuesday.

The dress uniform will be a jacket and skirt of Santiago blue wool gabardine, a beret of the same material, and a white cotton shirt with a black tie. The work uniform will be slacks and a short jacket of the blue gabardine, a blue shirt, and blue cotton coveralls. Other clothing includes a putty-colored gabardine trenchcoat with removable dark blue lining, and a black raincoat and beret cover, plus a black calfskin utility bag, black shoes and black calfskin gloves.

Writer Dies En Route From Nazi Prison

Montreal, Nov. 17 (AP).—Frederick Ramm, Norwegian journalist who wrote the first dispatch ever dated "North Pole" from the Amundsen dirigible Norge in 1926, died Monday at Odense, Denmark, while en route from a German concentration camp, the Norwegian information office announced today.

Ramm was arrested in 1941 for writing a patriotic article. When he fell ill of pneumonia he was released from the concentration camp to return to Norway.

Average Anthracite Delivery Fixed Over Control in District and 12 States

By Walter Wood

With many communities reporting a shortage of coal, Solid Fuels Administrator Harold L. Ickes today assumed control of retail deliveries of anthracite in the 12 Northeastern States and the District of Columbia.

Ickes' action, although it removes the emergency regulation put into effect during the recent mine strike, limits deliveries of hard coal to the average consumer to two tons. The control measure is rationing, in effect.

Although the Solid Fuels Administrator is known to disfavor coupon rationing of coal, the new distribution regulations require a written statement from purchasers as to their stock on hand and their annual requirements.

Supplies Are Meager

A survey conducted by the Associated Press showed coal supplies in dealers' yards were meager almost everywhere. Paradoxically, some communities reporting short fuel supplies look for the situation to be relieved when colder weather comes it was said. Mines which normally supply them, it was explained, are now sending virtually all their output to Great Lakes points in a race against winter's closing of the lakes to navigation. Once navigation ends, the output will be turned to other centers.

SFA's revised control regulations, giving retailers and consumers alike the responsibility for limiting the use of anthracite, became effective at 12:01 a. m. today.

Simultaneously the Office of Price Administration terminated the main provisions of its limitation order on deliveries and inventories in the same area.

The transfer of authority is being made, it was said, to centralize anthracite deliveries under one Government agency. WPB has approved the new setup.

What Is Permitted

The new anthracite regulations permit:

1. Delivery of 2 tons to consumers of 12 tons or less annually. Orders from consumers with less than 1 ton in their bins will be filled by dealers before they supply others. (Consumers will not be permitted to accept any delivery if they have 2 tons or more on hand.)

2. Delivery to consumers whose annual requirements exceed 12 tons of any quantity, provided the tonnage of the delivery added to the tonnage of solid fuel on hand, does not exceed a 30-day supply. Orders from consumers in this classification with less than 10 days' supply will be given a preference in delivery.

Heretofore, deliveries to household consumers have been limited to one ton.

The regulations apply in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and the District.

The controls apply to anthracite sizes generally known as broken, egg, stove, chestnut, pea and No. 1 buckwheat.

'Forts' Blasted 1348 Nazi Planes In Africa in Year

Algiers, Nov. 17 (AP).—United States Flying Fortresses in their first year of operations in the North African theater destroyed or damaged 1348 enemy planes, and dropped 26,101 tons of bombs on enemy targets in Tunisia, Libya, Sicily, Sardinia, Pantelleria, Italy, France, Germany and Greece.

An official announcement today said that 87 Fortresses were lost from all causes, and that the losses amounted to only sixty-seven one hundredths of 1 per cent of total sorties.

The big planes, operating under command of Brig. Gen. J. H. Atkinson of Dalhart, Tex., were credited with shooting down 775 enemy planes, probably destroying 294, and damaging 279 more since they made their first bombing raid from a North African base November 16, 1942.

Drafted Father Of 9 Feels Others Should Go First

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 17 (AP).—A mother and nine children, including 6-month-old twins, bade au revoir today to the head of the family who is off to war with the Navy.

Armand Beliveau, 34, whose children's ages range up to 11 years old, chose a naval career after Selective Service called him.

"I'm willing to do my part to end the war," he said. "But I feel there are a lot of younger men without families who could be taken before family homes like mine are disrupted."

Allotments for the support of his family will aggregate $240 a month.

23% Cut Proposed In Newsprint Use Early Next Year

Reductions in newsprint usage for the first quarter of 1944 ranging up to 28 per cent for larger newspapers, and amounting to a 23 per cent cut in total use, were recommended yesterday by the newspaper industry advisory committee of the War Production Board.

Harry M. Bitner, director of the WPB printing and publishing division, said the recommendations probably would be followed in the conservation order to be issued by the division.

Nazis Ordered to Use Every Working Hour

Stockholm, Nov. 17 (AP).—A new German labor decree stipulates that every working hour must be utilized, and that workers who take time off even for Christmas or New Year's must labor overtime to make up lost hours, the German press reported today.

Factory managers no longer may give workers time off after factories are bombed.

Md. U. Projects Vast Postwar Athletic Plan

Plans for a vast postwar construction program and enlargement of the athletic facilities at the University of Maryland in College Park, Md., were announced yesterday by Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university.

The program, to be carried out at an estimated cost of $800,000, include the construction of a new football stadium with a seating capacity of 50,000, a new men's field house to seat 12,000, and indoor swimming pool and an addition to the present women's field house.

The stadium will be built at a cost of between $350,000 and $400,000 and will be designed so that it can later be enlarged to seat between 80,000 and 90,000 people, Dr. Byrd said.

Site of the new stadium had not yet been selected, Byrd said but it was thought that the site back of the Ritchie Coliseum previously picked for the stadium would be too small. He indicated that the stadium might be built on the tract north of the campus bordering on Paint Branch west of the Baltimore blvd. "The site for all of the buildings is something the landscape engineers will have to determine in the future," Byrd said.

"We won't ask the State for a nickel for the stadium, since we plan to raise the money from alumni, students, perhaps by borrowing some, and may even get a part of it by a Federal grant," the president declared.

The indoor swimming pool, to be used by both men and women students, would occupy a separate building and cost an estimated $125,000. Byrd said the State would be asked to supply part of the money for the pool "since this is part of the physical education program for all students."

Construction of a new field house, to cost from $300,000 to $350,000, would solve "the problem of excluding the general public and many of the alumni from indoor athletics." The present Ritchie Coliseum's capacity is 5000 and Byrd said that seats for 4000 to 5000 more persons would be needed.

The president added that the university had decided on the new building rather than lengthening the coliseum, which "would be too long and narrow."

Byrd expressed the hope that the program would be started "as soon as we get the materials" after the war is ended. The construction would be in addition to the new $300,000 armory built for the Army specialized training program and the Reserve Officers' Training Corps at the university.

The armory, more than 300 feet long, provides space for four basketball games at once.

Only four definite cases of rabies were reported here from 1931 to the beginning of this year, but since that time public laboratories have found 85 rabid animals. This year so far 1700 persons have been bitten.

Rail Pay Boost Nears in Congress

in view of the Vinson warning, but in other quarters it was learned that enough votes had been counted on both the subcommittee and full Interstate Commerce Committee to approve the Truman resolution. The Colorado Democrat said Vinson's statement "will certainly make the Senate stop and look—that's a tough statement."

But Johnson told newsmen he could not follow Vinson's argument. "I am unable to understand why the sliding scale is not a violation of the 'Little Steel' formula and the across-the-board (8-cent-cent-an-hour) plan is a violation," he said. "The difference in money is only 18 million dollars. The difference in legal technicalities must be an awful lot."

Spokesman for the nonoperating employes have denied the 18 million dollar additional cost to the flat increase was sufficient to crack the stabilization line, and Senator Truman (Democrat), of Missouri, author of the resolution, has supported this view before the subcommittee. Truman has predicted the resolution would overwhelmingly pass the Senate. If that happens, House leaders say it would be difficult to stop in the House.

The one fact that apparently was giving some Senators pause was the plain note of warning in Vinson's letter that the Senate, by passing the Truman resolution, must be prepared to accept blame for a "hold the line" crack-up.

U. S. Transfers Envoy to Finland

Helsinki, Finland, Nov. 17 (AP).—Robert M. McClintock, second secretary and charge d'affaires of the American legation here, will go to Stockholm early in December, "on assignment" to the legation there. He will be replaced by Third Secretary George West, now stationed in Stockholm.

A spokesman for the Finnish foreign office said there was "no change for the worse" in Finnish-American relations as a result of the switch of the veteran diplomat. (In Washington, the transfer was described by the State Department as routine.)

Byrd Demands N.Y. Turkey Price Probe

By the Associated Press

Senator Byrd (Democrat) of Virginia yesterday asked Chester Bowles, price administrator, to investigate over-the-counter sales of sliced turkey in New York City at $5 a pound, which he said he observed on a recent visit.

Such a price was quoted to him at one delicatessen, he said.

"It is grossly unfair to the turkey producers to pay them only a fraction of the cost that the consumer must pay in order to obtain the product," he said. "This is one of the reasons for the dissatisfaction and resentment against many of the OPA rulings. It is also the reason for the so-called 'black markets' that are being conducted throughout the country."

Byrd said it was his understanding that the OPA would control retail prices as well as prices to the farmers, "but, in this instance, you either have not attempted to do so, or the price quoted is illegal, as I cannot conceive that the OPA would authorize a price of $5 per pound for sliced turkey to be consumed off the premises."

Baptist Convention Elects Drs. Pruden, Stith

Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden and Dr. M. Chandler Stith were formally installed last night as new president and executive secretary, respectively, of the District Convention of Baptist Churches. The exercises climaxed the sixty-sixth annual meeting of the convention at Petworth Baptist Church, 7th and Randolph sts. nw.

DR. PRUDEN

Dr. Pruden has been pastor of First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., since 1936, during which time more than 2000 new members have been received. The 142-year-old First Church is the local "mother" church of its denomination.

Dr. Pruden, 40, is a native of Chase City, Va., and was graduated from the University of Richmond in 1925. In 1928 he received his Th.M. degree from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., and attended the University of Edinburgh for a year. He was pastor of the First Church of Petersburg, Va., from 1931 to 1935, and in 1935 and 1936 both he and Mrs. Pruden taught in the University of Shanghai.

The new president is a member of the board of directors and former president of the Federation of Churches; is a director of the Chinese Community Church, and was on one of the speaking "teams" for the famous National Christian Mission in 1940-41.

Dr. Stith, 39, who succeeds Dr. Rufus W. Weaver as executive secretary, has been pastor of Brookland Baptist Church since 1937. He came here from Jacksonville, Fla., and is a graduate of Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. He has been particularly active in local Baptist missionary work.

Mrs. Nellie M. Yaden was re-elected president of the Baptist Woman's Missionary Society of the District at yesterday's sessions. Mrs. Carlton N. Long was named first vice president; Mrs. A. W. Walford, second vice president; Mrs. H. N. Hammond, third vice president; Mrs. A. Fauer, recording secretary; Mrs. J. D. Torrey, treasurer; Mrs. L. A. Jones, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. W. E. Mooney, statistical secretary.

Women Lawyers Urge Child Placing Licenses

The Women's Bar Association of the District yesterday indorsed a bill, now before the House, which would compel child-placing agencies to obtain licenses from the District government.

The association was addressed by Madam Wei Tao-ming, wife of the Chinese Ambassador, and by Judge Marion Harron of the U. S. Tax Appeals Board who spoke on postwar problems.

Gen. Winship Enters Walter Reed Hospital

Maj. Gen. Blanton Winship, former Governor of Puerto Rico, is in Walter Reed Hospital for treatment, it was learned yesterday, but his condition was described as "not serious."

Winship, retired for several years but back on active duty since the war as a member of the Inter-American Defense Board, will be 74 next Tuesday. The nature of his illness was not disclosed, but inquiries at the War Department brought the reply that it was minor.

Aviation Art Exhibit Will Be Opened by Knox

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox will open an exhibition of naval aviation paintings at the National Gallery Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. At the same time, the entire collection of 101 paintings will be presented to him by the Abbott Laboratories, for the Navy's permanent collection.

Out-of-Court Settlement Hinted In Plant Paternity Case

Litigation Involves $500,000 Fund Left By Shipping Magnate

New London, Conn., Nov. 17 (AP).—The Superior Court hearing on whether 14-year-old Peter Bennett Plant is the son of Constance Bennett and Philip Plant or an adopted English boy adjourned late today after indications that an out-of-court settlement had been reached.

Reconvening the court after an afternoon of conferences, Judge James E. Murphy immediately adjourned it until 10 a. m. tomorrow without comment.

But it was reliably reported that attorneys for both sides had submitted a tentative settlement to the judge for his consideration overnight.

The terms of the reported settlement could not be learned.

After a brief session this morning, the lawyers in the case went into conference at 2 p. m., emerging near 6 to retire again with Judge Murphy. That meeting ended at 6:45, and soon after Judge Murphy reconvened court and announced adjournment.

If a settlement was reached today which is acceptable to the court, it will end litigation over a $500,000 trust fund left by Commodore Morton Plant, millionaire shipping magnate, for his son, Philip.

The commodore's will provided that if Philip died without issue, the fund was to go to his mother, Mrs. Mae Hayward of New York.

Trustees of the estate have contended that Philip did die without issue, charging that young Peter is not his son but an English boy adopted by Miss Bennett after she started divorce proceedings against Philip, her second husband.

A year ago, the Groton probate court agreed with that contention, finding that Peter had been adopted. The current action is an appeal from that decision brought for the boy, on the grounds that he is, as Miss Bennett maintains, her son and Philip's and therefore entitled to share in the trust fund.

In the event that a settlement has been reached, the appeal may be withdrawn and the decision of the probate court thereby allowed to stand.

CONSTANCE BENNETT

Hill Quits Greek Post To Assist Envoy

New York, Nov. 17 (AP).—The Greek War Relief Association announced the resignation today of Harry A. Hill, executive vice president, to become special assistant to the Ambassador to Greece.

Hill, who had held the position since January 1, will be stationed in Cairo. He is in Washington at present. Hill's successor is Darrell O. Hibbard, former general secretary of the YMCA in Athens, Greece.

Roy H. Wilson, OWI Employe, Killed in Beirut

Roy H. Wilson, 32, formerly an employe of the OWI here, as reproduction editor, was killed in Beirut, Syria, Tuesday night, the OWI announced last night.

According to reports reaching Washington he fell down a stairway in a blackout.

Mr. Wilson came to Washington in March, 1942, and joined the OWI staff. He was assigned to Outpost Service and October 14 of this year went to Beirut in charge of reproduction. He is survived by his widow and a 2½-year-old son who live in New Castle, Del.

He will be buried today in the American Christian Cemetery, Beirut.

Funeral Procession—with 130,000,000 mourners

Just a passenger car that's all washed up? No . . . a part of the national defense out of action—a loss affecting 130,000,000 Americans.

That car represented a badly needed and painfully scarce commodity—mileage. The ten or twenty or thirty thousand miles it might have given were destroyed by neglect. It was allowed to wear out before its time.

The owner lost, and every single American lost with him. And we just can't afford losses like that. For a car that's worn out is no longer replaceable from the production line. In fact, of all the country's rapidly-aging cars, not a single one can be spared, for each loss adds to the burdens of already overtaxed transportation lines.

You see, the mileage left in our cars, our trucks, and our buses is vital. It has GOT to see us through—or else.

You who own a car are entrusted with a part of a national asset—the mileage still left to America. It must be guarded as vigilantly as we guard our freedom.

Will you take the necessary steps to prevent another little defeat in America's battle for existence? Then drive your car to a service station . . . any service station.

Have the service man check it—for brakes, for the need of chassis lubrication or fresh oil—even for the need of water in your battery. Let him see that old, burned-out spark plugs are not wasting precious gasoline, that your automatic choke is working properly. Have him prepare your car for winter with the proper lubricants. Let him provide the anti-freeze that guards against a cracked cylinder head or engine block from sudden bitter weather.

And—especially—have him look to your tires. Their remaining life is priceless. Save it by fixing cuts or bruises; have well-worn tires recapped before the carcass becomes useless.

These things can be done well by any Tydol service station . . . or by the service station of one of our competitors.

For it's not so important who earns the small cost involved. It now matters only that your car remain in the fight your country is making for the things free men hold dear.

You'll see to it, won't you?

Naval Hospital at Bethesda To Graduate 38 Gray Ladies

Rear Admiral C. W. Bunker, commanding officer of the National Naval Medical Center and Capt. John Harper, commanding officer of the U. S. Naval Hospital, will be the principal speakers today when 38 Gray Ladies are graduated at 3:30 p. m. at the Naval Hospital, Bethesda, Md.

Certificates will be presented by Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, chairman of the Gray Ladies Unit, U. S. Naval Hospital, and Mrs. George Angus Garrett, chairman of the Volunteer Special Services for the District Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Music will be provided by the United States Navy School of Music under the direction of H. E. C. Weber. The invocation will be read by Lieut. (jg) Daniel Fraher, USNR and the blessing will be given by Lieut. (jg) C. B. Robinson.

Red Cross Asks Help

The D. C. Red Cross yesterday called for additional volunteers to fill an increased quota of .400,000 surgical dressings pledged per month next year. Volunteer workers may make arrangements by calling Hobart 6800.

Mrs. Brown Harbold, chairman of dressings, also announced that the All Saints Church unit is conducting a drive to recruit volunteers from the neighborhood for both surgical dressings work and assembling 1600 comfort kits for the armed forces.

Taxes Planned to Drive Liquor From Storage

By the Associated Press

Twin moves to drive liquor out of warehouses and the "gangster element" out of the whisky business developed here yesterday.

On top of Senate approval of a $10,000 fund for a committee investigation of the business, the Office of Price Administration said a growing "ganster element" is complicating the liquor price and supply problem, and Chairman George (Democrat) of Georgia of the Senate Finance Committee announced that his group will consider a plan to impose excise levies on liquor held in bonded warehouses more than four years.

Senator Van Nuys (Democrat) of Indiana, chairman of a Judiciary Subcommittee named to investigate the liquor situation, has asserted that big distilling interests are creating a scarcity by holding good liquor off the market. He said taxes are evaded thereby, and consumers are compeled to resort to black markets.

Untaxed Up to 8 Years

George did not relate his tax announcement to the current reports of hoarded whisky, but imposition of the tax would have the effect of driving at least some liquor out for consumption. At present liquor may be held in a bonded warehouse for eight years before the Federal tax of $8 a gallon applies.

Van Nuys said part of the shortage resulted from holding liquor in bonded storage in the hope of higher prices. The tax would make such storage expensive on older whisky.

George estimated the tax would bring in one billion dollars revenue next year.

An OPA official said his agency is working out plans to combat a criminal element which has seized on the shortage to stage an encore of the hijack and blackjack era.

OPA said its program must remain secret for the time being, although it obviously involves some strengthening of the agency's slim enforcement staff, which now numbers two-thirds of an inspector per county.

Hard Hitting Squad Sought

When it became evident recently that the thug element was moving into meat, gasoline and other fields, OPA asked J. Edgar Hoover to recommend a tough boss to build up a hard-hitting OPA enforcement squad. The Federal Bureau of Investigation chief did so, but to date the job hasn't been filled.

The liquor industry, meanwhile, through Owsley Brown of Louisville, Ky., president of the Distilled Spirits Institute, announced it welcomed the congressional investigation.

Brown's statement said:

"We of the distilling industry are convinced that the Judiciary Committee investigation will serve the double purpose of having the American consumer know the truth about the whisky shortage and in making clear that no other industry has cooperated more effectively with the Government in the production of war-essential materials. At the same time the industry continues to be the greatest source of governmental income from excise taxes.

"We are hopeful that the real truth about the dwindling whisky stocks now in Government bonded warehouses will be revealed by the Senate inquiry, and that confusing impressions may be eradicated."

Fascism No More Imperialistic Than Our Rule, Says Nye

Chicago, Nov. 17 (AP).—Declaring that fascism "is no more imperialistic than any other type of government," Senator Nye (Republican) of North Dakota said today that even Germany and Japan should be permitted to decide what type of government they want after the war.

"Every people on earth should be permitted to decide what type of government they will adopt following the war," he said at a press conference.

"Even Germany and Japan?" he was asked.

"Yes, even Germany and Japan," Nye affirmed. "If Germany wants a Fascist government, I would certainly give them the right, but I can't conceive that they'd want it."

Nye said he would favor organization of a third party "in the absence of any guarantee on the part of the two major parties against alliance with other powers that would in the leastwise jeopardize our own sovereignty."

"OH, THE MOONLIGHT'S FAIR TONIGHT ALONG THE WABASH"

Back around the turn of the century, the golden notes of this memorable melody made another world around the turn of the river for romantic drifters in love's canoe... It lives on because its composer wrote into its refrain a treasurable appeal singularly its own...

About the same time this song reached the morning glory horn of the then new gramophone, Christian Heurich's Senate Beer was setting a new tempo for the palate appeal of malt beverages.

Senate BEER & Ale

The notes of the score "lock-in" the poignant sweetness of the melody . . . and small bubble carbonation "locks-in" the grain-rich goodness of Senate Beer and Senate Ale. Each taste of Senate is a re-creation of remembered taste thrills. For that beer thirst, say Senate first!

Mankind Now More Altruistic, Washington U. Graduates Told

The war is producing a more altruistic attitude in mankind, President Cloyd H. Marvin of George Washington University told 200 graduates, including 65 medical students, at the first fall convocation in Lisner Auditorium last night.

"In the tomorrows men shall know that labor and material things are less than human spirit, and that government is less than humanity," Dr. Marvin stated.

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, retired superintendent of District schools, received the honorary degree of doctor of laws. He was cited as an "author, teacher and administrator who served since 1920 with expertness and devotion the noteworthy educational system of the District of Columbia."

Trustee Gilbert Grosvenor also presented the honorary title of professor emeritus to Dr. Harry Hampton Donnally of the Medical School faculty, who came to the university in 1905 as an instrutor in bacteriology and pathology. He served in that capacity until 1923, when he was named professor of pediatrics.

Following the cap and gown procession into the new million dollar Lisner Auditorium, music was furnished by an ensemble of the National Symphony Orchestra.

The marshal of the university, Dean Elmer Louis Kayser, announced the convocation, while the Rev. Charles Stewart McKenzie, minister of the Western Presbyterian Church, delivered the invocation.

In his address to the graduates, Dr. Marvin declared, "Where men once said, 'I will make this article for money,' they are now more likely to say, 'I will make this article to help someone live better, and because it does help I shall receive an economic and social return'."

Graduates with distinction were Allan Bertram Coleman and Samuel Dennis Loube, medical students, and Max Solow, who received a bachelor of electrical engineering degree. Leslie Powell Dryden, Sydney Feldman and Florence Guild Nixon of the Junior College were graduated with honors.

Chapple to Speak At Music Forum

Stanley Chapple, English conductor and lecturer, will speak at the National Symphony Forum, tomorrow at 8 p. m. at the Phillips Memorial Gallery, 1600 21st st. nw. He will discuss the Passacaglia and Concerto forms, using the Bach C Minor, the Brahms Fourth Symphony, the Passacaglias and the Mozart and Brahms violin concerti as illustrations.

It also was announced that on Sunday Nathan Milstein and the National Symphony will present the Brahms Concerto at Constitution Hall.

Three Changes Made in District School Setup

Expansion of the District school system to include a Department of Curriculum, coordination of the elementary schools and teachers colleges, and special administration of classes for handicapped children was moved for yesterday by the Board of Education.

Appointing Dr. Carroll R. Reed, former assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum, to fill the post of first assistant superintendent in charge of elementary schools, replacing Robert L. Haycock, the new superintendent of schools, the board also named him director of a new department of curriculum. He will continue supervision of courses of study in the schools until a head for the newly created department is chosen.

Two Made Professors

At the same time, the board promoted two directors of instruction in the elementary schools to professorships in education at the two local teachers colleges in a move toward coordination of the work of the two. Pointing out that many of the college graduates go directly to elementary teaching, Supt. Haycock named Miss Ida M. Lynn professor in education at Wilson Teachers College and Miss Willa C. Burch to a similar post at Miner Teachers College. Their former posts will be abolished.

In a third move to broaden the present school system, the board authorized Superintendent Haycock to organize a new department for administration of classes for handicapped children. Directors to head such work in both divisions will be chosen at a future meeting.

A more liberal policy in granting graduation certificates to senior high school students in special categories was foreseen in a report presented to the board yesterday for action December 1.

The proposed changes in graduation standards were first considered last May, when it came to board attention that youths who had spent a large part of their senior year preparing for West Point and Annapolis examinations at special schools were being refused high school graduation certificates. According to the recommendations of the report, these students may graduate, providing they fill certain designated requirements.

Others Affected

Others to be affected by the change of policy include students who wish to complete graduation before the official time because of employment, military service or college entrance dates; those who wish to present tutoring credits toward graduation; those who apply for admission to a District school after the beginning of their senior year, and those who are admitted to a college before they have completed graduation requirements.

The board also voted to seek Lanham Act funds for the proposed 24-room Patterson School on a new site to replace the old location which military officials had termed a "menace" to planes taking off from Bolling Field.

USO Clubs Plan Day-Long Fete On Thanksgiving

Plans for the USO Thanksgiving entertainment of Negro servicemen were announced yesterday. Staff workers and hostesses at the USO clubs will be on duty all day in the YMCA at 1816 12th st. nw., and the YWCA at 901 Rhode Island ave nw. The program will begin at 9 a. m., with half an hour of song and worship, followed by refreshments and a get-acquainted social until 11 a. m. Both clubs will join at the YWCA for a dance from 3 until 4:30 p. m., with an open-house reception following from 6 to 8:30 p. m.

Dancing will be resumed at 9:30 until midnight at the YWCA, with refreshments and novelty entertainment offered.

America's largest department store reports to America's best-read magazine section

HERE'S WHAT America's largest department store says about Sunday newspaper magazine section advertising:

"We've had 5 years' experience in the magazine supplements . . . they are excellent mediums for goods universally usable. Such merchandise has shown magnificent returns."

In the high-income city markets where Parade circulates, advertising in Parade sells goods, because Parade has the highest family readership of any magazine section, or any magazine. And that's because Parade plans picture-stories around individual people who make news live.

Parade showed you, for example, how our city boys are helping farmers to grow and harvest crops.

TYPICAL boys from the city proved, in this Parade story, that they are eager and fast learners.

YOU SAW them getting the hang of hilling potatoes under the farmer's knowing eye.

IN NO TIME, they were handling cows, harnessing horses, with the skill of veterans.

PARADE PICTURE-STORIES almost "talk". That's why people reach for Parade first and read it through and through. And they read the advertisements, too! A Sunday feature of this paper.

Vast U. S. Holdings Alarm Byrd Group

Government Now Owns One-Fifth Of Country, Economy Unit Declares

Viewing with "apprehension" the Government's ownership of 383,600,533 acres—one fifth of the land area of the United States—the Byrd Economy Committee demanded last night that liquidation of surplus holdings be started immediately.

It declared that no central agency keeps track of "how much land the Government owns, where it is, or how much it costs."

In its report to Congress, the joint committee on reduction of nonessential Federal expenditures, headed by Senator Byrd (Democrat) of Virginia, asserted that the area owned by the Government equals in size the combined areas of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Ohio, Alabama, Kentucky, and Indiana.

"Alarming Increase"

The Departments of Interior and Agriculture control 95 per cent of the total in grazing land, forest reservations and public domain.

"The committee has watched with apprehension the alarming increase in land acquisition in the last few years," the report asserted. "While the committee recognizes that much of this acquisition has been for purposes connected with the national emergency, it nevertheless finds that excessive amounts of land have been purchased by the Government since 1938."

The acquisition, by removing the properties from State tax rolls, is causing "growing concern in many States," the committee found, and added:

"Naturally, as the Government acquires more and more property, the tax load on the local taxpayers directly increases. This anomalous situation is further complicated by the fear, expressed in many States, of the postwar effect that the probable dumping of large tracts and parcels will have on local real estate values."

It recommended:

1. That Government agencies begin immediately to liquidate surplus holdings not needed for Federal activities.

2. That consideration be given to the feasibility of assigning the functions of appraising, acquiring, abstracting, recording and disposing of such real estate to a central unit in an already established Government agency to prevent duplication and waste of funds.

14 Hotels Purchased

The report said 43,181,183 acres of Federal land was being used for war purposes on March 30, 1943.

The War and Navy Departments, the committee found, have purchased 14 hotels at an estimated cost of about 15 million dollars during the war, the former paying $13,028,611 for 12 of them.

The War Department has been paying $11,249,011 annual rental for 545 hotels and cottages, and the Navy $2,560,324.33 for 42, not including the 69 rented by the Coast Guard for $477,378, it said.

"The estimated tax levy on Federal real estate, based on local 1937 rates, would have been about ninety-one million dollars, of which over 50 per cent would have been allocated to the District of Columbia, New York, California, Arizona, Montana, Massachusetts, Nevada, Pennsylvania, Washington and Illinois," the report continued.

It asserted the Government owned only 25 per cent of the District of Columbia, seat of the Capital, but 78 per cent of Nevada, 68 per cent of Utah, 60 per cent of Idaho, 45 per cent of Wyoming, 44 per cent of Oregon, 42 per cent of Arizona, 41 per cent of California.

Crops Thrive in Bed Of Old C. & O. Canal

Williamsport, Md., Nov. 17 (Special).—At least one victory garden in the Cumberland Valley defied the drouth of the last summer. Harvey Brant and Samuel Shank, both local residents, in casting about for a favorable garden site they hit upon the idea of raising their vegetables in the bed of the old C. & O. Canal, adajacent to their homes.

The canal bed, with its natural moist subsoil, defined the elements, and peas, beets, corn and potatoes flourished. The Brant family had corn on the cob until a few weeks ago, while Shank raised 16 bushels of potatoes on a small plot.

Marine Flier Downs 3 Planes For Total of 21

(Marine Corps Dispatch Distributed by the Associated Press.)

Munda, New Georgia, Oct. 4 (Delayed).—Marine Maj. Gregory Boyington, former Flying Tiger now commanding a Marine fighter unit, today shot down his nineteenth, twentieth and twenty-first Japanese planes to become one of the war's leading aces.

Fifteen are official Marine credits. The other six he downed while flying with the American Volunteer Group in China.

The 30-year-old veteran shot down five Zeros in a single engagement on September 16.

Boyington scored his three victories today within sight of the powerful Jap airdrome at Kahili, Bougainville Island, when he and his wingman, Marine First Lieut. William N. Case, battled 22 Zeros. Lieutenant Case shot down a fourth plane before the two Marines were forced to abandon the fight for lack of gasoline.

Najera Warns Against Postwar Business Boom

Pittsburgh, Nov. 17 (AP).—Mexican Ambassador Francisco Castillo Najera said tonight prevention of a postwar business boom is imperative for the well-being of western hemisphere economy.

Economic cooperation of the United States with Latin America, "with the certainty that returns shall be larger than those obtainable elsewhere," was urged by the Ambassador, before the Tri-State Inter-American Institute.

Brig. Gen. John N. Greely, military analyst in the Office of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, told the Institute he believed "Germany is going to lose the war in a year or two more," but warned "the war effort must consume almost all of our strength."

35-Mile Speed Has Failed to Save, Bus Line Asserts

Detroit, Nov. 17 (AP).—Great Lakes Greyhound Lines, in a brief filed with the Regional War Labor Board, says the 35-mile-an-hour wartime speed limit has failed to save rubber or gasoline to any appreciable extent.

The brief, made public today by the board, declares further that the speed limit has caused a "mental disturbance" among bus drivers with the result that accidents have been increased instead of reduced. It also has caused added wear on motors and equipment, the company claims.

The company made its assertions in connection with board proceedings on the subject of a driver's bonus.

"To Their Health"

Oranges and other citrus fruits are in greater demand today than ever before. As an abundant source of Vitamin C, they are invaluable in maintaining the health of America's fighters in the field and on the industrial home-front.

Union Pacific serves a large part of the Western territory which produces great quantities of citrus fruits. Modern refrigerator cars provide the protective transportation that keeps these fruits in orchard-fresh condition.

Thus, a transportation service of commercial value in peace-time has become even more essential in war-time. To guard America's health through supplying proper foods might be considered almost as important as the transportation of armament and troops; another job that the railroads are doing efficiently and whole-heartedly.

Judicial Paradox

Representative Hobbs, we understand, intends to introduce into the House today a bill designed to prevent in future any such anomaly of justice as that which occurred the other day in the local District Court in the case of one Haywood Wilborn, a young Negro charged with housebreaking and an attempt at rape. In this case we had the amazing paradox of a judge who, while directing a verdict of "not guilty," stated his belief that such a verdict was nothing short of "a miscarriage of justice."

The principal evidence against young Wilborn was a confession signed by himself. The identification by the young woman upon whom the rape had been attempted was not positive. But while apparently fully satisfied of the truth of the confession, Justice Pine said he was obliged to rule it inadmissible, because of a lapse of some 14 hours between Wilborn's arrest and his arraignment in the Juvenile Court. On this point Justice Pine was following a decision of the Supreme Court handed down early this year by Mr. Justice Frankfurter. That decision involved the case of three Tennessee moonshiners named McNabb who had been convicted on their own confession of second-degree murder in the slaying of a Federal revenue agent. The conviction had been sustained by an appellate court. The Supreme Court, however, ruled that confessions obtained in cases where the prisoner has not been taken immediately before a magistrate or commissioner or some other judicial officer must be ignored by the courts

Evidently the purpose behind this ruling is to obviate any possibility of unjust conviction through confessions extorted by devices familiar to all police reporters and usually indicated by them under the euphemistic gerund, "grilling." There is no doubt that the penchant of the police craft in general for these short cuts to justice holds serious potential dangers to human liberty. In the past few decades we have seen an extension of the third-degree technique from the criminal to the political field, and some police organizations like the GPU and the Gestapo have developed it into something like a science.

Nevertheless, the Haywood Wilborn case illustrates the absurdity of attempting to eliminate police abuses by the application of some judicial rule of thumb. In this case there was apparently no indication that the confession was obtained by threat or duress. Moreover, it begins to appear that the Supreme Court in attempting to curb one evil may have created another. Rape is a very serious crime. It is scarcely so rare in Washington that the police should be thus wantonly balked and discouraged in their efforts to suppress it. This, it seems, was not the first case of attempted rape in which this Haywood Wilborn has been involved. That he should be turned loose without even a trial because of a bare technicality is something to shock even Mr. Bumble.

Negro Housing

The controversy over sites for Negro housing in the Washington area is symptomatic of a truly desperate situation. Almost no housing for Negroes is available, and hundreds of families are living under frightful conditions. The National Housing Authority has programmed 3000 units for construction in this area, 2200 to be built in the District and the remainder in Virginia and Maryland suburbs. But land for the public projects is just now being acquired. It will be months before the 1000 units assigned to public agencies become available, and there seems to be no assurance as to when private builders will complete the major part of the program assigned to them.

Some indication as to the inadequacy of this program may be found in the fact that more than 2000 families have applied to the National Capital Housing Authority for space in the forthcoming projects. The NCHA will build only 740 units. With the funds now on hand, it can meet only a small fraction of the urgent demand for Negro housing.

A sample of what this problem means to the community came to light this week in connection with a juvenile delinquency case. The lad who has run afoul of the law comes from a family of 10 living in one miserable room in a shack that affords little protection against cold. Moreover, the family is scheduled to be evicted because it is overcrowding its wretched quarters. The possibility of finding another house or even part of a house is almost nil. Here is stark evidence that the community is falling down in its basic responsibility to look after the welfare of its citizens.

There is the negative approach of checking up on children who become delinquent and of evicting families who overcrowd their hovels. Yet the city fails to provide an environment in which people can live above the level at which crime is encouraged and the community health menaced. Washington has been shamefully negligent in meeting this obligation and Congress should be made to realize that fact when the new NCHA bill comes up for approval.

Better Teamwork

In a formal sense the Secretary of State in consenting to address Congress today on the work he accomplished in Moscow is not establishing a precedent. In our history several distinguished members of the President's Cabinet have appeared before Congress. However, Mr. Hull's predecessors have spoken in Congress on ceremonial rather than on business occasions. Ever since the House declined to allow Alexander Hamilton to make his historic report on public credit in person, Conrgess has been content with reports from Cabinet officers in writing. Thus Mr. Hull is really breaking new ice in addressing the members of Congress on a diplomatic matter of high moment which has not yet come to full fruition.

The precedent is altogether to be welcomed. It has long been the complaint that members of Congress are kept too much in the dark on the doings of the Executive. This newspaper has itself expressed the complaint as injurious to good government. After all, the Senate is expected to ratify the work of the Executive when that work is consummated in treaties with foreign nations. Logically, therefore, a state of confidential relationship should exist between the President and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. If it is impossible to keep the Senators apprised of the progress of treaty making, at least they should be equipped with relevant data with which to come to intelligent conclusions on the subject matter of treaties. And what applies to foreign relations applies equally to domestic affairs. It is high time that an effort were made on both sides of Pennsylvania avenue to develop a liaison which would oil a system of government made cumbersome only by the addiction to conflict on the part of both President and Congress.

For the weakness of this liaison is not entirely the fault of a jealous Executive, as is sometimes represented, Congress itself is also to blame. No doubt succeeding Presidents would have followed George Washington's example and taken counsel with the Senate if the Senate had been more circumspect with George Washington. As every schoolboy knows, the Senate gratuitously put Washington into a rage over the Jay Treaty. Congress could have had Secretary Hamilton's appearance for the asking. In this case the House was afraid of the redoubtable Secretary's powers as an expositor and a debater, and feared the result in executive encroachment. This has led to a curious paradox. Congress has never ceased to complain about being kept uninformed, yet it has resisted several efforts to provide opportunities for members of the President's Cabinet to appear before Congress, apparently out of an instinctive apprehension of loss of legislative influence.

Now Congress is being given another chance to promote oral intercommunication simultaneously with Mr. Hull's appearance. The chance is provided by a bill submitted by Representative Kefauver. Under the Kefauver plan the House rules would be amended to provide for a "question period" for heads of departments and independent agencies. We find nothing but merit in the proposal. There may be some objection that a "question period" would be the opening wedge to transform our presidential system into a parliamentary system on the British model. But only the most hidebound legislator could enter such an objection. It was not the intent of the founding fathers when they set up our system of the separation of powers to keep the Executive and Legislature in watertight compartments. On the contrary, there was the expectation that the two branches would develop consultation.

Indeed as far back as 1789, when the Treasury Department was established, provision was made for oral reports to Congress by the Secretary of the Treasury. As we have already said, it was only a fear of Hamiltonian ratiocination that set the precedent of written reports. Accordingly the precisians of constitutionalism need have no fear that the Kefauver proposal would introduce any alien usage into our government system. His plan would do just the opposite—it would restore a usage which is necessary on grounds of elementary common sense. Consultation with executive officers would do more to educate Congress and the Nation than any other proposal we can think of. It would thus make for good as well as efficient government.

Begging For Trouble

If the railroad brotherhoods win their demands by taking them to Congress, every other labor organization will feel impelled to follow suit. One might suppose this to be a burden Congress would eschew. For elected representatives are peculiarly vulnerable to group pressures and reprisals. This is why the execution of policies laid down by the Legislature is vested in an executive branch of the Government.

Yet we are now confronted with the spectacle of Congress trying to implement on its own account the wage-stabilization policy it enacted into law in October, 1942. Fred M. Vinson was appointed Director of Economic Stabilization for the precise purpose of doing this job. So far he has done it very well indeed. In the case of the railroad brotherhoods he has ruled that their demand for a general 8-cent-an-hour increase in pay would violate the stabilization program. It was a tough decision—one which has brought upon his head the wrath of the railroad workers. But it is Judge Vinson's difficult responsibility to make just such tough decisions.

He is not going to be able to make them if either the President or Congress overrides his authority. This is the crux of the matter. Quite apart from the merits of Judge Vinson's ruling in the railroad case, there is the vital consideration that Congress cannot reverse him without ending his effectiveness. In this sense at least, it is undeniable that a congressional grant of the railway wage demands would, as Judge Vinson warned, automatically break the "Little Steel" formula and force an abandonment of it for all other groups.

Judge Vinson is in the position of a military commander. He is, indeed, a general on the economic front. It is his function to carry out the basic strategy or policy set for him by the high command. To do this he must be permitted reasonable discretion. And he must be given firm support. If Congress usurps his function, it will be saddling itself with a kind of problem which no legislature is capable of solving. This latest move of Congress can only be likened to a proposal to equip General Eisenhower with a committee of Congress to give him military orders.

Subsidy Fight

Without doubt many abuses and inequities have developed in connection with the system of subsidy price control. Congress should be on the alert to detect and insist upon the correction of such abuses. But remedial action need not entail abolition of limited subsidies giving marginal producers a reasonable incentive to maintain or increase their output and preventing a general rise in the prices charged consumers for basic food products. Unfortunately the subsidy fight now raging on the Hill is not being conducted along rational lines.

The Post has consistently taken a middle ground on this subsidy issue. We feel that a selective limited use of subsidies to encourage the production of essential farm products is justified. However, recognizing the political dangers inherent in all subsidy systems, we have supported proposals to limit total subsidy payments. We have, moreover, been more than lukewarm toward the so-called rollback subsidies that were introduced as a sop to organized labor in the vain hope of staving off demands for wage increases. At the same time we realize that the indiscriminate banning of all subsidies on food products would deal a well-nigh fatal blow to the existing price-control system.

Some of the presumed opponents of subsidies are evidently rather muddled in their thinking on the subject. For example, spokesmen for livestock interests simultaneously denounce packer subsidies and complain because the Administration has fallen down in its efforts to maintain support prices for livestock. Apparently, these critics are quite unaware that a price-support program which necessitates employment of public funds to keep prices from declining below a certain level is just another kind of subsidy. Further elements of confusion have been injected into the subsidy controversy by Louis Bromfield, novelist-farmer, who told the Senate Committee on Agriculture that the controversy over Federal subsidies is a manifestation of revolt against the "Germanic theory" that the citizen is the servant of the state. We can only say in reply that Mr. Bromfield is a better novelist than historian and call his attention to the fact that this Nation has had subsidies in one form or another throughout its history.

The Atlanta Journal recently published a brilliant editorial refuting the silly allegation that subsidies are un-American. It pointed out that the first Congress approved a shipping subsidy, that governmental subsidies helped to build our transcontinental railways, while protective tariffs have provided an indirect subsidy for industry. Coming a little nearer to present times the Atlanta Journal listed the imposing amounts of the subsidies paid to cotton farmers during the years from 1933 to the outbreak of war. The AAA's subsidization program has not been denounced as un-American by spokesmen for the cotton farmers. Why, then, do subsidies suddenly become un-American when they are employed in connection with a price control designed to keep down retail prices of food? We leave that puzzle to Mr. Bromfield.

DARK EVENING

In Western cities where the evening star
Leans on the wide sea marshes and the twilight
Falling toward Asia; in hemlock valleys
Folded among mountains—
—the shadow of peril falls.

In wild pastures of the lingering grass
Where the last deer feed and the widening furrow
Swells eastward over the Rockies—
—the peril gathers in darkness.

We will go to the cold mountain in the dark silence,
Name and remember the long days
With peace in the land; how the dreams came at waking
And the labors of living were as light and shadow,
With the voices mingling
Of the loved and honored, the people of cities and country.
And the green forest folding in, and the calls
Of the birds finding us. And most of all
How the sun was in the long day on the wide green land.

Now there is peril here,
It lies on the heart and the hand is ready.
And the twilight we have come to
Is the remembrance of sweet and beautiful things.

America At War

By Selden C. Menefee

West Coast Manpower

THE WAR MANPOWER program now under way on the West Coast has shown that a lot of water can be squeezed out of alleged labor shortages.

In Seattle, where a few months ago industry claimed that it would need 35,000 additional workers by the end of the year, that figure has now been scaled down by at least two-thirds. The War Labor Board's wage increase for Boeing workers, plus Boeing's policy of decentralizing 40 per cent or more of its operations in smaller cities around the State, contributed to this; but the new manpower program has been primarily responsible for the improvement.

The fact is, there was no manpower program worthy of the name on the West Coast until little more than a month ago. The original job-freezing order was almost completely ineffective because it had no teeth.

In one Seattle shipyard the turnover rate has ranged from 2 to 3 per cent a week throughout the prewar and war period. It fell off slightly during the first week of job "freezing," but the next week was back to normal.

Shipyard Operators

The Seattle shipyard operators virtually ignored the prohibition against hiring workers who had just quit other war jobs. And when the State director of the Manpower Commission asked the yards to cut employment by 10 per cent before September 15, they ignored the order on the plea that they were not given 30 days' notice in writing. This despite the fact that hoarding of labor in the Seattle shipyards has long been a local scandal.

Early in October Seattle's shipyards were definitely ordered to make the cut of 10 per cent, or 14,000 workers, effective immediately. Actually, few workers were laid off, but the United States Employment Service, now in full control of hiring, sent no more workers to the shipyards, so that employment fell off rapidly. So far the evidence seems to be that efficiency has actually been improved by the cut.

Under the new scheme a WPB Area Production Urgency Committee was set up to determine which industries were most important to the war effort, and a WMC Manpower Priorities Committee organized to establish priorities accordingly. In Seattle the two committees were identical except for the chairmen.

All available men and women were sent to the Boeing Aircraft plant, which had top priority because of the need for Flying Fortresses. Boeing had claimed a shortage of 9000 workers. It soon became apparent, however, that the aircraft plants lacked facilities for absorbing the workers as rapidly as they could be supplied. Applicants were told that the night shift was being abolished, and that jobs were available only on the swing shift. Late in October only riveters and buckers were being hired.

Labor Shortage

Labor alleged that Boeing had used the labor shortage as an argument for a 10-hour day, which the union turned down; and for an outright labor draft, which present developments indicate is not yet necessary. Shipyard workers are still reluctant to transfer to Boeing even at the higher wage rates; even skilled men have to enter at the beginners' rate, and advancement to the higher brackets is slow. But the new manpower policy is getting results for Boeing—despite these complaints.

Of course, there are "bugs" in the program. Labor was critical because it had no part in the new setup. Employers, in Seattle and elsewhere, complain that nobody knows where the authority of the WPB leaves off and that of the WMC begins. This confusion has delayed the setting up of the manpower program in San Francisco and other cities.

But at least it has been demonstrated that our manpower supply can be more efficiently utilized. Frank Hobbs, president of Pacific Huts, Inc., and one of Seattle's outstanding business men, said recently, "All of us know there is waste of labor . . . Theorists keep telling us the labor supply in the Seattle area is critical. But those of us who live here and face the facts know this is not true. There are plenty of men and women to do all the work our Government wants done in this area."

Hobbs says that better personnel work, training, mechanization, upgrading and labor-management cooperation are the answer. He does not want to see further War Department contracts withdrawn from the Puget Sound area.

A majority of Americans everywhere are willing to submit to a labor draft—if they think it is necessary. But according to a recent Gallup Poll, only 46 per cent, even in areas with so-called "acute labor shortages" think a shortage exists. Until labor hoarding is ended through the improvement and extension of the West Coast program, worker's service legislation might do more harm than good.

Encircled Japan

By Barnet Nover

Toward A Pacific Offensive

SINCE PEARL HARBOR the war in the Pacific has gone through three distinct stages. A fourth stage is about to be ushered in.

The first stage lasted just about half a year and was marked by revolutionary changes in the political geography of Eastern Asia and the South Pacific.

In that period the Japanese overran Wake, Guam, Hong Kong, Malaya, the Philippines, the Dutch East Indies, the Solomons, Burma, a large part of New Guinea and the western Aleutians. In those days Japan's offensive power appeared to be unlimited and irresistible.

THE SECOND STAGE of the Pacific war lasted roughly from the late spring of 1942 to about the end of that year. It was marked by the waning of Japan's offensive power, the waxing of United Nations' defensive strength.

That was the period which saw the epochal battles of Coral Sea, Trincomalee and Midway; the Japanese retreat from threatened Port Moresby; the American landing at Guadalcanal and the great naval battles which that development gave rise.

It was during those months that the threat to India, to Australia, to New Zealand, to Alaska, to Hawaii and continental United States was definitely smashed.

But while the Allies proved able, in the summer of 1942 to stem the Japanese tide they were not yet sufficiently strong to reverse it.

IT WAS NOT UNTIL some time around the turn of the year that we began to push back the Japanese from certain peripheral areas of their enormously extended empire.

We drove them out of Guadalcanal, forced them to relinquish their hold on the east coast of New Guinea, ended their grip on Attu and Kiska, took from them all the remaining islands in the Solomons group except Bougainville, which is now under attack. In the meantime our submarines have carried on an unrelenting and highly successful war of attrition against Japanese shipping and our air force has whittled down Japanese air power.

At no point in the Pacific theater today is Japan sufficiently strong to carry the war to the Allies. At every point her forces are either under attack or threatened with attack.

THE ALLIED GOAL is, of course, Tokyo, and Tokyo is still a long way off. This circumstance should put a damper on any sense of complacence we may feel over the truly heartening progress we have made on the road back from Pearl Harbor. The fact nonetheless remains that while Japan has passed the peak of her strength we are, in a literal sense, only at the beginning of our power.

The problem which Japan faces today is exactly the problem which we had to face in those dark days of December, 1941, and in the months that followed. We had then to spread our available manpower and air power and sea power thin since we were exposed everywhere and had to reckon with any enemy thrusts from many directions. It is now Japan's turn to feel the pinch.

THE SAVING FACT for Japan is, of course, that a very large proportion of our total strength is being devoted, at the moment, to the destruction of Japan's European ally.

But the Japanese will find scant comfort in that circumstance. They know, as we do, that Hitler's days are numbered. They know that the time that will be vouchsafed them before the full force of the United States, Great Britain and the other Allies (possibly including Russia) will be hurled against them is not very great.

Certainly the time that remains before Germany is defeated is not likely to be great enough to enable the Japanese to overcome the growing disparity between United Nations' strength and theirs. Proof of this is seen in the fact that we have been taking the offensive in the Pacific, though on a limited scale, even while engaged in large-scale military operations in the Mediterranean, even while sending great quantities of war materiel to Russia and even while undertaking a vast aerial offensive against the Reich.

IN VIEW OF THE VAST distances separating the Japanese islands from the nearest Allied outposts it would seem, at first glance, to be a gross exaggeration to talk of Japan being encircled. Yet that is now literally true. But it is also true that the circle will have to be reduced considerably before we can get at the heart of enemy strength.

When that day comes we shall be approaching the final phase of the Pacific War. In the meantime there is every reason to anticipate a series of heavy, integrated blows along the periphery of Japanese power—in Burma, at Rabaul and north of Rabaul, in the central Pacific and along the northern approaches to Japan proper.

Up to now we have been trimming Japan's fingernails. We shall soon begin chopping off her limbs.

Chastleton Apartments

As a tenant of the Chastleton Apartments for over three years I wish to call attention, in unison with other tenants, of longer or less tenancy, to the fact that there is a possibility of the Navy Department taking the building as quarters for WAVES. We believe that public attention should be called to the following facts:

1. The majority of the tenants are permanent Government employes who have made this apartment their home, as is evidenced by their signing of leases and purchases of furniture. All the apartments are rented unfurnished.

2. The Government is badly in need of civilian employes. If this action is indicative of the treatment civilian employes will receive, the Government will find it increasingly difficult to recruit workers to come to Washington.

3. WAVES do not have furniture to move and the transportation problem of movin the 318 householder effects of the Chastleton tenants would be wasteful in manpower, gasoline and tires.

4. Three hundred and eighteen gas meters and telephones would have to be changed, which would also be wasteful in manpower at a time when manpower is scarce.

5. There is a shortage of housekeeping apartments in Washington and vicinity and the advisability of eliminating 318 existing housekeeping units is questionable.

6. The purchase price of the building, the cost of remodeling it for another type of occupancy and furnishings would apparently cost more than the erection of temporary buildings.

7. Temporary buildings could be erected in a shorter time than the Chastleton could be evacuated, remodeled and prepared for WAVE occupancy.

8. Several tenants are infirm or physically handicapped and it would be extremely difficult for them to find comparable living quarters.

9. The absenteeism which will necessarily result because of the necessity of Chastleton tenants spending considerable time in the search for living quarters and in moving and settling will interfere with vital war work in many cases.

10. There are rooms and space in dormitory buildings which could be used by WAVES, but which are not suitable to family groups such as the apartments in the Chastleton.

11. There are still available in Washington buildings used as transient hotels which would require no remodeling labor for WAVE occupancy.

It will be appreciated if you can do anything to prevent the Chastleton Apartment tenants from losing their homes.

NONA MURRAY LUCKE.

Fairness To Lebanese

In fairness to the American public and to the Lebanese, I am commenting on the leader which appeared in your issue of November 15, entitled "Trouble in Lebanon."

You state that the 1936 treaty by which France pledged herself to grant independence to Lebanon and Syria was not ratified in 1939 owing "to the imminence of war."

May I correct this statement by saying that France did not ratify the treaty purely on imperialistic grounds as every student of the French Chamber's deliberation on this matter knows.

Surely a satisfied and healthy public opinion in Lebanon and Syria would have been an asset to France in her days of need. Had Lebanon and Syria been independent in 1939, Vichy France would have been unable to use those countries as outposts of Nazi-ism.

As it was, the British and French had to undertake a military campaign in 1941 to oust the Germans and Vichy from Lebanon and Syria.

Also it is unfortunate that your leader omits the very important joint declaration of General Catroux and the British government in 1941 to the Lebanese and Syrians, promising them immediate independence. This pledge had the wholehearted support of the American Government."

General Catroux's declaration of 1941 cannot be reconciled with your statement "that the Committee of National Liberation at Algiers lacks the authority to revoke the Mandate over Lebanon."

Is not the explanation to be found rather in the solidarity of the Lebanese, whether Christian or Moslem, in their demand for the application of the Four Freedoms, notwithstanding the French efforts through their religious institutions in Lebanon to antagonize one sect against the other?

The French, as many others, have grossly underestimated the driving force of freedom in the Arab world. They wished to appear in line with the principles of the United Nations, thinking that even a freely elected Parliament in Lebanon would manifest the result of religious rifts encouraged and fed by them.

On finding that all sections of the Lebanese people were united in their adherance to the principles of the great democracies, the French made their second mistake in handling the situation in a manner from can hardly be distinguished from the methods used by their avowed enemies, the Nazis. Parisians Warned

PARISIANS WHO for one reason or another have been thrown into friendly contact with individual German soldiers have received at various times confidential warnings from them. They go something like this:

"If you hear that we are preparing to evacuate Paris, get out of town quick; or if you haven't time for that, hide in the cellar. We have orders to destroy everything and everybody in case of retreat."

Not very long ago the idea that the Germans might raze one of the world's loveliest cities would have seemed incredible; but after Kiev and Naples, it comes as no surprise. Subterranean fortified retreats have been established under the Place de la Concorde (where the American Embassy is located), originally intended to be used as a bombproof headquarters for the German command in case of an Allied attack on the city. Now these underground chambers are said to have been mined, and in case of a retreat, the whole square (the second largest in the world, and one of the most beautiful) will be blown up.

Mines in Paris

Mines are known to have been planted elsewhere in Paris as well. The French underground is doing its best to secure all possible information about the location of these explosives, in the hope that it will be able to save some of the irreplaceable historic monuments of Paris. Hopes are low, however, for it is doubted if the underground will have the time or the opportunity to prevent the setting off of the mines.

This being the case, the French leaders are anxious that publicity abroad should serve solemn warning on the Germans that the destruction of Paris would arouse violent anti-German feeling throughout the world, including neutral countries. They do not believe that the Germans would be impervious to this argument. They point out that German analysts have written volumes on the bad effects for Germany of certain acts committed during the last war (particularly the execution of Nurse Edith Cavell), and they think they could be reminded of that example and convinced that further destruction would be harmful to Germany.

French underground leaders believe that the campaign of destructiveness is being carried out with the deliberate plan of benefiting by it. Their explanation (and it seems to be based on reports of German discussions of policy) is as follows:

One of the German plans for avoiding full responsibility after the war for the misdeeds of the war period is to use Hitler as a scapegoat, and, in getting rid of him, to avow that with him have gone all the crimes committed by Germany. To make it easier to attribute to one man the misdoings of a nation, a saying alleged to be Hitler's is being spread around: "If I perish, all Europe will go under with me."

Senseless Destruction

Coupled with apparently senseless destruction, this will set up a picture of Hitler as a ruthless madman, destroying cities in a fury. The generals think they can talk the world into forgetting that they were the ones who issued these orders, and accept, from the very enormity of their crimes, the theory that they were the work of a single fanatic, whose personal disappearance alone will atone for them.

Behind this theory is reported to be another—the desire to present the occupied countries with a task of reconstruction as great as, or greater than, that which will face bombed Germany. With economists on the Allied side no longer generally favorable to the principle of reparations, the Germans will have the way clear to propagandize the theory that reparations would be harmful to world economy, and that each nation will have to restore itself out of its own resources. As Germany has accumulated on her territory the greater part of the prime means of reconstruction—the locomotives and rolling stock, the machine tools, etc.—she should be able to do her rebuilding before the others—and be ready to turn back to the task of rearmament.

If the German generals and propagandists could be convinced by publicity that their policy of destructiveness will not deceive their enemies into attributing all Germany's misdeeds to Hitler, and not be allowed to create a relative superiority for Germany in the postwar period of reconstruction, its object would disappear. That, at least, is what the French underground seems to think.

Win The Peace

We must be alert as to propaganda for a soft peace, which blundering idealists in our midst will propose. We have the right to remind such folk that they once shouted, "don't fortify Guam—it will offend Japan." We paid for such advice in American taxes, American blood. Let us remember, in dealing with both the Berlin and the Tokyo gangsters, after victory comes, that they always have been ruthless. Skilled propagandists, they are clever enough to win the peace after they lose the war. General Barrows, on the Philippines' general staff and with wide World War I experience in Siberia, warns "after the victory we must not surrender."

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Mr. Hull Returns To Congress

THE FACT that immediately upon his return Secretary Hull is making a personal report directly to Congress may in the long run be recognized as one of the historic events of our time. Mr. Hull could not have achieved so tremendous a success at Moscow if the Senate had not given him such an overwhelming vote of confidence in the Connally resolution. For without that vote he would have been speaking for only one branch of the Government; with that vote he spoke for the United States. No other American diplomat in our times has spoken with such weight.

LIPPMANN

Now he returns to the Congress which made this possible. We may rejoice. For in the conflict between Congress and the Executive there resides the most dangerous weakness of our institutions. Upon their ability to work together, each informing and each strengthening the other, depends our political salvation, and in no small measure that of the world.

IT HAS BEEN increasingly evident during the war that ways must be found to bridge the chasm between the two branches of the Government. Our constitutional system is based on the doctrine of the separation of powers, but this doctrine was never meant to mean that Congress and the Executive should live as suspicious rivals in separate worlds. In fact, it was originally intended, as the actions of George Washington show, that the President or the members of his Cabinet should go down to Congress as Mr. Hull is now doing. It was bad luck, rather than anything in the letter and spirit of the Constitution itself, which caused Washington to stop going to Congress and to set the unfortunate precedent of aloofness which has prevailed ever since. Time and again men have sought to re-establish continuing relations. Committees of Congress have recommended it. Presidents Garfield, Taft, and Wilson have urged it. For the United States Government cannot be well conducted, especially in time of great stress and urgency, unless there is constant, confident communication between the two branches.

It is distressing to think how much unnecessary trouble we might have been spared if Congress and the Executive had regularly pooled their knowledge, and instructed one another, before either committed itself to a position which the other would not support. Indeed we may say that if the two branches could establish regular communication, we should have dealt with the thing which will either make or break our system of government. This reform is as simple as it is obvious and as it is important. It requires no constitutional amendment, no new laws, nothing more than a supplementary rule of procedure in the two Houses of Congress.

MR. HULL'S appearance before Congress might well serve as a means of drawing attention to a resolution recently introduced by a representative from his own State of Tennessee, Mr. Estes Kefauver. The resolution calls for an amendment to Rule XXXIII of the House by which once a week or once a fortnight there would be a two-hour period in which heads of departments and of the independent agencies would answer in person and orally both written and oral questions propounded by members of the House. Mr. Kefauver has outlined the mechanics which, as he himself insists, are merely suggestions for the House to consider. The short debate which took place a few days ago on his resolution was conducted on a very high plane, was quite nonpartisan, and indicated a wide support for the idea in the House.

There is no doubt whatever that if the House adopted the proposal, the Executive would welcome it. It is true that Congress could not compel Cabinet members to come before it. But the Cabinet member who did not wish to come would be a foolish man indeed, and would at once write himself down as unfit for his office.

THE ADVANTAGES of the proposal are so evident that it seems almost unnecessary to insist upon them. Perhaps the greatest advantage of all would be that by this simple bit of common sense the ordinary citizen would find it infinitely easier to know what is going on in Washington.

For example: the five Senators made a tour of the world and came back with many impressions, criticisms, and observations. These were retailed in press interviews, secret speeches that leaked out in part, and then investigated through complicated hearings of committees which not 10 citizens outside of Washington were able to understand.

UNDER THE Kefauver resolution, if something like it were adopted in the Senate, Mr. Brewster would have submitted a series of carefully phrased written questions on the subjects which bothered him—for example, oil from the Middle East, lend-lease trucks in Australia, landing rights for American civilian planes in foreign air fields which we have constructed. These questions would then have been passed on to the executive officers responsible for handling these questions. They would have had a few days notice to prepare their answers. They would have come to Congress, and face to face with Senator Brewster to reply to him, and to debate orally what these prepared answers did not in the opinion of the Senate adequately cover.

Is there any doubt that this would help the public, and we may add the Washington newspaper men, to get a lucid conclusion out of what under our present system was a confused and rather unpleasant disturbance? Moreover, is it not clear that because questions would have to be answered responsibly at a fixed date, the effect on all would be good? Congressmen would know they were going to be answered and would not wish to ask the wrong questions. Executive officers, knowing that they would be questioned, would take care to know what they were doing. And the public would acquire the habit of suspending judgment until they had heard both sides, knowing that the questions could be asked and would have to be answered.

THERE IS NO single thing that could be done which would so greatly serve that free opinion which is sovereign in our constitutional system. And this would be a most appropriate time to do it.

Wickard Urges Grange to Back Land Sale Tax

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 17 (AP). Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard in a prepared speech asked the National Grange convention today to support a stiff special tax on profits made from resale of farm land during the war emergency as a measure to curb a new land boom.

Stating that there are some very definite indications that farm land prices are going up, as they did during and after the last war, the Cabinet officer warned that inflated farm values would have tragic consequences for agriculture.

Various methods have been suggested for bringing land prices under control. Included are farm sales licensing plans, establishment of Government ceilings on land similar to ceilings on commodities, limitations on loans for farm purchases, and greatly increased deed or transfer taxes.

"I am convinced," Wickard said, "that the approach most worthy of our consideration at this time is the so-called land-boom profits or resale capital-gains tax. Briefly, this plan calls for a stiff special tax on profits made from the resale of farm real estate acquired during the emergency period.

"It would work this way: Profits arising from the first sale of a farm following adoption of this plan would not be subject to this special tax. The tax would apply only on the second sale, or any subsequent resale during the emergency period. The longer the farm was held by one owner the smaller would be his tax."

Wickard urged also that the Grange support Administration efforts to hold the line against inflated commodity prices and wages.

"We farmers surely ought to rejoice more than anyone at the comparative success of the anti-inflation program," he said. "We ought to be more determined than anyone else because we know that inflation hits us harder than perhaps any other segment of society."

Taking cognizance of Grange opposition to the food subsidies, Wickard said he saw only two alternatives—higher prices and consequent higher wages and finally uncontrolled inflation, or inadequate farm returns and insufficient food production to meet war needs.

The Secretary urged further that the farm organization support a tax program for 1944 which would help take "surplus" purchasing power out of circulation.

84 Million Chinese to Need Relief After Conflict Ends

By Philip G. Reed

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 17 (AP). China alone will have 84 million persons in need of relief at the end of the war, Dr. T. F. Tsiang, Chinese delegate to the United Nations relief and rehabilitation conference here, said tonight.

This brought to 134 million the known number of men, women and children slated to receive help in UNRRA's program to alleviate distress in war-ravaged countries freed from Axis occupation.

Experts of the conference's inter-Allied committee previously had estimated that 50 million Europeans will be at least partially destitute, and their figures did not include Russia and Denmark, for which estimates have not been completed.

Tsiang told a press conference that his country hoped to provide 5,500,000 tons of food in the first six months after hostilities cease, but that it would request, in addition, 3,200,000 tons from UNRRA for the same period.

The foods would consist mostly, he said, of rice, wheat, wheat flours and some protective foods, such as dried milk and milk powder.

Despite the importance of food, Tsiang said, his country's first need was transport—trucks, ships and some locomotives and cars.

Then, in order of importance, he added, came medical supplies and services, food, equipment to rebuild China's agriculture, power plants and waterworks, and temporary shelters.

Meanwhile, Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service, disclosed that UNRRA would send "life-saving teams" behind advancing United Nations armies to combat disease and starvation.

Reports from France and Poland, Parran told a press conference, indicated speed was essential to block potential world-wide epidemics. Thousands of lives have been taken already, he said by typhus and tuberculosis.

He said shifting of masses in Europe at the war's end will present a huge health problem which UNRRA hopes to overcome by funneling these traveling people through centers where they will be fed, vaccinated and quarantined, if necessary.

The possibility that millions of Europe's war-impoverished people will find a haven in South America arose today as UNRRA committees studied the prospects of such a migration.

Health Diet Exhibit Slated to Open In D. C. Tomorrow

In the first move by the District Government to cooperate in the current Nation-wide wartime nutrition campaign, the Consumer Nutrition Committee of the Civilian War Services branch will open "A Survey of Food for Health" tomorrow in the Washington Gas Light Auditorium.

The exhibit, which is being presented in cooperation with the American Federation of Government Employes (AFL), will demonstrate how deliberate restriction by the Nazis of proper nutrition in Europe's occupied countries has impaired the health and survival of millions of victims. It will show, in addition, how consumers here can put available foods to best use.

Principal speaker will be Ida Jean Kain, Washington Post food and health columnist. Other speakers will be Col. Paul P. Logan of the United States Army and James B. Borns, national president of the AFGE.

Servicemen Want Your Harmonicas, Banjos, Piccolos

Those banjos, harmonicas and piccolos which are lying unused in your homes are needed for the recreation and morale of servicemen and women, as well as underprivileged groups and local boys clubs.

Instruments, which should be in good condition, may be delivered to Kitt's Music Shop, 1330 G st. nw., which has been conducting a campaign in cooperation with the Red Cross to distribute such gifts to nearby military and social service centers.

Current requests indicate that ukeleles and band instruments, such as trombones, saxophones and flutes, rate high on the "wanted" list, while records of any kind would be welcomed.

Ohio Republicans In House Launch Drive for Bricker

By the Associated Press

Ohio Republicans in the House launched a Bricker-for-President campaign last night.

At a meeting called by Representative Jenkins, chairman, and Representative Bolton, secretary of the delegation of 20, they adopted a resolution calling for "honest and sensible domestic policies" and pledging themselves to active support of Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio for the Republican presidental nomination.

Bricker decided recently to forego seeking a fourth term as Governor and to enter the race for President.

End Rationing Of Sugar Now, Ditter Urges

A demand that the Administration remove sugar from the ration list at once and "not await that more politically propitious time" was made yesterday by Representative Ditter of Pennsylvania, chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee.

Declaring that information in his possession indicated there is enough sugar to meet normal requirements in addition to lend-lease demands, and that shipping is no longer a serious problem, Ditter said he sees no legitimate reason for continued sugar rationing.

"At the beginning of 1943 there was a carry-over of two million tons of sugar in this country," his statement said. "Other estimated sources of supply for 1943 are a Cuban carry-over of 1,500,000 tons, a Puerto Rican carry-over of 140,000, and from new supplies as follows: Cuba, 2,750,000 tons; Puerto Rico, 960,000; Hawaii, 800,000; mainland cane, 500,000, and mainland beet, 1,650,000, or a total estimated supply, including the carry-over in this country of 10,300,000 tons.

"The domestic rationing program as administered during 1943 will release about 5,800,000 tons. Add to this an estimated 500,000 for lend-lease. Thus of the 10,300,000 tons available this year, only about 6,300,000 will have been consumed or assigned to lend-lease. The normal consumption of sugar in the United States is about 6,700,000 tons.

"During 1944 the indicated production of sugar, exclusive of carryovers, is 6,800,000 tons. In other words, reliable estimates indicate that there will be enough sugar produced next year to take care of normal requirements exclusive of the four million ton stockpile.

Ration Board Moves

Removal of local War Price and Rationing Board No. 20 from its former location, 30th and R sts. nw. to 36th and R sts. nw., was announced yesterday by the District of Columbia Office of Price Administration.

Convalescent Soldiers of U. S. Not Likely to Work

Cincinnati, Nov. 17 (AP).—An Army doctor declared today the British reportedly were contemplating a plan to allow convalescent soldiers to leave hospitals for short periods daily to work in war industries, but Army Surgeon General Norman T. Kirk said "that isn't a part of our prescription" for American soldiers.

"There's no provision whereby a soldier can take a civilian job and get paid for it," Kirk declared. "Besides, it wouldn't work. Who is going to employ a man for an hour or so a day?"

Pay Increase Asked For 160,000 at Ford

UAW Demands for Other Big Plants Filed With WLB

Detroit, Nov. 17 (AP).—Wage increases for approximately 160,000 employes of the Ford Motor Co., with a consequent scrapping of the "Little Steel" formula, were asked today by the United Automobile Workers (CIO).

The union already has before the War Labor Board demands for wage and other adjustmentse in its contracts with General Motors Corp., Chrysler Corp. and other large manufacturers in the automotive industry.

Richard T. Leonard, national Ford director for the UAW-CIO, and Percy Llewellyn, chairman of the union's national Ford council, presented today's demand in a letter to Harry H. Bennett, company personnel director, asking that negotiations begin on December 1.

Other Demands Made

Besides wage increases, the union asked for establishment of a postwar labor security fund, revision of the vacation bonus payment to provide for increased benefits, and subsidation of employes' insurance premiums.

The Ford contract, as approved by the WLB last June, contained a provision that negotiations could be reopened at six-month intervals.

No specific rate of wage increase was suggested in the letter to Bennett. I. A. Capizzi of counsel for the Ford Co., said the demands were the same as those made upon other large companies.

"Meanwhile Ford employes are the highest paid in the industry, a fact attested by the union itself," he added.

"The entire principle of the 'little steel' formula is basically wrong," Conrad said. "Labor's wages have been frozen by this formula while no adequate curbs were placed on executives' salaries, on prices or profits."

OPA Predicts Vegetable, Fruit Prices

The Office of Price Administration for the District announced yesterday the estimated prices on fresh vegetables and fruit for the week beginning today.

It was explained that storekeepers will have ceiling prices lower than those listed when his cost is multiplied by the proper markup. In exceptional cases prices may exceed the estimated prices, it was said.

Estimated prices per pound were given as follows.

Commodity and price range—Apples, 10 cents; cabbage, 4 cents; carrots (tops off, local), 5-7 cents; carrots (tops off, New Mexico and California), 8-10 cents; grapes (California), 15-18 cents; grapefruit, 6-10 cents; lemons (California), 10-15 cents; lettuce (California, Iceberg), 13 cents; oranges (California), 12-14 cents; oranges (Florida), 7-10 cents; potatoes (U. S. No. 1 white), 5 pounds, 19-23 cents; potatoes (Idaho), 5 pounds, 22-28 cents; spinach, 8-11 cents; string beans, 15-25 cents; tomatoes (California, loose, substandard), 11-16 cents; tomatoes (first quality), 17-25 cents.

The following estimated prices are given for grocers who do not sell fruits and vegetables by the pound:

Commodity, size, units and price—Grapefruit, 54, each, 10-13 cents; 64, each, 8-11 cents; 70, each, 7-10 cents; 96, each, 5-7 cents; 112, each, 4-6 cents; lemons (California), 240, dozen, 34-56 cents; 270, dozen, 30-49 cents; 300, dozen, 27-44 cents; 360, dozen, 23-37 cents; 432, dozen, 19-31 cents; 490, dozen, 17-28 cents; 540, dozen, 15-25 cents; oranges (California), 126, dozen, 83-93 cents; 150, dozen, 70-78 cents; 176, dozen, 60-67 cents; 200, dozen, 53-58 cents; 220, dozen, 48-54 cents; 252, dozen, 42-46 cents; 288, dozen, 36-41 cents; 324, dozen, 32-36 cents; 344, dozen, 31-34 cents; oranges (Florida), 126, dozen, 59-70 cents; 150, dozen, 49-58 cents; 176, dozen, 41-50 cents; 200, dozen, 37-44 cents; 220, dozen, 35-40 cents; 252, dozen, 31-35 cents; 288, dozen, 26-30 cents; 324, dozen, 23-26 cents; 344, dozen, 22-26 cents; lettuce (California Iceberg), small, each, 10 cents; medium, each, 12 cents.

King Carol Owes His Press Agent In U. S. $25,000

By the Associated Press

Former King Carol's new public relations counsel in America has put the former Rumanian monarch "on the cuff" for $25,000 and apparently isn't worried about collecting it.

A registration statement filed with the Justice Department disclosed yesterday that Russell Birdwell and Associates, New York, contracted with Carol, now in exile in Mexico, to present his views to the United States Public for $35,000.

Ten thousand dollars, representing expenses, has been paid.

The remaining $25,000, for retainer fee, has been left "entirely to the convenience of Your Majesty," according to the submitted agreement.

Under the contract, the Birdwell firm will function as "public relations representatives to present his (Carol's) views and ideas, all Democratic and on the side of the Allies, to the recognized and established press and radio channels of the United States."

'Limpy' to Lead Better Dog's Life In New Home

The little, lame puppy at North End Stable yesterday found a home as the result of a Post story declaring that he might be destroyed unless someone adopted him.

Mrs. L. D. Harrow, 4415 Fairfield dr., Bethesda, read the story and immediately hurried to North End to put in a bid for the month-old Dalmatian, who was born with a slightly deformed foot. First of a long list of subsequent requests, Mrs. Harrow ultimately was given the puppy by Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Hallman, owners of the stable where he was born.

Mrs. Harrow declared that the nickname of "Limpy," which had attached to the little dog, lacked class. From Here on, she said, he will be known as "His Honor."

George Holds Firm to 2 Billion Limit on Tax Rise

By Jack Bell
Associated Press Staff Writer

Chairman George (Democrat) of Georgia of the Senate Finance Committee torpedoed yesterday any Treasury hopes for tax increases substantially above the $2,142,000,000 voted by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Saying that the pending $2,142,000,000 measure would increase Federal collections to a rate of 45 billion dollars annually, George told a press conference that he thoroughly approves of the House bill in its present form and believes that further increases would "shatter business morale."

The chairman, whose views carry heavy weight with other members of the committee and with the Senate, estimated that enactment of the measure would raise the annual tax burden of the people to 55 billion dollars, when State, county and local levies are included.

"I do not think we can raise total revenue above the figure where it would be placed by the House bill," George said. "I don't mean that our economy would not stand additional taxes without breaking, but I am morally certain that it would shatter the business morale of this country."

George said he is aware that "a great many people in Government and tax theorists" contend that the national income soon will reach a rate of 157 billion dollars yearly and that the country can stand substantial tax increases.

He called this an "artificial" income figure, inasmuch as it represents largely war spending by the Government, adding that if taxes are raised much higher the individual will find himself at the end of the war much like farmers who bought land at high prices during the last war and lost it later because the income from the land dropped.

"If the war should end in March, a substantial number of the American people might be broke because of the tax liability for that year," he commented.

Already, he said, taxes are approaching the point where—unless there is a reduction in the cost of Government—there will be little incentive for taxpayers to save anything out of what they make.

"If that happens," he said, "we will have superimposed on our economy a financial looseness that will be a sever strain on Government."

7 Warships Sunk, Japanese Claim

London, Nov. 27 (AP).—The Tokyo radio asserted today that Japanese planes had sunk a large Allied aircraft carrier, two medium-sized carriers, three cruisers and a "large warship" not otherwise identified in a dawn attack south of Bougainville.

The claim was in keeping with other recent Japanese reports of heavy losses inflicted upon the U. S. Navy, all of which American authorities have branded as gross exaggerations. The broadcast claimed Japanese losses in the action were five planes.

$30,000 in Jewelry Stolen in Chicago

Chicago, Nov. 17 (AP).—Thieves who entered the apartment of Mrs. Frederick L. Mandel, jr., last night stole jewelry valued at $30,000, but left a $5000 fur coat.

Mrs. Mandel's husband is director of Mandel Brothers Department Store and owner of the Detroit Lions football team.

Police Academy To Graduate 45

The tenth class of the Washington Police Academy will hold graduation exercises tonight at 8 o'clock in Central High School auditorium. Certificates will be awarded to the graduates by Maj. Edward J. Kelly, Superintendent of the Metropolitan Police, following an introduction by Inspector Harvey G. Callahan and presentation of the candidates by Capt. John H. Fowler, commanding officer of the academy.

Two women and five members of the Army's military police will be among the 45 candidates for certificates.

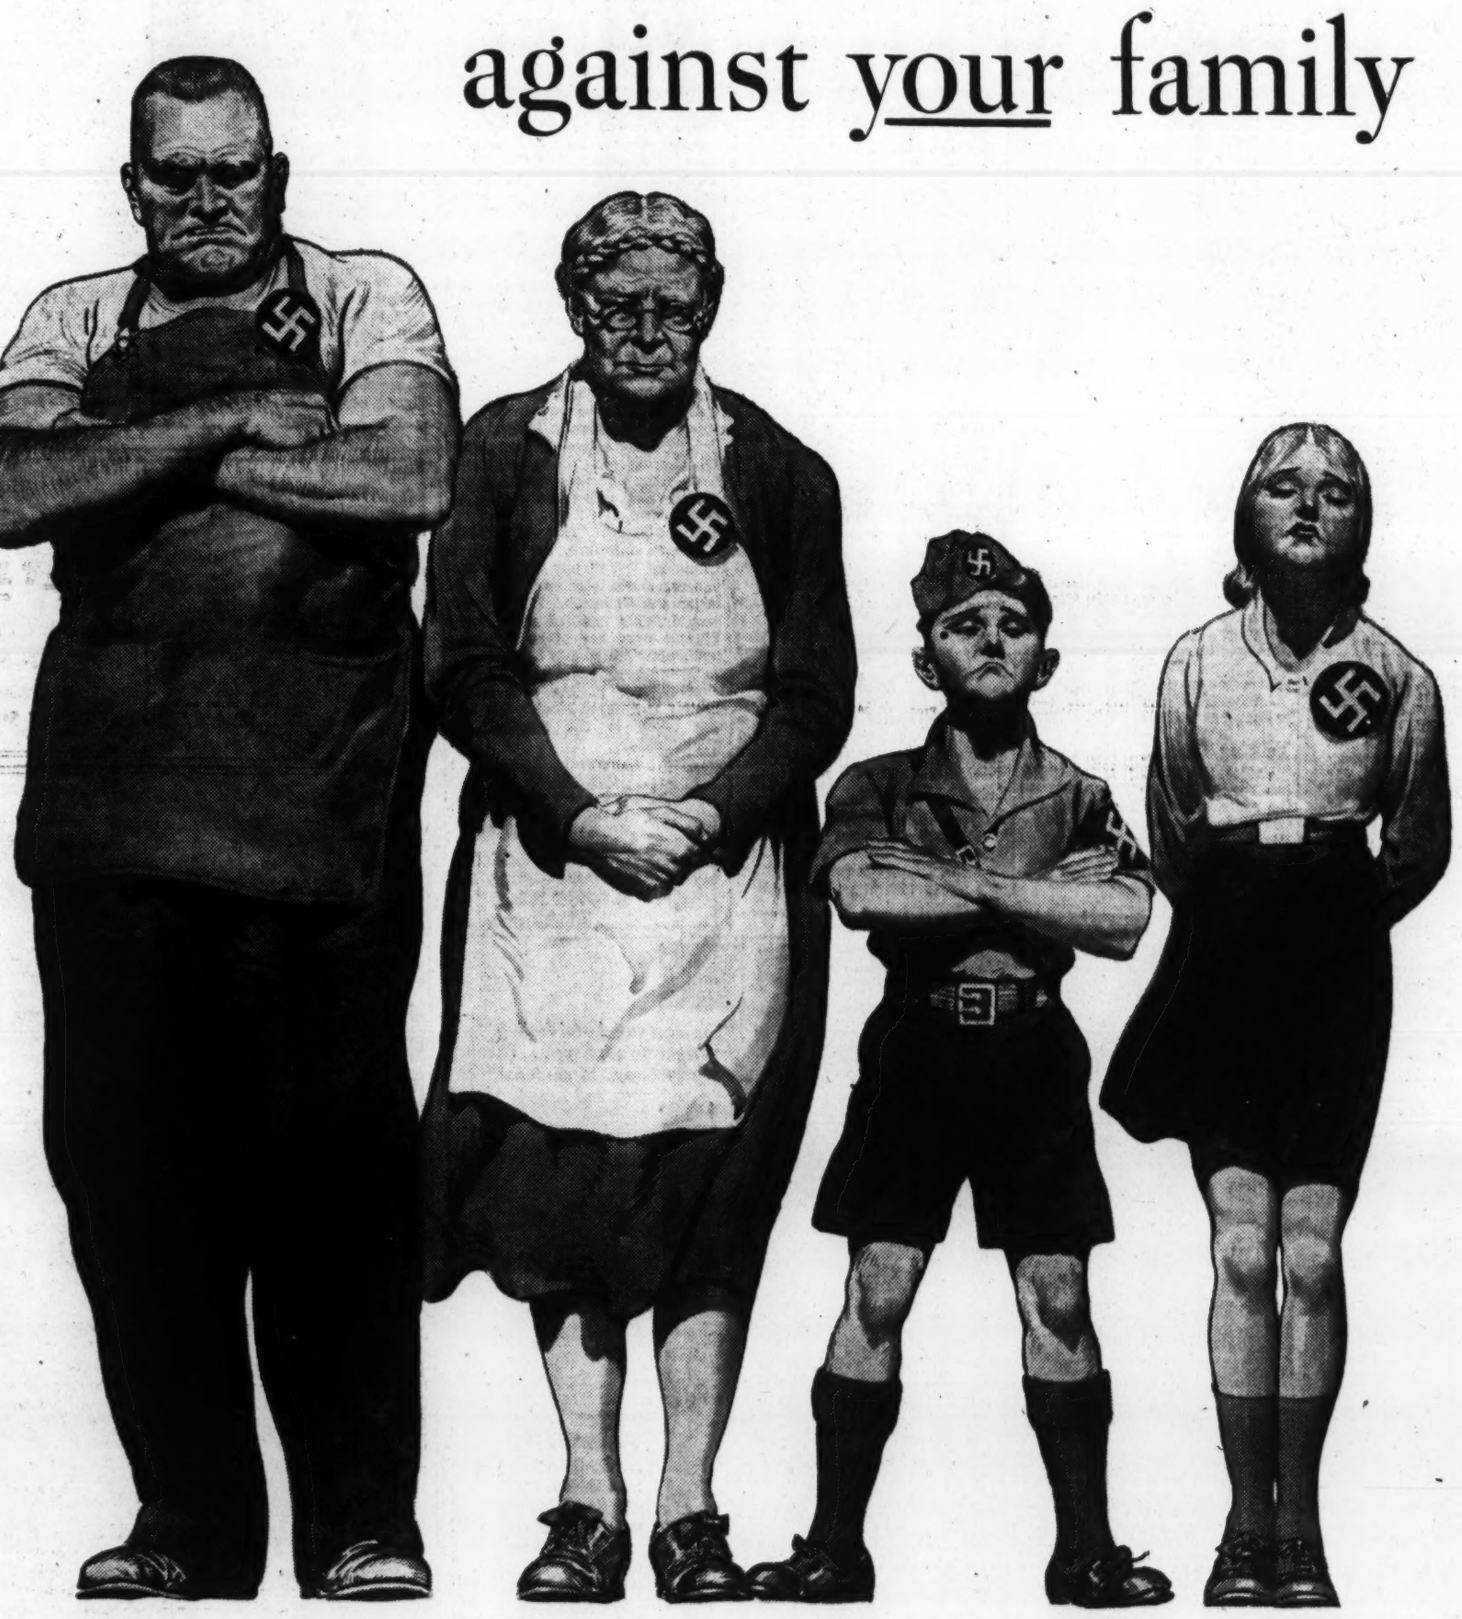
It's this Nazi family against your family



Look them over . . . these Nazis.

They're hard-muscled and hard-boiled. They know how to fight — no holds barred. They're our opponents in this war. Either we get them or they get us.

The way the Nazis figure it, they're so tough they've got us licked already. The Nazis are used to pulling in their belts, to skimping on comforts and travel. Even if their armies are getting pushed around . . . so what? They think they can take it. And they're mighty sure we can't.

That puts it up to us . . . and we can show them.

We know the man at the war bond window will be glad to see us any time. So will the blood donor service.

While our wallet's out, we know the Red Cross and the National War Fund are accepting donations. Black Markets? They'll dry up when we refuse to buy.

Remember, it's us against the grim-faced Nazi families like the one up yonder.

When the armistice comes it won't be asked for in English.

This is published by The Texas Company to acknowledge the importance of YOU — the American citizen — in winning this war. Even before the war it was YOU who built the strongest military asset America had — our productive capacity. Today it serves us well.

The Charm of 'Claudia' Preserved in the Film

TO ITS CREDIT, the great joy of the public and deserved justice to the film, Twentieth Century-Fox has adhered with rigid fidelity to the major theme of the original stage version of Rose Franken's "Claudia" in translating that sensationally successful comedy-drama to the screen.

While the picture opening this morning on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater departs violently from the original in its early scenes and omits a large measure of the more flippant dialogue that spiced the home life of Claudia, the child-wife, and her harassed husband, David, the sound basis of the play's deep appeal has been preserved almost en toto. Claudia still progresses through a series of perplexing developments from the irresponsibility of a very youthful bride to a mature matron's grasp of life and the eternal truths.

Far from omitting all of the light touches of the stage play that had its premiere at the National Theater, the celluloid "Claudia" abounds in deft humorous passages. The quaintness of character of its title figure, in itself, would insure that. It is only that the more serious aspects of the work have been a little more stressed by the cameras than they were by the footlights.

In its essential episodes the two are the same. Claudia still has a terrific time with her accounts, entertains bizarre notions of how to impress her husband with her charm—principally by flirting outrageously with a handsome, unattached neighbor—still sells the country place to the operatic star, and still suffers untold anguish when she learns that all is not well with her mother and, simultaneously, that she is about to become one herself.

In short, it is a reasonably complete and authentic "Claudia" that the Palace will be presenting on its screen today, and that is all Washington needs to know. From its outset the play has been a favorite with local audiences and deserves to continue to be in its new form.

Even in its casting for the cameras, the delightful work remains not too much changed. By the happiest of circumstances, the title role is still enacted with her unique charm by Dorothy McGuire. The two are inseparable. Miss McGuire, as needs no retelling, is ideal in the part by which she was elevated from obscurity to stardom overnight. She is neither the loser nor any particular gainer by the variations of the new medium. In the role of David, Robert Young is not so buoyantly comic as Donald Cook, who created the part, and I would not be sure that the play is not the better for it. Mr. Young realizes every dramatic possibility and doesn't press quite so hard for laughs. As Claudia's mother, Mrs. Brown, Ina Claire, long absent from the screen, proves a highly capable successor to honors that accrued to Frances Starr on the stage. Miss Claire is brightly amusing in the lighter passages and warmly effective in the more sobering intervals of a story that plumbs deeply into the fundamentals of valorous living. From the original cast, Frank Tweddell and Elsa Janssen have judiciously been recruited to perpetuate their splendid performances of the two faithful servants, and Olga Baclanova carries on as the volatile operatic prima donna, accustomed to sweep everything before her on waves of volcanic temperament. Reginald Gardiner, of course, is impeccable as the neighboring "interloper," whose free and easy graces precipitate a few ominous situations.

To lend variety to the new bill, the Palace will be presenting among its supplementaries the Defense Reel, "Food and Magic;" Pete Smith's new short-reeler, "Fixin' Tricks;" the Technicolor cartoon comedy, "War Dogs," and the picturized "News of the Day" to augment the irresistible appeal of its delightful major attraction.

'Jeannie,' a Classic, at Little

One of those rare films which every theatergoer should see, and the discriminating will want to see again and again, is the English-made "Jeannie" which, after a tremendously successful New York run, opened yesterday morning at the Little.

People of all sorts and ages will find the plain, mousey little Scotch heroine heartwarmingly lovable. Jeannie McLean is one of those people who come off beautifully in any situation because they are perfectly genuine and natural and fresh in their approach to life.

And Jeannie McLean's story is one with universal appeal. It is nothing but a modernization of the Cinderella story, with a washing-machine inventor for the prince. It is a story told with such simple perfection throughout that it will enchant you from start to finish.

Barbara Mullen, a funny-looking little girl from Boston, whose father is the Irish poet, Pat Mullen, plays "Jeannie." It is her first role, but if she never does anything else she will be known on the strength of this performance as a very fine actress. Dashing Michael Redgrave is the washing-machine inventor. Albert Levien gives a wonderfully authentic portrayal of an impoverished nobleman, and other roles are uniformly excellent.

An irresistible film, destined to be known as a minor classic. M. K.

Talking Bird Debuts

In Film Version of Famous Stage Hit

ROBERT YOUNG AND DOROTHY McGUIRE as the harassed young husband and the child-wife, in the Twentieth Century-Fox production of "Claudia," adapted from the Rose Franken play which was given its metropolitan premiere in the National Theater a few seasons back, under the John Golden banner. The role of the mother, created on the stage by Frances Starr, is played on the screen by Ina Claire, also a Washingtonian.

'Sensations' Might Be!

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 17.—Andy Stone's "Sensations of 1944" not only stars Eleanor Powell as a dancer who turns press agent but will show our old friend W. C. Fields with a family of performing bears. If he can't get bears he'll settle for monkeys, or he might just juggle. Andy expects to have 25 outstanding acts and, if he can pull it off, wants a wire-walker to cross Niagara Falls. Where have I heard that one before? . . . Cary Grant, when he finishes stroking Curly, the caterpillar, aims to tour the Aleutians. He's trying to persuade Barbara (Barbara Hutton Grant) to go along. He figures boys up there would get quite a kick out of talking to the Woolworth heiress. I think he's right. . . . When George Cukor was thinning he thought he'd look better if he peeled off 40 more pounds. But Billy Haines stopped him with "Sure, you can do it, George, but you'll still not look like Ingrid Bergman." . . . Have Lana Turner and Betty Grable made a bet about how light they could bleach their hair? To date Betty's won. She's whiteheaded.

ELEANOR POWELL

Going and Coming

When Ann Sheridan finishes "One More Tomorrow" she'll pull out for New York . . . Charles Koerner, just back from the East, says most exciting play in New York is "Othello" with Paul Robeson, and added, "and I never went for Shakespeare before." Asked if it could ever be put on the screen, he answered, "No, never." . . . June Clayton, another singer signed with Metro, but before she starts her contract, she's off for a six-week concert tour of South Amreica. She did "Music in the Air" with John Charles Thomas, and was coached by Lillian Sloane . . . On that location in Arizona, Betty Hutton found her mother signing autographs which ran "Mabel—Betty Hutton's ma. Hope you like me, too." . . . Marjorie Weaver is back for another go in pictures, since her husband, Lieut. John Briggs, is on active duty . . . Jane Withers, off soon on her sixteenth camp tour, this time starting from Boston and going down the Atlantic coast.

Many thought "Tales of Manhattan" was a failure, but before it winds up it will pay its two producers, Boris Morros and S. P. Eagle, $200,000 each. Which is the reason Eagle huddled with Frank Vincent over a deal to get Vincent's clients in one of his pictures. So far nothing is signed . . . Brian Donlevy injured his eyes while fighting the Santa Monica fire and was taken to the hospital for treatment.

Governor Warren will follow the suit of Governor Bricker of Ohio and enter the State primaries in California . . . The Truman committee in Washington will have sensational developments in the Canol Project investigation—the oil project in Canada which presumably was approved by General Somervell . . . William Stix Wasserman, the Lend-Lease Administrator to Australia, will become associated with the Research Institute of America . . . William S. Paley, head of CBS, left Africa last week, after testifying before the Senate committee . . . Harry B. Mitchell, head of the U. S. Civil Service Commission, is resigning to permit a younger man to take his place.

BERT WHEELER

RKO is making a film about wounded Marines who recuperate here and then return to action. At the suggestion of the corps, the last two reels were left unfinished, pending developments in the Pacific. Last week the expected developments came—the action at Bougainville. The final two reels now will be made, showing the veterans returning to action at Bougainville . . . Bert Wheeler will go to Hollywood with Frank Sinatra and work in his air-show from the West Coast . . . Lloyd Paul Stryker, who defended Jimmy Hines, is expected to represent Tammany Hall in the tri-party broadcast over WNYC recommended by Jim Fly.

Attorney General Francis Biddle came to New York last week-end to attend an art exhibit at the Neumann Galleries. Walter Pach the noted art critic, was introduced to Biddle, and said: "Oh, yes, I know your work. You're a good artist" . . . "You probably mean my brother, George Biddle," said the Attorney General . . . "Oh, your brother," said Pach. "What do you do?" . . . "Er . . . I . . . I am a lawyer," said the Attorney General of the United States . . . "Good, good," said Critic Pach. "A lawyer who is interested in art. Good, good."

The newspapers last week reported that Lauritz Melchoir had become an auxiliary fireman. This is how it came about: LaGuardia had planned to conduct the four municipal orchestras at Madison Square Garden. Fiorello needed a good singer to accompany one of these orchestras and selected Melchior—who then was made a member of the Auxiliary, so that he could sing with the Fire Department band . . . Anna Lee, the film star, returned to New York on Saturday, after a tour of the front. She has no clothes other than her USO uniform. Her baggage was stolen . . . Dore Schary, the producer, has signed with David Selnick.

Tyrone Power now is studying to be a combat pilot at the aviation base in Corpus Christi. He is respected by his fellow Marine officers. He won that respect after a few battles with his fists. Power had to fight or else be inoculated time after time . . . After each inoculation he followed the procedure of signing a register. Some autograph hunters invariably would tear the page bearing his signature from the book, which meant there was no record of Power's inoculation—and he'd have to submit to another one. The over-inoculated screen star solved the problem by beating up the men he caught tearing the page.

Warner Brothers' J. Wilk went to Boston to see "Carmen Jones," Oscar Hammerstein's version of the opera "Carmen." Wilk told Producer Billy Rose: "You got a great show, but you ought to change it to a happy ending" . . . The Club Bently, which was robbed of some liquor supply last week, now has a sign offering to repurchase the liquor at ceiling prices, 'with no questions asked" . . . Danny Kaye, rejected by the Army, returned to the Roxy Theater, where, during his performance, a singer accidentally hit him with a pistol and cut his face open.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

SOME OUTSIDE BUSINESSMEN coming into the war government have done A-1 jobs; some have been medium; some have been complete washouts. Most outstanding achievement is probably that of Charles E. Wilson, president of General Electric and production wizard of the War Production Board. If any man deserves credit for the stupendous airplane production miracle of around 100,000 planes a year, it is Charley Wilson.

Now he is leaving the Government. There are several reasons why. One climaxing reason was Wilson's recent visit to Dallas, Tex., to speed up lagging production of the North American Aviation bomber plant.

When he arrived James Kindelberger, president of North American, took him up a high elevation where he could get a bird's-eye view of the great plant.

"One of the best exhibits of statuary I've ever seen," said Wilson.

"What do you mean?" asked Kindelberger.

"There's nobody moving," replied Wilson. "They're statues. No, wait a minute. There's someone lifting his hand."

North America had planned to add 9,000 more men by January 1, but Wilson intruded a flat veto. He said that the plant was wasting power, wasn't using what it had, and gave orders for economies which would both save labor and speed up production. He also took Dallas out of the catergry of No. 1 war area, which meant that other industries could come in and compete with North American for labor.

Then Wilson took a plane back to Washington. When he got back, the Army went over his head, telephoned Dallas and reversed his instructions. Thus North American, instead of saving labor, could get those 9,000 more men.

North American was too smart to accept the Army's reversal, but this was the crowning climax for Wilson. Shortly thereafter, he submitted his resignation.

"Air Secretary" Wilson?

FOR MONTHS, WILSON HAD battled the Army on similar matters. Constantly, the brass hats asked him to speed production but refused to give him authority. Army's latest drive was to put Wilson in uniform. They offered him the rank of lieutenant-general in charge of airplane production. This would put him on a par with Gen. Bill Knudsen, whom the Army also swallowed.

Bernie Baruch and Justice Byrnes even talked of making Wilson "Secretary of Aviation." This, however, would place him under the Army and he has consistently argued that, once he was under Army orders, he would have no more independence than any other brass hat.

So, up until last week, Wilson kept on needling the Army, bothering factory managers, boosting production. His latest campaign was to decrease costs by abolishing the cost plus contract. But this seems to be the last thing the Army and Navy want.

Finally, lack of authority, plus Wilson's desire to get back to private business, culminated in last week's resignation. When it came, Justice Byrnes phoned him.

"Charlie, you can't do this," he pleaded. "Nelson can't accept your resignation. Only the President can do it."

But Wilson demurred.

"You just tear that up," urged Byrnes. "You've got to wait until the President can consider it."

However, it looks as if the Government had lost one of its best men.

Duchess Dislikes Murder

THE DUCHESS OF WINDSOR, in the USA during the Marigny-Sir Harry Oakes trial, walked into one of Washington's largest hotels completely unnoticed and dropped in on her girlhood friend, Evie Robert.

Evie offered her a drink.

"I must have a biscuit," declined Wallis. Just a biscuit is all."

Evie fished some saltines out of an old can which once contained mothballs, offered them to the Duchess and then sat down, expecting to hear the latest on the Oakes murder trial. Before she could say a word, however, the Duchess sighed.

"What a relief," she said, "to be some place where nothing is said about murder."

That ended the matter. The two talked about old times and—men.

Note: A lot of people have been wondering why the duke and duchess stayed out of Nassau during the entire Marigny trial.

British-American Sacrifices

WHEN MAINE'S hard-hitting Senator Brewster was in London recently, he had a delightful visit with the King and Queen of England, during which Queen Elizabeth remarked on the hardships of the war and how everyone hoped it might be over soon.

"Just think," she added, "some of our boys have not been home for four years."

"I can understand that perfectly," replied Senator Brewster. "We haven't been in the war quite so long, but my boy hasn't been back to his home in Maine for three years."

The Queen expressed surprise at this and asked the Senator various questions about young Brewster, now a captain in North Africa or Italy.

Halifax on Poland

British Ambassador Lord Halifax is telling the story of the quiz he got from a group of British Tommies during his recent visit to England.

Halifax picked up five soldiers who were walking to town. When they got into the Ambassador's car one of them noticed the name "Halifax" with his family shield somewhere in the furnishings of the car.

"Good Lord!" said the soldier. "Is it Lord Halifax?"

"Yes," returned the Ambassador, "but it is not as bad as all that."

The soldiers leaped at the chance to question the Ambassador about a wide range of things. They wanted to know what would be the frontier of Poland, in view of British pledges to preserve Poland's territorial integrity, and Russia's insistence on having a large slice of that country.

When Halifax related this story in Washington, he was promptly asked what reply he gave to the soldiers. He said, "I told them we had better be patient and see how things work out."

NOTE: This is being interpreted as a tip-off that British policy will be modified in favor of Russian demands. Obviously, if the British wait patiently to see how things work out, the integrity of Poland will not be maintained.

Big Service Flag

Character Actor Charles Irwin, featured in M-G-M's "White Cliffs of Dover," flies one of the largest individual flags in Hollywood. Irwin, a British Army veteran with an eight-year service record, has two brothers in the United States Army, three brothers in the British army and two sisters in the British Nurses Corps. In addition, three of his nephews are in the United States Navy and his brother-in-law is a colonel in the United States Army.

Park Board To Meet Ihlder On Housing

The National Park and Planning Commission will meet tomorrow with John Ihlder, executive officer of the National Capital Housing Authority to discuss final plans for erection of another low-cost housing project east of the Anacostia River, it was announced yesterday.

The project, which will contain 300 units, already has been approved by the commission and final details of its construction will be released within the next several days, officials said.

Among other business on the agenda for the two-day meeting, which begins today, is consideration for the renaming of 15th and 17th sts. between K st. nw., and the Tidal Basin—to Vermont and Connecticut aves., respectively.

A report by John Nolen, jr., director of the planing committee, on Washington's experience in buying park and playground sites in the last 15 years also will be read. Nolen said the report was designed to effect large savings in future purchases.

There also will be a report on a plan to coordinate postwar playground and school site projects.

Shelter Houses Planned

Harry Thompson, resident landscape architect of the Park Service, will present plans for a typical playground shelter house. The District Recreation Board already has transferred $20,000 to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission for its share in the construction of four such shelters.

A request by the Brightwood Citizens Association for the purchase of the Emery estate on Georgia ave. nw., between Madison and Concord sts., for a recreation center will be considered.

The proposed site for a highway bridge to be built after the war also will be discussed. It now is contemplated to construct the bridge between the present railroad bridge and the Tidal Basin, taking into consideration the location of the Jefferson Memorial as well as facilities for roads and parkways.

Nolen also will report on the need to change certain zoning regulations in the eastern section of the city, in the area known as Residential A, to alllow construction of the most economical type of low-cost housing projects.

On Friday afternoon the proposed Washington - Baltimore Parkway will be discussed, with consideration to be given to several alternate routes. It was stated, however, that no final decision will be made.

College President Indicted in Perjury

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 17 (AP).—Dr. Henry G. Bennett, president of Oklahoma A. and M. College at Stillwater, was indicted today on perjury charges growing out of State textbook purchases.

Bennett was charged with making "false and corrupt" statements in testifying he had no part in the campaign of Gov. Robert S. Kerr; that he knew nothing about revision of a book, which he co-authored and which was adopted by the State, and that he did not remember whether he had promised royalties from the book to the William H. Murray Foundation in exchange for the book's adoption.

Clemency Plea For Pendergast Pigeonholed Here

By the Associated Press

The Justice Department has refused to recommend executive clemency for T. J. Pendergast, former Kansas City Democratic leader, now on parole after serving a prison sentence on charges of income-tax violation.

A petition asking clemency had been filed by a group of Kansas City business and professional men.

It was learned yesterday, however, that the Justice Department has disposed of the plea by failing to forward it to President Roosevelt with a favorable recommendation.

Technically, a commutation of sentence was asked. This would have relieved Pendergast of conditions of his parole which, among other things, bars him from all political activity.

5 Marines Killed In Plane Crash

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 17 (AP).—A Navy land plane crashed and burned shortly after a takeoff Monday night at the Cherry Point, N. C., Marine Corps Air Station, killing five Marines, two of them officers and three enlisted men.

The Fifth Naval District today said the dead were:

First Lieut. Theodore A. Stewart, USMCR, of Yreka, Calif.; Second Lieut. Roy O. Dozier, jr., USMCR, of Norfolk, Va.; Technical Sergt. Henry B. Starling, NSMC., Miami, Fla.; Technical Sergt. Harry T. Rattenbury, USMC., Northville, Mich.; Staff Sergt. Raymond B. Smith, USMC., husband of Mrs. R. B. Smith, who has been residing in quarters at the Cherry Point Air Station.

Loosen Asthma Mucus Sleep Fine
Say Thousands of Sufferers
Choking, gasping, wheezing, recurring attacks of Bronchial Asthma ruin your sleep and rob your blood of vitally important oxygen because you can't get air in and out of your lungs properly. But now it is no longer necessary to suffer from these terrible attacks without the benefit you may receive from a physician's prescription called Mendaco. Within a very short time after the first dose, Mendaco ingredients start circulating thru the blood, thus reaching the smallest as well as the largest Bronchial tubes where they usually quickly help liquefy, loosen and remove thick strangling mucus (phlegm), thereby promoting freer breathing and more restful sleep. In fact, Mendaco has proved so successful in helping thousands of sufferers from recurring spasms of Bronchial Asthma that it is sold under a guarantee of money back unless completely satisfactory. So get Mendaco from your druggist today for only 60c.

War-Time TELEPHONE TIPS

Now that telephone materials have gone to war, we must get along with the facilities we have until a happier day. By using these facilities to the best advantage, you can help keep service good for everyone, including yourself. Try following these simple rules:—

1. Be sure you have the right number before placing a call. Consult your directory.
2. Answer all calls as promptly as possible.
3. If you're on a party line, apply the Golden Rule to your use of the line.
4. Don't ask "Information" for numbers that are listed in the directory.
5. Hang up carefully after each call. Don't let a book, or other object, hold the receiver off the hook.
6. Take good care of the telephone instrument and cord in your home and office. They're made of scarce and critical materials.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

If you think the Redskins will beat the Chicago Bears come Sunday, any respectable Washington bookmaker will bet you they don't and will give you six points to start with. Those are the most prevalent betting odds. The books will also permit you to bet on the Bears but, alas, they want the Redskins with eight points. It's just another illustration of bookmakers' arithmetic.

POVICH

Up until last weekend there was some doubt as to who would be the favorite in the Redskins-Bears contest. But what the Bears did to the Giants (56 to 7) settled that. All of a sudden the Bears are bulking very, very tough again. There are no visible signs that they have missed George McAfee, Lee Artoe, Joe Stydahar, John Siegal and Bill Osmanski. They are doing very well with what they have.

The Bears are not only big, and bad, and beautiful to watch, but they're a lucky team, too. When the players of the defunct Cleveland Rams were being distributed to other league clubs last spring, the Bears reached right into the hat (lots were drawn) and grabbed two guys whom every other club in the league could use and who were especially suited to the Bears.

Those tow players are Dante Magnani, Cleveland's best runner, who fits nicely into the Bears T formation, and Jim Benton, big, pass-catching end. In a year when the Bears lost McAfee to the armed services, Magnani steps nicely into his shoes. Benton fills the role vacated by John Siegal, Sid Luckman's favorite passing partner, and Bob Nowaskey.

Our Chicago operative, George Strickler, who has been a football correspondent in the Bears' camp for 10 years, reports positively that the Bears will beat the Redskins "by a couple of touchdowns, I'd say." He doesn't see where the Bears are any less potent than they were last year with McAfee and Osmanski in their backfield, and such as Siegal, Artoe, Stydahar and Nowaskey up front.

"Luckman is taking up a lot of slack all by himself," Strickler reports. "He always has been a great football player, but this year he's surpassing himself. He's a better passer than I believed he ever could be. He could make a champion pass receiver out of any man on the Bears, but he has so many to pitch to that no one Bear can have a great pass-catching record."

Luckman's protection on his passes is wonderful, if a bit unorthodox. It consists chiefly of one man who is built on the proportions of two men. Dropping out of the line and standing as a barricade when Luckman is passing is George Musso, the 270-pound guard whose great bulk fends off the pass runners and permits Luckman extreme leisure in spotting his eligible receivers for down field.

The Bears don't miss Osmanski so much, because he was slowing up anyway. They don't have a big, fast fullback to turn the ends like Osmanski used to, but in Magnani and Harry Clark they have the break-away backs to go slanting off the tackles. They're doing the job McAfee used to do for the Bears. Doc Spears doubts if there's a better ball carrier in the league than Clark.

Spears scouted the Bears for the Redskins against the Giants last weekend. Coincidentally, he was also scouting the Giants, but his notes on the Giants were very thin. The Giants didn't have the ball much, what with the Bears scoring seven touchdowns. Spears' report to Dutch Bergman on the Bears, though, was nothing to inspire overconfidence on the part of the Redskins.

The Bears haven't been using Ray McLean in their starting backfield, which is cause for wonder in itself. The last time the Bears played in Washington McLean was dynamite both with his pass catching and ball carrying. If he's merely a fill-in back this season that speaks very eloquently for the high standard of the Bears' backfield.

The men who will start at tackle for the Bears are Al Hoptowit, the second-year Bear from Washington State, and Bill Steinkemper, from Notre Dame's 1942 team. Hoptowit is very tough and Steinkemper is tackle enough to keep Bronko Nagurski on the second team. Nagurski has slowed up, but he stil plays a rugged if unspectacular game. It was through the aging Bronk, though, that the Giants sent their one touchdown play, a 31-yard gallop that followed on top of a preceding 31-yard gain, also through the Bronk.

If the Bears have one very definite and decided edge on the Redskins, it probably is at center. That's where Bulldog Turner, the 225-pound Texan and for four years a bundle of fury in the pro league, holds forth. When he isn't' playing center for the Bears, Al Matuza, the old Georgetowner, and a good one, is. It's nothing for Turner to snap the ball and then swing out to lead the interference. He is a very rough fellow.

Former Irish Say Seahawks Are Stronger Than '42 Team

Iowa City, Iowa, Nov. 17 (AP).—Ardent Iowa Seahawk fans—and among the most enthusiastic are former Notre Dame men now stationed at the Navy school here—today took issue with those who compare the present Preflight team with the 1942 eleven and rate this year's squad on the short end.

Here are some of the points those fans, including Capt. David C. Hanrahan, commanding officer of the base, make:

1. It's true that the 1943 Seahawks haven't met the opposition that the 1942 team faced, but neither have they had to expend as much energy for their victories.

2. This year's team has a faster, more explosive backfield.

3. This year's line is younger and faster.

4. The team enthusiasm has reached a peak this week exceeding anything that was seen last year.

Those are the points on which camp followers refute statements that since Notre Dame beat the Preflight school last fall, the Irish can do it again Saturday in South Bend.

Getting down to specific comparisons between 1943 and 1942 Seahawk players, the Navy men contend:

Halfback Dick Todd and Ted Curran (they're not including Frank Maznicki, who Coach Don Faurot has said won't play Saturday because of a knee injury) are better than Dick Fisher and Jim Langhurst, stars of the 1942 squad.

Quarterback Art Guepe is a better runner than Forest Evashevski. Fullback Bus Mertes is on a par with George Paskvan as a runner and shades him as a blocker.

Center Vince Banonis, 22, tops George Svendsen, who was 29 and had to come out of retirement. Other oldsters of a year ago, like Marshall Wells, 30, tackle, were good but were slowing up a bit.

Series Injury Keeps W. Cooper Out of Service

St. Louis, Nov. 17 (AP).—Walker Cooper, 28-year-old captain of the St. Louis Cardinals, was accepted by the Army at Jefferson Barracks Reception Center today under an "AX Classification," or limited service because of a physical limitation.

The baseball player was not sworn in as a soldier immediately, but he will be called up later to fill a quota, the center's public relations office said. X-ray pictures were taken of the catcher's finger which was fractured and dislocated in the final World Series game. Cooper is married and has a child.

Hawks Groom Guepe to Fill Maznicki Post

IRISH POLISH UP TRICKS

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 17 (AP).—Johnny Lujack, sophomore quarterback, was picked for the key man today as the Notre Dame football squad rehearsed a complete routine of trick plays for use against the unbeaten Seahawks.

Notre Dame, in its eight victories, has not used anything but straight running and passing plays.

HOOSIERS POLISH ATTACK

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 17 (AP).—Running plays designed especially for Indiana University's attack against Purdue Saturday featured an offensive drill by the Hoosiers today.

Coach Bo McMillin also polished the Indiana aerial offensive, with Ed Schienbein and Bob Hoernschemeyer doing the tossing.

Cue Title Match

Chapter No. 7 of Bear-Redskin Series Will Unfold Here Sunday

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Pro football's favorite series will be resumed here Sunday, the Bears and Redskins, one which has displaced the semi-seasonal clashes between the Bears and Packers in the Western and the Redskins and Giants in the Eastern division in point of national inteerst.

Since Sammy Baugh, the rookie back fresh out of Texas Christian, pegged the Redskins to a 28-21 victory over the Bears on the icy footing of Wrigley Field in 1937 the intersectional rivals have commanded top billing in six meetings.

Sunday's Griffith Stadium clash will set a new high in Nation-wide attention for a game between two clubs which is practically meaningless in the standings. Both teams lack the mathematical certainty of clinching their respective divisional titles, but only a miracle could keep either from a successful title defense. Yet the stadium has been sold out for two weeks and the ticket demand exceeds that of last year's playoffs. More than a hundred working press reservations have been turned down—because there is no place to put the visiting correspondents.

The six-game series stands at three each, with the Redskins holding a 2-to-1 edge in championship playoffs, which accounts for their slogan of "Two out of three is better than 73." The Bears have won two of three regularly scheduled games and have an over-all edge of 91 points.

The scores:

*1937—Redskins, 28; Bears, 21.
1938—Bears, 31; Redskins, 7.
1940—Redskins, 7; Bears, 3.
*1940—Bears, 73; Redskins, 0.
1941 Bears, 35; Redskins, 21.
*1942—Redskins, 14; Bears, 6.

*Championship playoffs.

Only Sammy Baugh has played in all the games for the Redskins, while veteran Danny Fortmann, one of the league's all-time greatest guards; 270-pound tackle George Musso and George Wilson, the perennial threat at end, have been with the Bears the entire series. Bronko Nagurski played in the '37 game and is back this year.

Favorites have lost five of the six games, the Bears' 35-to-21 triumph in 1942 the only true to form engagement of the series.

A Bear club which had lost only one game was a heavy favorite in the first meeting after the Redskin franchise had been transferred from Boston to Washington. The occasion was the 1937 play-off, Baugh was just an upstart and the 'Skins had lost three games during the season.

But Baugh pitched three touchdown passes that day before a huddled gathering of 13,000, two of them to Wayne Millner on identical plays covering nearly 50 yards each. Bill Young and Turk Edwards played great ball games on the line and Cliff Battles and Riley Smith in the backfield in the 15-degree temperature. The Redskins played the entire game in tennis shoes. The Bears started in sneakers but changed to spikes. The Chicago backfield was a potent one—Nagurski, Keith Molesworth, Beattie Feathers and Jack Manders—but not potent enough.

The Redskins went back in 1938 with Baugh playing with a brace on his shoulder, Riley Smith out of the game with an injury, and Don Irwin and Ernie Pinckert in a battered condition. The Bears won that one going away, 31-7. The Redskins lost five games that year.

The 1940 regular season game was marked by the greatest finish of the series. The Redskins were leading, 7-3, which speedster George McAfee caught a 60-yard pass with 50 seconds to play and was stopped on the 2-yard line, only because he had to wait for the ball, and Dick Todd caught up with him. McAfee tried to crawl over the line and a cleat caught Todd in the mouth, inflicting a scar which Todd carries to this day. Mickey Parks sat on McAfee and prevented him from crawling over the line. The game ran out with the Bears still knocking, unsuccessfully, from the 2-yard line.

That game was featured by a block thrown by Bob Masterson, a vicious one, felt throughout the stands, which knocked three Bears out of the play and enabled Todd to score the only touchdown with a Baugh pass.

The Bears came back in December for the playoff and, to the undying amazement of all, ran up football's famous 73-0 score. 'Nuf said.

The 1941 regular season game in Chicago was a 35-21 triumph for the Bears in another year when the Redskins lost five games. Andy Farkas ran 85 yards for a touchdown to tie the score at 7-7 but the Bears pulled away despite Bob Seymour, who played the greatest game of his career. Bear Coach George Halas asked Ray Flaherty "Where have you been keeping this guy," as Seymour walked off the field.

Coach Ray Flaherty pulled the master coaching job of his career, aided by Assistant Turk Edwards and Scout Dutch Bergman as the Redskins won, 14-6, in last year's championship playoff. Wilbur Moore went 25 yards with a Baugh pass and Farkas bucked over from the 1 for the Redskin scores after Lee Artoe traveled 50 yards with a Todd fumble. The victory was made possible by the magnificant play of the Redskin line which played a super ball game.

Nellie Mowlee Wins Opening Marlboro Race

Indian Sun Trails by One Length

By Walter Haight

Marlboro, Nov. 17.—Alan T. Clarke's lightly weighted Nellie Mowlee, a failure at the Pimlico meeting, found this half-mile oval to her liking and today won the Upper Marlboro Purse, $1000 opening-day feature.

A crowd of 6000 saw the daughter of Mowlee and Linton Nell hang a length defeat on Indian Sun, the favorite and owned by Mrs. Elmer Trueman of Washington. Three lengths farther back came W. W. Waters' Sun Galomar to be third in the field of eight going a mile and a sixteenth.

Outsider in Betting

Nellie Mowlee was an outsider in the betting and returned an $18.10 mutuel while going the route in 1:58 over a fast track. With betting brisk, the customers seemed to like Marlboro as much in November as they did in August. Jockey Joe Pannell, who rode Nellie Mowlee, was the saddle hero of the day. He rode four winners.

Indian Sun had to be rushed to take command early and saved ground while setting the pace. Nellie Mowlee, off last, worked her way to contention after 6 furlongs. The two hooked up in a duel for an eighth of a mile before Nellie Mowlee began drawing out gradually. Sun Galomar, a forward factor in the race, was a tiring third.

Daily Double of $30.20

A daily double of $30.20 was cashed by 256 holders of the 2 and 3 combination of Gambling Andy in the first race and Steel Beam in the second race.

Jockey Danny Scocca was a visitor yesterday . . . He will not ride at the meeting due to dental work but plans to campaign at Charles Town before going on to Florida . . . Jockey Buddy Root passed up the meeting and headed for Miami . . . Jockey Carson Kirk came down from New England to ride in Maryland for the first time since Cumberland . . . His many friends around the tracks are mourning the death of M. B. (Pop) Goss, the Winchester, Va., horseman, who died suddenly at the Pascoag, R. I., track . . . Post time for Saturday and Thanksgiving will be 1 p. m . . . Other days it is 1:30 p. m . . . Jockeys Patsy Grant and Sammy Palumbo will be here today for action . . . Jockey Norman Bernardo left for New Orleans . . . Trainer Junie Corbin canned over five horses from Laurel . . . Former Jockey Willie Doyle, well known official and a native of this territory, is a member of the Marlboro official family for the the first time in 20 years.

Middies Drilled In Scrimmage

Annapolis, Nov. 17 (AP).—Navy football coaches held a long scrimmage today with both lines and backfield getting a stiff workout.

In preparation for Army at West Point on November 27, the Middies examined some of the Cadets' trickiest plays which Tar Head Coach Capt. John E. Whelchel planned to throw against each of the four academy elevens in the practice sessions of the coming 10 days.

The entire team reported for practice and Whelchel expects his charges to be in full condition when they meet Army.

Judge Landis Probes Winter Baseball Setup

By Charles Dunkley

Chicago, Nov. 17 (AP).—Major league baseball players participating in exhibition games in the Southern California winter league for as little as $3 a game were under investigation today by Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball.

Leslie M. O'Connor, secretary to the commissioner, said several of the players undoubtedly would be fined for violating the rule prohibiting participation in baseball games after the permissible 10-day period following the close of the season.

O'Connor disclosed that Johnny Lindell of the world's championship New York Yankees, whose cut of the World Series pie amounted to $6139, reported to Commissioner Landis that he got only $3 a game.

Expresses Surprise

O'Connor expressed surprise at the smallness of the fee.

"Can you imagine a World Series player, playing for that kind of money?" he asked.

Among others asked to account for their winter baseball activities were Lou Novikoff, "Peanuts" Lowrey and Andy Pafko of the Chicago Cubs; Gerald Priddy of the Washington Senators; Steve Mesner of the Cincinnati Reds; George Metkovich, Roy Partee and Skeeter Newsome of the Boston Red Sox; Babe Dahlgren of the Phillies; George Caster and Al Zarilla of the St. Louis Browns; and Jess Flores of the Philadelphia Athletics.

One Player Earned $400

Pafko, purchased by the Cubs from Los Angeles, joined the Chicago club after the close of the Pacific Coast League season. He is reported to have earned $400 playing winter baseball.

O'Connor said no fines had been assessed against the offending players as yet, and the situation was still in the investigation stage.

Landis closed the books on the 1943 World's Series today by mailing checks for $204,962.41 to the triumphant Yankees and $136,641.61 to the vanquished St. Louis Cardinals.

Dunn Let Out By Redskins; Down to Limit

The Redskins yesterday announced the release of Coye Dunn, rookie blocking back from Southern California and the Los Angeles Bulldogs, to reduce the squad to the maximum of 28 by the midweek deadline. The purchase of Bill Conkright on Monday left the Redskins one over the limit.

Dunn has played only a few minutes in the 'Skins six games to date but until Coach Dutch Bergman converted Joe Gibson into a blocking back Dunn was sure of a job as he was Ray Hare's only relief. Dunn played only one year with the Trojans but was picked up by the 'Skins on the West Coast on his reputation with the Bulldogs.

Dunn was unclaimed on the league waiver lis last night.

For the first time the Redskins have the makings of a second string backfield which can fill in for the "big four" without too great a risk.

Gibson, a blocking back in his college days at Tulsa but an end with the Cleveland Rams last year, is working nicely in Hare's spot in practice sessions. At the halfback spots Bergman can use George Cafego, a fair hand at passing and kicking and the hard-running Frank Seno, also a pass-catching threat. In the fullback spot Bob Seymour rounds out the quartet. For fill-ins Bergman has Leo Stasica and Frank Akins.

Bergman ran the squad through one of the 'ongest practice sessions of the year yesterday despite the cold. Dick Farman was an absentee while Willie Wilkin and Bob Masterson reported only for treatments for their respective leg injuries.

Bear Quintet Opens Season Sunday Night

Owing to the conflict in time with the Redskin-Bear gridiron classic Sunday afternoon, the Lichtman Bear's basketball game with the Detroit Eagles has been rescheduled for 8:30 that night at Turner's Arena.

This game opens the home season for the locals. The Bears have another game scheduled for the following Sunday before embarking for Chicago to meet a picked college all-star team.

Bears Hike Their Average On Offense

Chicago, Nov. 17 (AP).—As a result of their record shattering performance in rolling up 702 yards against the New York Giants last Sunday, the Chicago Bears today were comfortably en route to a clean seasonal sweep of offensive honors in the National Football League.

For the second consecutive week the Bears dominated in total offense, rushing and passing, but their margin over the Green Bay Packers and the Washington Redskins has fattened considerably.

In crushing New York, the Bears raised their average total yardage per game from 384.1 to 421.3, their passing yardage from 217 to 251.

Packers Are Second

Green Bay, defeating the Chicago Cardinals, hung on to second place in total yards and rushing, although the figures were lower than the Bays' achievements up to last week. The packers dropped from 335.4 to 334.3 in total yardage per game, and from 158 to 142.3 in rushing.

Sammy Baugh's continued brilliance against Detroit maintained the Redskins' hold on second-place passing honors with a gain of 195.3 yards per game. This was a decline of 3.1 yards from Washington's figure a week ago, but the Redskins boosted their completion percentage from .523 to .537, which was enough to nose out the Bears for first place in this department. The Chicagoans have a .532 figure.

The Eastern division leaders, who will meet the Bears Sunday at Washington in a "preview" of the championship playoff December 19, are tops in punting with an average of 45.2 yards per kick, while Detroit is runner-up with 41.7 yards.

Eagles Best on Defense

Although upset, 13 to 7, by the Brooklyn Dodgers, Phil-Pitt took over from the Redskins as the league's best defensive team. Limiting Brooklyn to 102 yards on the ground and 74 by air, the Steagles rate first in total defense and rushing defense. They have allowed opponents only 182.1 yards a game, 69.4 by rushing.

Washington, while yielding Detroit only 80 yards by rushing, dropped to second place in total defense and rushing defense with

$204,962.41 Yanks' Share Of '43 Series

Chicago, Nov. 17 (AP).—Members of the New York Yankees baseball club, winners of the 1943 World Series, received $204,962.41 and the defeated St. Louis Cardinals $136,641.61 as their share of the total receipts of the five-game series this fall, Commissioner K. M. Landis announced today.

The World Series participants' share represented 70 per cent of the players' portion of the total receipts which amounted to $1,205,784. This total included $100,000 received for broadcasting rights to the series and the gate receipts. Attendance at the five games totaled 277,312.

Distribution of the total receipts was made four ways: $102,079.80 to the commissioner's office, $488,005.74 to the players, $307,324.98 to the clubs and leagues, and $308,373.48, including the $100,000 broadcasting receipts, to War Relief & Service Fund, Inc.

Members of second-place teams in the American and National League pennant races received 15 per cent of the players' share, the

D. C. Owner Summoned In 'Dope' Case

Baltimore, Nov. 17 (AP).—The Maryland State Racing Commission today summoned Owner-Trainer F. C. Jones of Washington, D. C., to a hearing November 24 after declaring that direct signs of a drug had been found in a saliva test taken after Jones' horse Appeal Agent won the first race at Pimlico November 11.

It was the first time since July 7, 1942, that the commission found a "positive" saliva test. On that occasion in a case involving another trainer saliva tests showed that a drug had been administered to Marandan in a race at Hagerstown Fairgrounds. Racing officials provide a suspension of not less than one year for persons found to have violated the drugging rule, "or for such other period as the commission, in its discretion may prescribe, or to being permanently ruled off."

Appeal Agent received heavy backing in the first race Armistice Day although he had not been the early favorite, and went to the post at $5.30 for $2.

Shift of Army-Navy Game, Week Later, Up to Congress

Representative Walter (Democrat) Pennsylvania, expressed hope yesterday for a favorable report soon from the Military Affairs Committee on his resolution to have the annual Army-Navy football game played in Philadelphia December 4. The game is scheduled for West Point on November 27.

The Easton Congressman said he asked the committee to act on the resolution (HUR 56) this week so that there would be sufficient time to arrange for the transfer of the game from West Point to Philadelphia. He said he was assured by officials of the United Service Organizations (USO), which, under the resolution, would receive the proceeds from the game, that they will be able to prepare and distribute tickets on short notice.

"Senator Mead (Democrat) New York, told me he was for my resolution, providing the game were held in New York instead of Philadelphia," Walter said, "but I intend to continue to hold out for Philadelphia.

"Philadelphia, by tradition, is the proper site for the game. It has the facilities. It is so situated between the two institutions that transportation facilities would be taxed to a minimum.

"I can't see why, in the light of other games being played in large cities, that this one should not be played where thousands of persons would have an opportunity to witness it."

Baksi-Marshall Bout Figured as Real Brawl

Sailor White To Appear In Prelims

By Al Costello

For the first time in his long and varied career, Promoter Goldie Ahearn yesterday sized up tomorrow night's Joe Baksi-Herbert Marshall 10-round rumpus at Uline Arena without stretching the truth—that is not too much.

Goldie said:

"There ain't no championship hanging in the balance. There ain't no title shot waiting the winner. Baksi and Marshall are just a couple of pretty good fighters who are going to fight 10 rounds of good hard boxing. Their styles are made for a tough, hard punching fight. The best the winner is going to get is future dates with pretty good money. Both are a couple of "hungry" fighters who want to make some money. And hungry fighters put on the best fights."

Sees Great Battle

And then, unable to resist inserting a little elasticity in his remarks, he couldn't help adding:

"It will be the greatest heavyweight fight Washington has ever seen."

To be the best heavyweight fight ever seen here, it will have to be a honey. It figures to be a good battle but not that good. Both Baksi and Marshall are the "come-in" type of scrappers, and, when two such fighters meet, something happens, usually bloodshed.

Baksi, who has never lost a fight here, reports tomorrow after defying Ahearn's orders to report early and insisting on staying in New York, where he claims he could get better sparring partners at Stillman's Gym than he could hire around these parts. Marshall has been working here for over a week.

Baksi holds kayoes over Georgie Parks and Jabbo Kenner and has ground out decisions over Jimmy DeChard and Gus Dorazio in his four previous bouts here. Marshall defeated a couple of so-so fighters before meeting Cleveland's Jimmy Bivins and going down and out in seven rounds after a rather good showing.

The Wilkes-Barre boy has been established a 6 to 5 favorite over the Brooklyn Negro, and the odds may move a point or two either way at bell time, it's that close.

As Ahearn says, it isn't a championship fight nor is the winner going to meet a champion as a reward, but from the makeup of the two battlers it should be a brawl that figures to outdo some of the better name scraps.

Sailor White on Card

Sailor Eddie White, New York heavyweight who is becoming something of a local favorite by his willingness to trade punches and knockout ability, is down in one of the 5-round preliminaries, meeting one Bill Deering, an alleged knockout artist from Harrisburg.

Other bouts pit Aaron Perry, rising young Negro lightweight, against Nay Palmer, former Golden Glover; Vic Creelman, with 27 straight victories to his credit, meeting an opponent to be selected today; Herschal Todd, local product, going against Louie Jones, a New York Negro.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NELLIE MOWLEE, $18.10, $7.00, $4.20; INDIAN SUN, $3.70, $2.60; SUN GALOMAR, $2.90.

NELLIE MOWLEE, taken in hand early, moved up boldly to INDIAN SUN, took command in late stages and was kept to pressure. INDIAN SUN went to front at once, set good pace, but could not stay with winner while under pressure. SUN GALOMAR had speed in spots. SIR ECHO raced forwardly and then weakened.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:23. Off at 4:23¼. Winner, Mrs. H. R. Miller's b. c. (3), by Cohort—Welcome Gift. Trained by J. C. Orrello. Value to winner, $425; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:57⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CUMSHAW, $4.70, $3.60, $2.70; ALFRED STUART, $5.90, $4.40; MACANT, $4.10.

CUMSHAW went to contention willingly, disposed of ALFRED STUART and was driving out at end. ALFRED STUART was strongly handled, set good pace, but could not resist winner. MACANT was slow to begin and closed gamely. ROYAL FLEET was in first flight early and tired.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:36. Off at 4:37¼. Winner, Mrs. J. Bond's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—POST HASTE, $4.80, $3.20, $2.50; WINNING SMILE, $6.30, $4.30; NYLEVE, $3.10.

POST HASTE went to front at once, drew far out while setting pace and won easily. WINNING SMILE lacked early speed, improved position gradually and closed willingly. NYLEVE was hard used in first flight and weakened. VANTRYST was not a serious factor.

EIGHTH RACE—One and three-sixteenths miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:27. Off at 5:28. Winner, G. Tohr's b. g. Rose Evans Victor Over Mae Young

Rose Evans, a vitriolic brunette in a skin-tight baby blue bathing suit, defeated blonde Mae Young in the feature wrestling match before 1800 fans at Turner's Arena last night with a series of crotch holds and a body slam after 20 minutes of fantastic doings.

But don't let the blue bathing suit fool you, for Rosie was anything but baby-ish as she settled to the business of annihilating her foe. Although the script bore a remarkable resemblance to last week's piece—same winner and same time of finish—it enthralled the crowd no end. Both girls took an appalling amount of punishment for the sake of their art and gave the impression that wrestling is a h—— of a way for a cutie to keep body and soul together.

Besides tearing hair out by handfuls, tossing each other out of the ring and stomping all parts of the anatomy with a scandalous disdain for health, they choked each other and kicked one another in the spot that makes sitting uncomfortable.

Even Referee Tiny Bouque didn't escape. He was attempting to pull Miss Young off her victim and she suddenly backed up, flooring the arbiter and sprawling atop him. Very undignified for a 340-pounder.

As an added attraction, a very drunken sailor and his lady friend invaded the press bench and proceeded to give a realistic imitation of the professional show in a cozy manner.

Ed Strangler Lewis finally downed Chief Thunderbird with his headlock after 25 minutes of the semifinal. Very little wrestling was done, both men having delusion of grandeur as boxers.

In the roughest match of the evening, the masked Blue Streak pinned Cliff Olson when the Swede missed a tackle after 21 minutes and catapulted over the Streak's shoulder to the mat. Before the end, the Streak missed a cue and damaged Olson's nose with a punch that drew gore.

Newcomer Don Evans whipped a sailor named Dapper Diz with a slam in 17 minutes after tossing the Diz (extremely well named) out of the ring no less than four times.

Dick Lever lost to George Macricostas in 20, and Ed White beat John Melas with a body press in 17.

OSCAR ELDER.

The Redskins also surrendered the leading spot in passing defense to the Bears, who held the Giants to 73 yards in the air for a season pass defense mark of 104 yards per game. The Redskins' 116-yard passing yield per game gives them runner-up position

TRANSATLANTIC CROSSINGS COMPLETED BY TWA

TWA recently completed its 1,100th transatlantic flight. This record was made in a period of less than 20 months, in operations performed for the Army's Air Transport Command.

We are proud of this achievement, but we are happy to confess that TWA is by no means the only airline rendering this type of service to the armed forces.

Our work in military transport operation is typical of work being done by the entire airline industry today, in helping to win the war.

The vast overocean flight experience now being amassed by U. S. airlines has become a national asset of inestimable value. It gives bright promise of what the industry can accomplish in postwar transportation

We must guard against the loss of this asset, and make sure that it shall be used to the nation's utmost benefit in the postwar era.

Until the war is won, our only aim will be the achievement of an early victory.

But when the peace comes, we hope that a progressive policy for world-wide aviation will enable our country to take its proper place of leadership in international commerce.

Deferment of Senate Workers Is 'Hot Potato'

Congress is trying to solve the Nation's manpower problem but confidentially members of the Senate wish some Solomon would appear and give them the proper answer to their own labor and draft troubles. Senators are at sixes and sevents over how their own employes can be deferred. No one wants to touch the hot political potato but the father draft has brought the problem to a decisive stage. Now it's being proposed that the chairman of Senate committees get together and either work out a draft policy or else prod the Senate Deferment Committee into action. Still another plan calls for the creation of a committee of old-line Senate employes to pass on the draft deferments of Senate workers. Such a committee would clear the Senators of responsibility.

KLUTTZ

The Senate now has a Draft Deferment Committee but it doesn't function. Senators Lodge and Maybank are members and they joined in writing a bill that set up the committees for the Senate as well as the executive and judicial agencies. The Senate committee doesn't meet nor has it set up standards under which Senate employes can get deferred. This has led other Senators to accuse Lodge and Maybank of violating their own law by their failure to function. The committee does insist that it won't grant deferments unless they are requested by individual Senators and no Senator wants to stick his neck out. It's bad politics. Selective Service officials have been asked to straighten out the matter but they are reported to have told Senators that they can't do anything until the Deferment Committee acts.

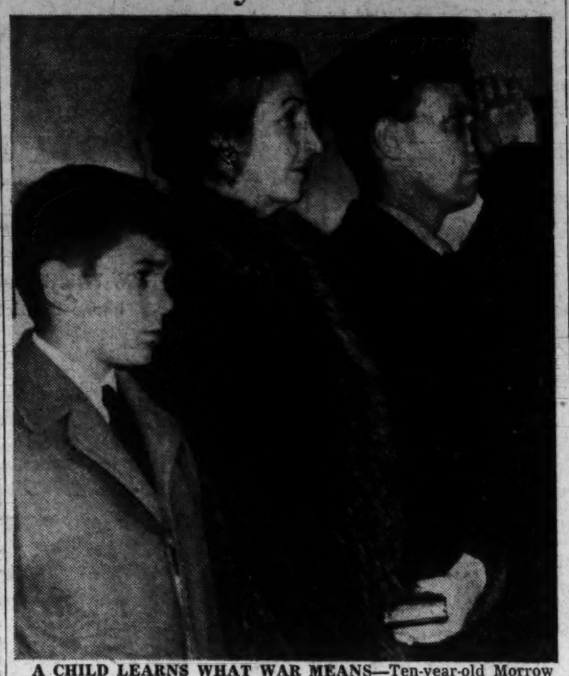
Thanksgiving will be a workday in Government. That's final and definite. Very few private people will be working, but the Federal employes must stick on the job. It can be revealed that several attempts were made to bring about a holiday or half-holiday on Thanksgiving, but every one of the proposals was turned down cold. It was suggested that the responsibility for working be placed in the hands of department heads, which would have meant that many employes would have been dismissed for the day, but it was no go. Federal employes, it seems, must set a "good example" and work. But no one I know of wants to work and everyone tells me that more work would be accomplished if the employes were let off for their first holiday this year. They've already worked five holidays and the employes are getting tired and worn. A Thanksgiving holiday would give them time to catch a second breath and they deserve it.

The House has passed a bill which increases the pensions of war veterans by 15 per cent. Now how about giving retired civil service employes the same benefit? Earlier in the year when the bill came up to give retired civil servants a 15 per cent boost it was pointed out that it would set a precedent for veterans and other groups so the bill was sidetracked. When the veterans' bill was being debated Chairman Ramspeck of the House Civil Service Committee asked Representative Rankin, sponsor of the bill, if he thought retired civil service employes should be given a similar raise. Rankin said no as the civilian workers were receiving what they had contracted for. However, the Civil Service bill will be pushed by Senator Langer. It isn't generally realized, but the Civil Service Commission is giving half-hearted support to the Langer bill.

Oscar Cox is reported to have resigned as Assistant Solicitor General . . . Mike Meehan is slated to resign soon from War Production Board and to return to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce as chief statistician . . . Treasury's Office of Foreign Funds Control has developed a good suggestion program for its employes. The program is tied in with efficiency ratings and employes who come through with valuable suggestions will be honored by heads of the office . . .". Veterans' organizations already are putting the heat on Congress to pass a law which would give all Government employes who serve in the military reemployment rights. Only permanent employes are now entitled to reemployment.

BUREAUCRATS: What do you think the word means? Send this column your definition. The winner, well, he'll get the first annual bureaucrat prize, which will consist of a nice new pad of papers. But seriously, we want your definitions of a bureaucrat so we'll know whose a bureaucrat and who isn't. The word, you must admit, is loosely used. It's common, for example for two Government officials to call each other bureaucrats. Lots o people outside Government believe everyone who works for Uncle Sam is a bureaucrat, but no one. I know of in Government thinks of himself as a bureaucrat. I'm puzzled. Won't you help me?

Three D. C. Colonels Rewarded Posthumously in Ceremonies



A CHILD LEARNS WHAT WAR MEANS—Ten-year-old Morrow S. Krum stands grimly to attention at the climax of a Bolling Field ceremony in which his father, Col. Morrow Krum, was cited for exceptional leadership before his death in the line of duty. Beside him is his mother, Mrs. Krum, who accepted the posthumous Legion of Merit award, and Maj. P. J. Mims Posthumous awards of the Legion of Merit for three Washington colonels were received by their families at ceremonies in the Pentagon Building and at Bolling Field, the War Department reported yesterday.

Mrs. Manchester

The officers cited were Lieut. Col. Horace H. Manchester, jr., chief of the air unit, Military Intelligence, who was killed in an airplane accident near Petersburg, Va., February 13; Col. Morrow Krum, public relations officer, who died in a plane crash in Iceland, and Lieut. Col. Francis R. Stevens, chief of the Southwest Pacific area, whose plane was shot down into the sea in the Salamaua-Lae area of New Guinea, June 8.

Mrs. Constance Wilmot Manchester of 3720 39th st. nw., at a ceremony in the Pentagon yesterday, received her late husband's citation for outstanding services, including organization and administration of the British Empire Unit of the Military Intelligence Air Branch. He was commended for his "tact, forcefulness and resourcefulness."

Mrs. Stevens

In another ceremony at the Pentagon, Mrs. Marguerite D. Stevens of the Westchester Apartments accepted the Legion of Merit for Colonel Stevens, who was cited for an "important contribution to the development of forces overseas." He had already received the Distinguished Service Cross posthumously.

Colonel Krum was honored during a retreat parade at Bolling Field Monday evening when his widow, Mrs. Morrow Krum of 532 20th st. nw., received his citation for conceiving a program of future operations later utilized in the European theater.

Md. Man to Wed Marie Nash, Beauteous Star of Operetta

Marie Nash, beauteous soprano singing star of musical comedy and operetta, who has given frequent performances in Washington, will be married to Roger Brill of Hilltop Manor in Bladensburg, Md., manager of the Fort Lincoln Cemetery Saturday evening in the Little Church at the cemetery, it was learned yesterday.

The couple met only five weeks ago during Miss Nash's engagement here with Ed Wynn's "Big Time," although they have been trying to meet for more than a year. Each had heard of the other through mutual friends in Washington.

A meeting was scheduled for the couple last spring when Miss Nash arrived in Washington as soprano with the "An Evening With Sigmund Romberg" concert at Constitution Hall. Brill, however, was on vacation in Florida, and did not arrive until after Miss Nash had been forced to leave for her next appearance with Romberg. It was not until she returned with the Ed Wynn show in September that the couple finally met and the romance began.

Court attaches at Upper Marlboro, Md., said yesterday that Brill had obtained a marriage license in Prince Georges County Circuit Court more than a week ago. Miss Nash arrived in Washington last night to complete arrangements for the marriage.

Besides numerous personal appearances at navy yards and aboard merchant ships, Miss Nash is said to be the only American girl selected to be "godmother" of a British flying unit, the 1830th Squadron of the Royal Air Force.

Miss Nash will continue her singing career after her marriage. She will begin a two weeks' engagement at the Earl Theater on Thanksgiving Day.

Wed Henry, Woman Testifies, Just Before His Wife's Killing

In the District Court trial of Jeffries D. Henry, discharged policeman accused of the murder of his wife, yesterday the prosecution introduced another woman who testified that Henry married her bigamously just 20 days before the shooting on April 27.

Slender, handsome and red haired, the 36-year-old Henry leaned back in his chair as Angie Pilaggi of Arlington, Va., said she met him in January, married him April 7 and that he left her eight days later. At that time Henry was estranged from his legal wife, Lola, who was 26, and although in a letter to the bigamous wife he did not mention it, he had traveled to New Orleans to see Lola, testimony indicated.

The trial is before a jury of 10 men and 2 women, with Justice Matthew F. McGuire presiding.

The prosecutors are Assistant United States Attorneys Cecil Heflin and Grace Stiles. This is believed to be the first capital case here in which a woman has assisted as prosecutor.

In her opening address to the jury, Miss Stiles asked the death penalty for Henry. She said he bought a gun with the intention of murdering his wife, followed her to New Orleans, threatened her life there, followed her back here, arranged for a date, and killed her over a bottle of beer purchased in a restaurant at 1109 13th st. ne.

The shooting occurred at sunset, while a dozen people were in the restaurant.

Witnesses testified that Henry and his wife entered the restaurant and he ordered two bottles of beer. No one saw the shooting, as the couple were in a booth, but one shot was heard which witnesses said "sounded like a fire-cracker." They saw Henry rise from the booth and the woman fall to the floor. Henry shot himself in the chest and fell beside her, his head resting in her lap.

Mrs. Henry died instantly, but the bullet in Henry's chest was deflected by a rib. For a while he was given only an even chance to live, but he now appears fully recovered.

Detective Sergt. Richard Felber testified only two bullets were fired from the .32-caliber Colt revolver he said Henry purchased.

Then Heflin put Angie Pileggi on the stand, and the pretty brunette told of her eight days with Henry.

J. Bernard Flaherty, Henry's attorney, has given no indication of what the defense will be.

One Day Left, Fund Short Half Million

With the closing day of the Community War Fund's campaign to raise $4,800,000 scheduled for tomorrow, 19,000 volunteer workers will make last-minute efforts today to collect the $572,093 needed to put the drive over the top.

Campaign directors said last night the success or failure of the drive now rests with the Government division, which will hold a "Mission Accomplished Day" program today in all Government agencies in an effort to meet the division's $351,384 deficit. The quota of Government workers is $2,400,000.

"Mission Accomplished Day" is asking all Government employes receiving a base salary of $3000 or more who have pledged less than $10 to give $5 more in cash; employes receiving a base salary of less than $3000 who pledged less than $5 to give $1 in cash, and employes who have made no pledge at all to give $1 in cash.

Bowles Appeals

Interdepartmental memorandums, telegrams and special meetings among Government employes during the past several weeks have made clear the fact that the campaign will fail unless Government workers succeed in raising their quota. Department heads have expressed their regrets that their divisions have failed to support the fund.

Chester Bowles, OPA administrator, in asking for contributions for "Mission Accomplished Day," warned his workers that the OPA which has attained but 53.6 of its goal, is being left behind by other agencies which have reached and oversubscribed their quotas. William A. M. Burden of the Department of Commerce told his employes that if the drive is to be successful "it is most important that pledges be obtained from every person who can contribute and that those who do contribute really give all they can afford."

The Metropolitan Division which is gathering last minute contributons from Washington area residents asks that those who have not been solicited send their contributions directly to War Fund headquarters at 1101 M st. nw.

Soldier Speaks Up

In the meantime, appreciation of what the Community War Fund is doing for American boys in prison camps through the War Prisoners Aid, a member agency, was expressed by Pvt. Herbert Louis Ehrich, one of the 14 wounded American veterans repatriated and sent to Walter Reed Hospital.

"You have no idea," he said, "what War Prisoners Aid is doing for our boys over in Germany. You couldn't possibly know unless you were there to see it, and you wouldn't want to be there."

Supplied to the enlisted men in the camp where Ehrich was held were wooden utility travel boxes containing clothes, writing materials and drawing supplies, a phonograph and records, and sports equipment. "They need much more of that stuff over there," he said. "I hope the people in this country will see that more gets over. It helps relieve the strain of loneliness."

Jury Asks To Investigate Nurse's Death

Despite a report by the District Commissioners absolving Gallinger Hospital of blame in the case, the District grand jury yesterday asked Assistant United States Attorney John W. Fihelly to allow it to probe the death of Addie Mae Carroll, 42, a nurse, who died eight days after she was discharged from that hospital as "cured."

Fihelly said the grand jury asked for the inquiry because of conflicting and confusing evidence presented in connecton with the death. The grand jury is conducting a general investigation of charges of maladministraton and irregularities at the institution.

Miss Carroll, who came to the hospital as a nurse in 1941, had been confined in Gallinger tubercular and psychiatric wards for nine months in 1942, but the autopsy report showed she died of diabetes mellitus.

The report issued by the Commissioners and prepared by Dr. Roger M. Choisser, professor of pathology at George Washington University, questioned whether Mrs. Carroll had in fact died of diabetes but gave no credence to implications she may have died a suicide.

Dr. Choisser said he believed Miss Carroll "received proper attention while at Gallinger and also upon her admission to Casualty Hospital "where she died, he stated everything humanly possible was done to prevent the death.

Dr. Edgar A. Bocock, superintendant at Gallinger, testified yesterday on charges of the possibility of misappropriation of public funds at the institution.

The records of Miss Carroll's death was given to the United States Attorney's office yesterday by the District Commissioners.

One Query May Cost Man $7500 Award

Because one improper question was asked at a trial a man who was awarded $7,500 for an amputated finger probably will receive nothing, the United States Court of Appeals ruled yesterday.

The disappointed man is John E. Varner of 56 Knowles ave., Kensington, Md. The evidence at the District Court trial was that the bathtub faucet in his apartment was leaking on October 22, 1939, and a janitor undertook the work. The following morning Varner attempted to turn the faucet handle, but it broke, leaving a sharp edge which cut his finger. Later the finger was amputated at the second knuckle.

Varner sued John T. Henkel of 1756 Church st. nw., the apartment house owner, and at the trial his attorney asked a plumber, Maurice J. Colbert, whether the work was done negligently. Colbert replied the repairs were defective.

Augustus P. Crenshaw 3d and Charles W. Arth, Henkel's attorneys, appealed on the basis that the question and answer were not admissible. In the opinion of the Appeals Court, written by Justice Justin Miller, it is stated that the question (1) had no basis in the evidence preceding it, (2) was uncertain, ambiguous and self-contradictory, and (3) was improper.

Colbert's answer was, "I would say that the spigot was repaired in a defective manner, because the spigot should have opened, even though the handle did break; otherwise it should open easily at the time."

Man Injured By Streetcar In Alert Dies

D. C. traffic deaths this year . 80
Deaths this date last year .. 94
District total last year 108

Rudolph Brodt, 59, of 2344 Q st. se., died at Emergency Hospital yesterday from injuries received October 16 when he was struck by a streetcar. He is Washington's tenth traffic fatality in as many days and brings the total for this year to 80.

Brodt was struck shortly after midnight during the District's last blackout at Seventh st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. by a Capital Transit Co. streetcar, operated, police said, by Adrill G. Mullet, 30, of 5617 Colorado ave. nw.

Thomas E. Decatur, 65, of 1252 E st. ne., was seriously injured late Tuesday when he was struck on the Capitol grounds west of Delaware ave. ne. by a Capital Transit Co. streetcar operated by Wharton W. Fitch, 37, of 907 C st. ne. He was admitted to Casualty Hospital.

The accident investigation unit of the police force has sent out a plea that any witnesses to an accident at 18th st. and Bunker Hill rd. ne., Monday morning at 7:35 o'clock get in touch with them.

At that time, Irma Frances Goliwas, 20, of 3101 Bunker Hill rd., Mount Rainier, Md., was struck by a hit-and-run auto while on her way to work at the Naval Air Station. Lieut. W. J. Liverman of the AIU said yesterday that Miss Goliwas was in a serious condition at Casualty Hospital.

20 Lose Homes In Rooming House Eviction Order

The United States marshal's office yesterday evicted 20 Negroes from a rooming house at 1312 8th st. nw. after their landlord, Samuel Klein, of 1015½ 7th st. nw., who leased the building, lost an eviction appeal in the Municipal Court of Appeals.

The 20 persons, who occupied the 9 units in the building, said the marshals descended on them at 10 a. m. without warning and began moving their furniture into the street. Klein said he had not yet received the eviction order when the marshals arrived at the house.

None of the families interviewed had a place to move to up to late yesterday. The children in the families were being taken care of in neighbors' homes.

The eviction order was granted the owner of the premises, Mrs. Mary Longo, of 5718 8th st. nw., on the basis of her complaint that the tenants destroyed property and had caused the value of the house to be reduced.

2 D. C. Men Reported Missing In Action, Third Wounded

The War Department yesterday announced that two Washington men were missing in action and that a third had been wounded.

GORMLEY

Reported missing, but according to news received yesterday by his parents, a prisoner of war, is Lieut. Richard Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Butler, 242 8th st. se. Also listed as missing was Lieut. Raymond J. Gormley, whose wife, Mrs. Helena B. Gormley, lives at 1818 Park rd. nw. Sergt. Robert C. Bausch, husband of Mrs. Helen S. Bausch, 3310 8th st. ne., was reported wounded.

Lieutenant Butler, 23, pilot of a Flying Fortress, had completed 10 bombing missions before his plane was shot down in Germany October 14. He is a native of Altoona, Pa., and a graduate of Pennsylvania State College. In 1941 he enlisted in the Royal Canadian Air Force and was sent to England the following year after serving with the Canadian Ferry Command. He transferred to the United States Air Corps in October of 1942.

Lieutenant Gormley, 24, also pilot of a Flying Fortress, has been missing since October 8. Born in Washington, he attended Gonzaga High School and the Columbus Law School. He enlisted in the Air Corps in May, 1942, and received his wings the following February at the Blytheville, Ariz., air field. He went overseas in August.

Sergt. Bausch, 26, a resident of the District for nine years, was a clerk in the foreign service division of the Agriculture Department before entering the Army in May 1941. Trained for infantry service at Fort Meade, he went overseas in July.

He participated in the Sicilian campaign and, according to a letter received by his wife, was wounded in the leg by shrapnel during the invasion of Italy. The letter revealed that after being wounded he was helped back from the front lines by a German soldier who had given himself up declaring that he had his fill of Nazism. Sergeant Bausch is now recovering in a North African Hospital.

Liquor Store Robbed

Two robbers last night broke through the window of a liquor store at 1031 North Capitol st., owned by Sam Delisi, and stole $285 out of the cash register, according to police. Police said that men were seen leaving the store through a back alley. Delisi also reported an undetermined amount of whisky missing.

Steuart Firm Guilty in 1 of 3 Oil Charges

L. P. Steuart & Bro., Inc., local fuel oil concern, was found guilty by OPA yesterday of making oil purchases without surrendering coupons but was cleared of charges of oil shortages and miscounting coupons for fuel oil last winter.

Regional Hearing Commissioner Clifford M. Snider of New York returned the verdict and despite a court decision in a similar case denying authority to prescribe penalties for rationing violations, ordered the firm restricted in future operations to its customer list of record between July 1, 1942, and July 1, 1943.

The order is effective December 1.

Cleared of Other Charges

In the hearing the firm was absolved of charges it had sold 338,000 gallons of fuel oil to customers without getting required coupons in exchange, and of miscounting coupons.

An appeal from the Commissioner's order, which was based upon a transaction with the Petrol Co. of Philadelphia, will be taken immediately to Talbot Smith, OPA hearing administrator, by Renah F. Camalier, attorney, who charged the order was unconstitutional and in violation of the Restraint of Trade Act.

Should the appeal before Commissioner Smith fail, the case will be brought into United States District Court, whose presiding justice, Jennings Bailey, November 2, in the case of Simon Harware Co. against WPB boss Donald W. Nelson, ruled that WPB has no authority to impose penalties.

Officer Satisfied

In the Philadelphia case the Steuart firm was charged with accepting fuel oil without giving required coupons. The Petrol Co. later was penalized by OPA in being limited in its customer dealings.

John Laskey, district chief enforcement officer, expressed himself satisfied with the Commissioner's verdict, although admitting he had sought suspension of the Steuart company.

The Snider order, effective December 1 this year, is to be in force until December 31 next year, according to Laskey.

Expressing amazement that the hearing commissioner "has issued an order that is retroactive to July 1, 1942, when the charges were filed in August," Camalier said he would base his appeal on the order's "unconstitutionality" and that he planned thoroughly to explore the trade restraint feature of the case.

Laskey last night had not made up his mind whether a cross-appeal would be filed, saying "it's under consideration."

Authority an Issue

On the whole, Laskey said, he was satisfied with the verdict against the Steuart's firm, which he contended, "had failed to keep proper records of transactions involving coupons."

The coupon bookkeeping was a feature of the hearing, but was not pressed by OPA attorneys when a private auditor's report on Steuart coupon totals disproved OPA contentions that the 338,000 gallons had not been accounted for.

Camalier, in citing court decisions, said that OPA derives its powers from WPB.

"Since WPB has been denied authority to administer penalties, it follows obviously that OPA cannot order or apply penalties," he declared.

City News In Brief

Using a bowling ball instead of the traditional rolling pin, Mrs. Louise Wesley, 34, of 1011 9th st. ne., came swinging to the defense of her husband Tuesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer F. Wesley were enjoying an evening of sport at the King Pin Bowling Alley, 1309 Rhode Island ave. ne. Then Mr. Wesley got into an argument with Mario Juliano, 31, of 2708 Minnesota ave. se. Mrs. Wesley decided to help her spouse and picked the nearest object—a duck pin ball.

Yesterday Juliano was in Sibley Hospital with head injuries. Mrs. Wesley was at the Women's Bureau charged with assault with a dangerous weapon and drunk and disorderly.

Mother's Jealous Resentment of Daughter's Joyous Devotion to Husband Is Chilling Girl's Love of Her; Should She Tell Her So?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband and I have brooded over this problem so much that we are going in circles. Let me give you the background. Bill is 30 and I am 24. We have been married four years and grow happier every day. We have been blessed with everything in life. We are healthy, wealthy (enough), and though not wise, at least have good educations,—including college for both, travel, and business school for Bill. We have two little sons; and Bill, who is now in the Navy, is stationed where the babies and I can live with him.

Bill and I like to do everything together. We love to read, and paint with oils; we love to laugh and dance and rough-house and go to concerts, the theater and movies. Before the war, we used to play tennis, golf, swim, ride, sail and ski together. Occasionally we go out to dinner or invite friends in. When we do, we enjoy it a lot; but most of the time we would frankly rather be alone together. Now do you, Miss Haworth, think this relationship sounds "unnatural" or "pathological" or "like a silver cord?" That's what my mother has said it is. My mother is a very beautiful woman and very spoiled. She and my father had everything in life except happiness with each other. They never got divorced;—but that, I've been told, was because of my brother and me.

Before I was married, mother and I were very close. Now, my life is so full and happy with my husband and children that I don't miss anybody. Most people,—namely, my father, my brother and my friends,—take this for granted. But not mother. She can't bear the fact that I don't need her as I used to; and that my love for her has been eclipsed by my love for Bill. The few times when I couldn't hide the way I really felt,—like when I told her I wanted to have the second baby where Bill was stationed, instead of running home to mother.—she cried all night.

Mother Is Lavish With Poison Darts

EITHER MOTHER can't or she won't realize how interdependent a happily married couple can be. I've stopped trying to tell her about it, or share it with her; because she has made it clear that she hates to hear about it. I have tried, however, to do the next best thing. For the last couple of years I have put on a consistent,—and Bill says convincing,—daughter act every month when she comes to visit for a weekend. I act very affectionate, I never talk back when she criticizes, and, when possible, I ask her advice.

LATELY, HOWEVER, this hasn't been working very well; for each time she comes, she seems to be more displeased with us. Last week-end, for instance, no sooner was she in the house than it was made clear: 1. That I look tired, worn and old. (I don't.) 2 Neither Bill nor any other man knows how to take proper care of a woman or really understands how she feels. (Not much Bill doesn't!) 3. I'm "doing too much." Will I please give up doing Nurses' Aide work six mornings a week? (I have a full-time maid and a baby's nurse to relieve me of household chores; and I am home every afternoon with the babies.) 4. I should bring the babies (and leave Bill, who can't get away) and come visit her and father. The babies looked so much better when they were with her. (Bunk.)

SO MUCH for the criticism. In itself, it isn't important; but it is important, I am afraid, in its effect on me. Because I want her to feel I love her more than I do, I have to keep my mouth shut. And because my mouth is shut, she takes silence for assent and goes on to tear down all the things I am trying to build up. And that in turn reduces my real love for her. How do you think I ought to handle this vicious circle? Mother is going through a difficult time of life and has had a couple of bad depressions. Shall I wait a few more years to have it out with her. Or should I never have it out?—and continue this hypocritical relationship as long as it seems to make her happy, even though it does lessen my love for her? Or is there perhaps something wrong in my attitude that can be cured? The thing I,—who am so happy,—want is to make her happy and save her pain. WINIFRED.

An Ideal Marriage; A Fortunate Couple

DEAR WINIFRED: This is a story of ideal marriage, based on wondrous kinship of mind and spirit such as the average person never experiences nor even conceives to be possible. And it is a damning indictment of your mother's petty, selfish and spiteful nature that she does not rejoice in your miraculous good fortune, even as you do, and happily bask at considerate distance in the radiant phenomenon of your constant joy of heart. Your mother's reaction,—as believe you understand, without consciously defining it,—is compounded of jealousy, directed at your husband, and envy, directed at yourself.

AT ITS BEST, your mother's attitude toward you is emotionally devouring in intent,—the classic, destructive pattern of emotional compensation too often adopted by the little-minded, loveless wife with children, who seeks to assuage her egocentric passion for adulation by making her children her "lovers," of a sort; and holding them in that unnatural bondage for life. It is to your everlasting credit as a wife that the bold and cunning efforts of this once-revered companion and mentor to undermine your marriage and poison your conjugal content have driven you merely to disapprove and shun her, in mounting measure.

IN MY OPINION, your attitude toward her, in the circumstances, is admirably sane and right. And in dealing with her, the all-important consideration should be: What course to adopt that will insulate your idyllic family life against her vicious thrusts? It is not in your province to make her happy and save her pain,—inasmuch as the makings of all the peace and happiness she could ever know are within her grasp; and she is throwing that stuff of happiness away, and trying to deface your treasures of the heart at the same time, in a fixed relentless tantrum of jealous rage and envy.

Meet Crucial Issue With Full Integrity

BECAUSE I believe that hypocrisy and deceit, however well meant, inevitably redound to penalize the person who employs them as buffer devices, I feel you have moral warrant to "have things out" with your mother at her next onslaught. As the tide of events flow now, she couldn't be made more unhappy than she purposes and manages to be,—owing to her increasingly self-exacerbated wrong attitude. And there is a posibility that the shock of hearing,—from you,—that she is hanging herself, in your estimation, by her bad behavior, might snap her into a healthier, more winsome performance. Yet, should it fail of that salutary effect, and maybe result in total estrangement,—still, I believe you will have made a good move, in the sense of meeting a crucial issue with complete integrity M. H.

Does He Think You're Lying About Your Age...

because your face powder makes your skin look a little older?

PERHAPS you've been loyal for a long time to the face powder you use. But is that face powder loyal to you? Are you sure it doesn't let you down at the critical 2-foot line?

Just how flattering is your face powder when a man's eyes are close? How old does it say you are?

Does it make your skin look young, fresh and inviting? Or does it whisper, "Look—here around the eyes, around the nose—I'm older than she says! I'm quite a bit older!"

Surely you don't want him to think you are lying about your age, just because your face powder's a traitor! Join the millions who use the powder that's as flattering in a close-up as from a distance—Lady Esther Face Powder! The powder that makes your skin look younger, not older.

You see, Lady Esther Face Powder isn't just mixed, just sifted. It's blown by Twin Hurricanes—blended with the speed and power of hurricanes—to look clearer, smoother, more flattering on your skin!

Because of this exclusive method of hurricane blending, the texture of Lady Esther Powder is much smoother and finer than ordinary powder. The first touch of your puff spreads a delicate film of beauty on your skin, hiding little lines, little blemishes. And Lady Esther Face Powder clings longer, too—clings four long hours!

But the most exciting difference is in the shades. Lady Esther shades have a subtle new quality—because the color is blown in by hurricanes. Many women say that the Lady Esther shades are so fresh and alive that ordinary powder shades seem dull and drab by comparison.

Proof In Your Own Mirror! Why choose a face powder because it is expensive, or because of a clever package? Judge it only by its appearance on your skin!

Try Lady Esther Face Powder! Get the smallest size box, if you like—but try it! When you see how much smoother and younger it makes your skin look—it's time enough to get the largest and most economical size. But for living proof in your own mirror that this is the most flattering powder you have ever used, get the small-size box today!

Lady Esther Face Powder goes on a new, smoother way that makes it as flattering in a close-up as it is from a distance!

For you, its significance is a sumptuous coat—when Fromm silver fox is used on a Washington Fashion

When those two important labels—"Fromm 'Bright with Silver'" and "from the collection of Washington Fashions"—are worn by a single coat, you know that coat was fashioned for flattery and long-term luxury. Styles and colors vary, but, in each coat the fabric is fine woolen, worthy of the rarely beautiful, "rich with silver" fur, mounted upon it $150 (Plus 10% Tax)

Gifts for the Small Fry

Do you have the names of teenagers or small fry on your Christmas list? If so, we know where you can get gifts which, as they would say, are "super solid."

They especially like things they can wear, and these must be gay or warm or "snazzy." That's what we had in mind when we found these.

If she's just stepping into her teens she'll adore a "just like big sister's" hat and bag set to match. The bag is a velveteen drawstring with felt appliques sprinkled over it. The matching cap is beanie style. Comes in wonderful rich colors for $3.95 a set.

For the small fry there's a Dutch cap and mittens to match. With a set like these they'll never go out in the cold unless they're wearing them? You can get them in a heavy cotton knitted material and also in rayon fleece (plain colors) with a big yarn fluff at the top, $1.99.

Jumpers have come a long way from the blue serge that used to be almost a school uniform. This one is in corduroy (you should see it in red) and has felt applique around the heart-shaped neckline, a set-in-belt and two pockets on the gathered skirt. It buttons down the back with a minimum of fuss. In their language, it's a "slick chick" number. Sizes 9 to 16, $7.95.

Encourage her to save her money with a little pig bank. These were made in Mexico and are the cutest and newest we've seen. Some are very light weight and others are of heavy pottery, but all of them are painted with gay designs in lovely colors, 29 cents to $2.

Even the much glorified head scarf takes a new twist. This one buttons under the chin and fits snugly around the head. Made of a soft rayon fleece that will keep her head warm, and trimmed in a multicolored fluff of yarn that's "neat" with the coco-cola crowd. Other scarves have applique trim and colorful fringe, $1.39.

We found a group of lapel ornaments that girls around 16 would love to pin on their sweaters and jumpers. They're little dolls made out of yarn and felt. All of them are carefully stitched—some in pink and blue felt, some in rainbow colors, some in gingham, $1. We also saw charming plastic heart earrings with sparkling stones that she'll love for partygoing. In red and yellow for $2. Another set that will catch her eye is a gold and white angel set—pin and earrings to match. For around $3.

These are just a few of the finds on our list. Watch this space for more help with your Christmas shopping.

Eva Le Gallienne Views Times

By Genevieve Reynolds

Bad manners seem to be on the increase. In the theater, on the streets, in department stores in fact everywhere you turn—you encounter lamentable rudeness. This is the observation of brilliant Eva Le Gallienne, star of the current hit, "Uncle Harry," at the National Theater.

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

"Perhaps, I am old fashioned," she said, "but it seems just too familiar for the younger crowd to thrust a pencil at you and demand, 'Here, sign this program.' In the theater the new and younger players think nothing of walking up to a famous director and slapping him on the back and calling him by his first name."

It isn't that Miss Le Gallienne is upstage or snobbish. You won't find a more gracious, charming lady. But she does adhere to the old adage, "Familiarity breeds contempt." The lack of dignity and graciousness as well as inconsiderateness is the disturbing angle.

'Trend of the Times'

Not one to let small things worry her, she said philosophically, "I suppose it's just the trend of the times and the young folks don't mean any harm. Life is difficult enough for everyone these days. Good manners would make things pleasanter and living more gracious. That goes for everybody in all walks of life."

By the way, Miss Le Gallienne probably has more honorary college degrees than any other member of her profession. Tufts started the ball rolling by awarding her an M.A. degree. Brown University followed with an LL. D. degree; Mount Holyoke contributed a doctor of humane letters, her favorite. Personally, she would like a doctor of theology and philosophy—she likes the colors, blue and purple. Laughingly, she calls herself "Quack Le Galienne." Then went on to explain that she left school at the age of 14.

Born in London, educated in Paris, she came to this country in 1915, and became an American citizen in 1926. Her Danish mother was the first woman journalist in the Scandinavian countries and was recognized as one of the most outstanding women writers in Europe.

"What is the future of the theater?" I asked Miss Le Gallienne, as we sat in her dressing room at the National Theater, discussing women's contribution to the war, postwar world, literature, gardening.

Foresees Higher Standards

"I believe the theater (legitimate stage) will attain a higher standard," she said. "Eventually, it will be recognized as one of the fine arts, the same as music and art. Naturally, it will appeal to a smaller group.

"The motion picture has been a great purge for the theater," she continued. "It has eliminated much of the sheer entertainment, such as plays like 'Gertie's Garters.'"

Then she went on to point out that the motion picture and radio by their insistence on keeping programs on the 14-year-old mentality level are missing a great opportunity to educate the people. For one thing, it could improve the public's English. Radio, she said, doesn't permit any new words or at least none over two syllables. Illuminated must be changed to lighted in the script, etc.

"Radio could do for literature the same as it has done for music," she explained. "People should be made to stretch their imaginations; to think beyond the mundane world. You don't have to put people to sleep to entertain them or give them escape. There are lots of ways of escape. You can be profoundly moved by a sunset, reading or hearing beautiful words."

'No' to Hollywood

It is a familiar story that Hollywood megaphoned for Miss Le Gallienne time after time. Her answer always has been no. The great actress preferred to stick to the stage. She has made stage history both as an actress and a director.

She built with her own hands and brain the Civic Repertory Theater, which is the admiration of the discerning. This she did with her tireless energy and uncompromising ideals. She was her own star, stage director, producer, costume designer, play reader—her own everything.

When not in the theater, Miss Le Gallienne hurries to her farm in Connecticut, where she lives simply. Long before victory gardens became the mode, she was planting and tending large vegetable gardens and orchards. Also, she canned the fruits and vegetables.

In addition, she weaves all her own table linen and towels on hand looms. Many times she has woven, designed and made the costumes for her plays. Incidentally, she recommends hand weaving for women with time on their hands. Besides being economical and soothing, it provides excitement.

A great actress, Miss Le Gallienne is an equally great woman in person.

TO REMOVE STUBBORN SCORCH STAINS

Scorch stains are among the most stubborn to remove. Try brushing with fine sandpaper. On white wool, try bleaching. Lay a white cloth dampened with hydrogen peroxide on the stain. Cover with a dry cloth and press with a warm iron. Repeat if necessary, keeping a dry cloth between the iron and damp cloth or you will have a rust stain to fight. Sponge with clearwater.

An inexpensive frock with that simplicity of line usually associated only with high price. From Riziks new winter showing.

Give Yourself A "Break' With Proper Food

By Ida Jean Kain

By the time you are old enough to vote your food habits are fairly well fixed. After that you are not likely to make any radical changes in your ways of eating. Oh, sure, you learn to relish new foods like the smorgasbord, onion soup and oysters. But your pattern of eating remains the same—unless you put on too much weight. Then, maybe, you diet.

When you "go on a diet" you don't change your ways of eating for keeps. You merely change for the duration of your weight loss. When it is over you lapse into your old ways of eating and regain the weight you lost. Then you either diet again or settle down to the comfortable view that your glands or your ancestors must have double-crossed you and nature intended you to be fat.

Regardless of your weight, there is every reason right now to make some changes. Even though you were brought up with the right food habits, you can't get all the foods you are used to having. When you can't get the foods you are used to, the tendency is to eat more of the foods you like rather than to take the trouble to make adequate substitutions for the foods that have become scarce. Unless you make these substitutions, you lower your nutrition quotient.

When you cannot get meat, then take fish or fowl. If you can't get them turn to cheese, beans or lentils for your protein. When cheese is used as part of the main dish, have at least one and one-half cups of it. The beverage for the same meal should be milk for additional protein, minerals and vitamins. Then, with a green, leafy vegetable and a fruit dessert, you have a good meal.

You need at least four eggs a week and two or more vegetables, besides potatoes, every day. Potatoes do not take the place of a green or yellow vegetable. Be sure to have one raw fruit a day, whole grain bread and a serving of whole grain cereal.

Newlyweds Return From Honeymoon

Making their home in Washington after a brief wedding trip are Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Mackintosh.

The bride is the former Miss Lorene Lanier of Jasper, Tex., and Mr. Mackintosh is a native of Inverness, Scotland. They were married recently in the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. Peter Marshall performing the double-ring ceremony. The couple were attended by Mrs. John Brush as matron of honor and Capt. George Rogers of the Canadian Army as best man.

Story of Crown Princess Juliana's Recent Reception in Surinam Told by Visitor Here

Arnold Vas Dias Gives Data on Lavish Fetes

By Jean Craighead

The first, first-hand report of Crown Princess Juliana's recent visit to Surinam, largest colony of the free Netherlands Kingdom, has been brought to Washington by Arnold Vas Dias. He is managing editor of the Dutch wire service, Aneta, and no sooner had he set foot in this Nation's Capital than he began giving accounts of the lavish reception Surinams lavished upon their Crown Princess.

"Surinam, or Dutch Guiana, Vas Dias said, "welcomed her Crown Princess with songs and dances from the primitive lore of the Creoles, the bushmen, the Javanese, Chinese and Indians."

The sparse 1000 Dutchmen joined the colorful assembly of subjects to meet for the first time a blood descendant of the House of Orange.

The arrival of the princess at dusk in the capital, Paramaribo, according to Vas Dias, was "spontaneously feted with blazing lights from all the house windows, doorways and swinging lanterns. She greeted the excited crowd on a Halloween-lit balcony and sat in a kitchen chair for a throne."

An Indian presented her with a hammer, and explained with a blow into space, "this is to crash the head of your enemies." A creole woman brought her a fine white chicken.

Travels each day into the interior were marked with fetes of many cultures that comprises the potpourri that is the colony.

"King of the Aucaner Bushmen, Graman Amatodja, son of the independent chieftain who wrote the League of Nations, indignantly declaring he should be present, came out of his jungle home with his dancing tribe and greeted the princess. He considers Queen Wilhelmina as a co-ruler of his tribe. The King was dressed in a military uniform for the occasion that dated back to settlement days, and carried a silver baton that his forefathers had probably purloined when they escaped from slavery."

During her seven-day visit the princess literally walked on brightly colored bandanas. At no moment would the women permit their royal visitor to step on the ground or get dust on her feet. As she stepped from the automobile, they unwound the multicolored kerchiefs from their heads and spread them in a long line before her. A carpet-runner of splashing color fell at her feet wherever she went.

The Hindu population did not dance or bring baskets of flowers. They prayed. Long lines and crowds of Hindus got down on their knees in demonstration and chanted musical litanies.

"The morning after the Princess Juliana's arrival," Vas Dias said, "clusters of Creole women came up from the market with baskets of flowers and fruits balanced on their heads, to decorate the princess' door, and in native custom, to inquire if their guest spent the night peacefully."

Every village burst with festivities. Flower-decorated arches were erected overnight, and bridges were woven with streamers of tropical flowers and banana leaves. Around these the costumed populace stood to watch their princess pass on her barge.

"No radios or newspapers announced the arrival of the crown princess, according to Vas Dias. By word of mouth and foot messengers, the entire province knew of the royal presence. "The news spread madly through the jungles, down the rivers back to the Djukas and the Indians."—and the fantastic population came hundreds of miles to pay homage to the House of Orange.

Mrs. Van Zandt Is Visitor in Virginia

Mrs. J. Parker Van Zandt is visiting Col. and Mrs. Jon Otto Johnson at Malbone, near Gordonsville, Va., after speaking yesterday before a luncheon meeting of the Woman's Club of Richmond.

Last summer, Mrs. Van Zandt flew to the West and spent several months visiting aircraft factories, shipyards and Woman's Land Army camps learning about women warworkers and making moving pictures of women and the great variety of jobs which they are doing successfully. Her illustrated lecture, "Women Working for Victory," will be given before the National Geographic Society in Constitution Hall in February.

Who goes there? A neat suit of wool and all wool gabardine. The jacket front and sleeves are gabardine, the rest of the suit flannel. Beaver brown and aqua or Veronese green and beige.

The benefit tea will take place on the first Monday in December at the Wardman Park Hotel. Present this year will be Thomas Verner Moore, O. S. B., director of the school.

Hope Ridings Miller

About Washington . . .

BROCK PEMBERTON, the New York producer who devotes much of his time to Washington's Stage Door Canteen, was recently trying to get a new hostess for some section devoted to the entertainment of sailors. He asked Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, wife of the Manpower Commissioner, if she would serve.

Mrs. McNutt

"I don't think I have that much time to give," she pleaded. "You should get some woman whose husband is at sea."

"Well," came the reply, "isn't there where your husband is . . . most of the time?"

But the very best McNutt story I've ever heard made the rounds several years ago. It's the one that Mrs. McNutt declares "is so old it has whiskers a yard long." I've printed it before, and so have a lot of other columnists, but in case it hasn't come your way, here goes:

The scene was a Notre Dame commencement. Mr. McNutt, then Governor of Indiana, was seated on the platform, attired in an academic robe. Mrs. McNutt, several rows back in the audience, felt a tap on her shoulder, and turned to see a strange woman . . . with a questioning expression on her face. "Would you mind telling me," she asked, "who that handsome white-haired priest is—the one seated by the president?"

Mrs. McNutt took a second look at the inquiring person, noted that she was perfectly sincere and obviously didn't know the Governor of Indiana when she saw him.

"Why that man," said Mrs. McNutt at last, "is Father McNutt, I believe."

When the ceremony was over, and she started to leave, she found the woman at her elbow again. "Isn't Father McNutt wonderful!" she gushed.

"Would'nt you simply love to confess to him?"

"I have . . . many times," was the reply, "and I can tell you—it's not one bit of fun."

AROUND HOME these days Senator Joseph F. Guffey is being called "Uncle Harry." He was dubbed that by his sister, Miss Pauletta Guffey, after she saw the current play at the National Theater. In case you haven't heard, the drama centers around a bachelor brother of a couple of old-maid sisters who interfere with his romance . . . and eventually lose their lives for the intrusion. Senator Guffey didn't see the play, but he heard all about it next day

Senator Guffey

"You should have been there," said Pauletta. "You would have learned how to dispose of your sisters . . . and marry the girl of your choice."

"Oh, I don't guess I'd have to be that drastic about it," said the Senator. But, just the same, they're calling him "Uncle Harry" around home . . .

"I WANT TO see the Guggenheim Bible," said a tourist, coasting up to the central desk of the Library of Congress the other day. The clerk politely directed her to the section where the Gutenberg Bible is displayed. "About a third of the people who want to see the Gutenberg asked for the Guggenheim," he averred. "But, then, we're not surprised at anything around here—not even when somebody comes in and asks if this is the congregational library" . . . John P. Marquand, author of the best-selling novel, "So Little Time," spends far too little time in Washington, according to many of his friends here. However, reports are making the rounds that his next novel will be set in the Capital. Incidentally, he and Mrs. Marquand are scheduled for a visit here this week-end, and on Saturday evening they'll be dinner guests of former Representative and Mrs. Joseph Casey . . .

TEACUP DIPLOMACY in a delightfully informal atmosphere accented Tuesday afternoon's calendar when Mme. Le Gallais, wife of the Luxembourg Minister, entertained in honor of Mme. Ertegun, wife of the Turkish Ambassador.

Mme. Le Gallais

Although two men—Baron Stackelberg and Thomas Burke—put in an appearance toward the end of the party, it was planned as a "ladies only" event, one of the few on this season's calendar. Wives of foreign envoys were all over the place. Mme. Loudon, Mme. Bostrom, Lady Dixon, Mme. Thor Thors, and Mrs. Ralph William Close were among those arriving shortly after 5 o'clock. Mme. Fotitch and Mme. Hurban, both wearing Red Cross uniforms, came along a bit later; and Mme. Diamantopoulos, Mme. Bilmanis, and Mrs. Harold Butler were still others enjoying the pleasant party.

Guests of special interest were Mme. Baudet, wife of the Counselor of the French Committee of Liberation, and Mrs. Hays Kroner, wife of General Kroner. Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner, Mrs. J. L. Houghteling, Mrs. Edward Treglown, and Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock were others who came in for a cup of tea before the party was over.

"I'd almost forgotton how much fun a party just for women could be," said attractive Baroness Stackelberg as the fete drew to a close. It could be . . . and it was.

Purely Personal News And Notes

Col. Edgar Garbisch of New York, who is stationed in Providence, R. I., will come to Washington next Tuesday for a stay of several days. He will stop in New York Monday for the opening of the Metropolitan Opera that evening and will be with Mrs. Garbisch and her sister, Mrs. Byron Foy, who have a box for the season.

Mrs. W. E. Pattison French is in Philadelphia, where she is the guest of Capt. Val H. Schaeffer, USN, and Mrs. Schaeffer. She attended the commissioning of the USS Bataan there yesterday and will return to Washington on Saturday.

Capt. and Mrs. Irving Stark gave a dinner last night at the Shoreham for Maj. and Mrs. John Kay.

Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson entertained at luncheon yesterday in her apartment at the Shoreham. Guests included Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, Mrs. Katharine Byron, Mrs. Newbold Walmsley, Mrs. William Harding and Mrs. J. Fred Essary.

Mrs. Benjamin Rogers is spending a few days in New York, and is at Hampshire House.

Mrs. Phillip W. Mason of Takoma Park, Md., entertained last night at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Milton Derrick, at a surprise miscellaneous shower for the former Miss Alyce Jayne Walker, whose marriage to Corpl. George A. Cook, jr., USA, took place October 29. The hostess is making her home with her parents for the duration while her husband, Ensign Mason, USNR, is stationed in Hawaii.

Anniversary Party Given By Mme. Rybar

Two birthdays and a wedding anniversary were celebrated yesterday at the tea given by Mme. Rybar, wife of Dr. Vladimir Rybar, Counselor of the Yugoslav Embassy.

Dr. Rybar was on hand to share in the birthday party with Miss Pauletta Guffey, and to celebrate his first wedding anniversary with Mme. Rybar, the former Mme. Orlicz-Dreszer, whose marriage took place a year ago in the chapel at the Apostolic Legation. At that event Miss Guffey was the bride's only attendant and Senator Joseph Guffey served by proxy as best man for Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, jr., American Ambassador to the exiled governments in London.

A birthday cake glowing with candles and ornamented with miniature figures of a bridal couple, Miss Guffey's contribution to the fete, had the honor place on the flower-decked buffet table. Assisting the hostess at the tea table were Mme. Ertegun, Mme. de Bianchi, Senora de Michels, Mme. Diamantopoulos, Mme. de Laval, Mrs. Palmer Hoyt, Miss Guffey, Mrs. Cavendish Cannon, Mrs. Clark Woodward and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas.

Mme. Rybar will entertain again this afternoon at tea. She has asked to assist her Mme. Fotitch, Senora de Munilla, Mrs. Claude Pepper, Mrs. Merchant Mahoney, Mme. LeGallais, Lady Dixon, Mme. Hurban, Mme. Kwapiszewska, Mme. Molekamp and Mrs. Leo Brison Norris.

Helen McCafferty Is Fiancee of William T. Page 3d

Of interest here is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Helen Angela McCafferty, daughter of Mrs. Madeline McCafferty of Newport, R. I., and Sergt. William Tyler Page 3d, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Page of Arlington, Va., and grandson of the late William Tyler Page, for many years Republican clerk in the House of Representatives.

Miss McCafferty was graduated from the Eastman School of Dental Hygiene in Rochester, N. Y. The prospective bridegroom is at Fort Belvoir, Va., before returning to duty at the Pentagon Building.

Miss de Bianchi On Ball Committee

Miss Maria-Joao de Bianchi, daughter of the Portuguese Minister, who is a student nurse at the Georgetown University School of Nursing, is chairman of publicity for the Thanksgiving ball to be given by the School of Nursing on November 27 in Copley Lounge of Georgetown University. Proceeds will go to the United Nations War Relief Fund and the Georgetown Hospital Dispensary Fund.

Col., Mrs. Burdette Off for Asheville

Col. and Mrs. Allen Burdette, who recently sold their home on Garfield st., have bought another one in Asheville, N. C., and left Washington just a few days ago to settle there.

Colonel Burdette, who has been on duty here with the Judge Advocate General's Department, has just retired from the Army.

Kathryn Shook Becomes Bride

Making her home with her parents for the duration is Mrs. Jackson Ringler, the former Miss Kathryn Carson Shook. The bridegroom, Sergt. Jackson Ringler, USA, returned to his post at the Newton D. Baker General Hospital in Martinsburg, W. Va., on Monday.

The couple were married on Saturday in St. Mark's Lutheran Church. Officiating at the double-ring ceremony was the Rev. Henry Manken. The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Warren Burdette Shook of Gallatin street. Sergeant Ringler is a native of Reading, Pa.

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

Wartime Cakes Don't Require Eggs

Short on shortening! Sugar supply low! Eggs expensive! All three of these statements are being made currently by cooks. If it is not all three of the ingredients which are of concern, it is at least one of them.

Martha Ellyn

Just because in normal times these ingredients have been blended to make a flavorsome, light, tender-textured cake, and they are no longer plentiful, isn't a reason for not producing a good cake on occasion.

Our lives seem studded with occasions these days. Your Jim comes home on furlough, your Mary arrives home from her training, and naturally you want to give them the foods which have always been on their preferred lists. Ten to one any boy or girl coming home for a visit will be happy to have some kind of cake for dessert.

And cakes can be made, minus shortening, or minus sugar or minus eggs. Of course, you can't do the impossible and leave all three out of any one cake, but you can make such appealing ones, as Eggless Chocolate Cake, a luscious Honey Spice Cake (no sugar used) and a fluffy golden jelly roll without shortening.

If you don't have an adequate supply of chocolate for using in the cake and for making the icing, then top it with orange or mocha frosting—both are delicious. And you don't need butter to make a cake, margarine or vegetable oil will see you through to bites of sunshine.

Given today are recipes for an Eggless Chocolate Cake and a raisin-studded Spice Cake.

EGGLESS CHOCOLATE CAKE

Combine 2 squares unsweetened chocolate and 1 cup milk in top of double boiler and cook over rapidly boiling water 5 minutes, strring occasionally. Blend with rotary egg beater, cool. Sift 1¾ cups flour once, measure, add ¾ teaspoon salt, and 1 cup sugar and sift together three times. Cream 1/3 cup shortening, add flour mixture, 1 teaspoon vanilla and chocolate mixture, and stir until all flour is dampened. Then beat vigorously 1 minute. Bake in two greased and lightly floured 8-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 20 minutes, or until done.

For eggless cocoa cake, substitute ¼ cup cocoa for chocolate. Sift cocoa with dry ingredients and add cold milk with vanilla.

Orange Frosting—Combine 1½ cups sifted confectioner's sugar, 1½ teaspoons grated orange rind, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, and dash of salt. Add 2 tablespoons hot melted butter or other shortening and beat vigorously 1 minute, adding more liquid, if necessary.

Mocha Frosting—Mix 1 cup confectioner's sugar with 2 tablespoons cocoa and 2 tablespoons margarine or butter. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Moisten with hot coffee infusion until of right consistency to spread. Dip knife in coffee while spreading on cake.

SPICE CAKE

Boil together 1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup water, 1-3 cup shortening, 2 cups raisins, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon allspice, ⅛ teaspoon cloves and ½ teaspoon salt for three minutes, stirring continually. Cool. Sift 2 cups sifted cake or pastry flour, 1 teaspoon soda and ½ teaspoon baking powder together, and gradually stir into batter, and beat well. Bake in greased cake pan in slow oven, 300-325 degrees F., for about one hour. This is a delicious cake and will keep well.

Automatic Weatherman

A new "automatic weatherman" signals shippers and stevedores when the humidity inside munitions crates rises to the rusting point. It prevents guns and engines from corroding during the time they lie in freighter holds and humid dockyards.

Superman Tractor

This super plow, developed for reworking California farmland, cuts a furrow six feet deep! Higher than a man, and weighing 15,000 pounds, it requires the pulling power of three tractors.

Mrs. Kayser's Rites to Be Held Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Susie Brown Kayser, mother of Dr. Elmer Louis Kayser, dean of students at George Washington University, will be held today at 10 a. m. in the Birch funeral home, 3034 M st. nw. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

The daughter of the late Matthew Christopher and Jane Elizabeth Huddleston, old-time Georgetown residents, Mrs. Kayser was born 72 years ago a few houses away from the funeral home where services for her are to be conducted. She attended Georgetown schools.

Mrs. Kayser, a member of Mount Tabor Methodist Church, died Tuesday at her home, 4640 Windom pl. nw., after five years illness. She was the widow of Louis B. Kayser, a former Post Office Department employe, who died in 1939.

In addition to Dr. Kayser, survivors are two daughters, Mrs. R. A. Morrison and Miss Elizabeth Kayser; another son, Paul M. Kayser, and three grandchildren.

John Hammond Duvall

Funeral services for John Hammond Duvall, 46, former cable splicer with the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., will be held at 1 p. m. today at the Little Church, Fort Lincoln Cemetery. Mr. Duvall died suddenly Monday morning at his home, 1131 E st. ne.

Born in Woodfield, Md., he had made his home in Washington for 26 years. He was a member of the Marion M. Parker Lodge, FAAM, and was past president of the Cable Club of the telephone company.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Helen M. Duvall; a daughter, Mrs. Grace D. McMahon of Washington, and his mother, Mrs. Marion L. Duvall of Woodfield.

Funeral for Two W.AAFS

Funeral services for the two members of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force of the British Legation who were killed Tuesday in an automobile collision, will be held at 10 a. m. Friday in the Fort Myer Chapel with burial in Arlington Cemetery.

The two women who were engaged in Washington on communications duties were Section Officer Ruth Patricia Watson, 26, of London, and Section Officer Monica Madelene Daventry, 31, of Worcestershire, England.

Military guard of honor for the funeral will consist of Canadian, British and American service women. Lord Halifax will be represented by Air Commodore D. L. Blackford.

A4 Buses to Run On Grounds of Naval Magazine

The PUC yesterday authorized extension of Bus Route A4 from 4th and Chesapeake sts. se. along Chesapeake to the Bellevue Naval Magazine and into the grounds and along roads specified by the Commanding Officer.

Buses will be operated along the extension during rush hours only to serve employes of the Naval Magazine by diverting from the regular A4 route a few trips, and the change will not increase bus mileage, it was said.

Armed guards will board the buses and remain on them while they are in the Magazine grounds to check credentials of passengers.

It also was announced yesterday that part of the Washington, Virginia and Maryland Coach Co. line will be cut back at 15th and K sts. nw. to save bus mileage.

District Chaplain Gets Navy Citation For War Service

San Diego, Calif., Nov. 17 (AP).—Award of of the Presidential unit citation to Comdr. John F. Hughues, Navy chaplain of Philadelphia, was reported today by the Eleventh Naval District.

The citation and an accompanying campaign bar were presented for service aboard the carrier Enterprise. The commander was aboard the carrier during a raid on the Gilbert and Marshall Islands.

Before entering the Chaplain Corps in 1930, Commander Hughues was rector in the House of Studies at Catholic University, Washington, D. C.

Father Draft Protest Made In Circulars

Cherryville, N. C., Nov. 17 (AP).—Hundreds of circulars protesting the induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers while men with no dependents were allowed to stay at home have been distributed here, causing Selective Service headquarters to call for an investigation.

Some of the circulars bore 17 names and referred to the deferred men: "They love this country from a financial standpoint. Why were they deferred? They have no dependents." A footnote said: "This ad. paid for by the first contingent of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers."

Other circulars said:

"We are leaving—our loved ones will get along. We commend to you the following valuable, irreplaceable young men (10 names). We request—please assist them to acquire vast acreages, white-faced cattle, bank stock, mill stock, new automobiles, new tires, gasoline, summer cottages, nice homes, bird dogs, sleek saddle horses, brick buildings, etc. We promise only over our dead bodies will Tojo and Hitler take it away from them."

The circulars were sent anonymously to State Selective Service headquarters at Raleigh, where officers ordered a study of the records of those persons mentioned and said a statement probably would be issued.

British Plan For Rationing Fuel Praised

The success in England of a voluntary fuel rationing program, cited as an example of what might be done here to solve shortages of oil and coal, was described last night before the Washington Chapter, American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, at a forum held in the Pepco auditorium.

This program, based roundly on an apportionment of 4½ tons of coal a year for a five-room house with four occupants, has in the past year enabled the British to bridge the gap between production and consumption, David M. DeBard, deputy director of the conservation division of WPB, told the meeitng.

Our own problem can be measured by the fact that while present demand calls for 600 million tons of coal, the supply above ground is only some 585 million tons, according to Allen W. Thorson, head conversion engineer of the Solid Fuels Administration.

Similar discrepancies exist in the oil supply and demand, said Walter Hochuli, national director of marketing for the Petroleum Administration for War. He stated that although prospects are that "we may be able to do a little better for civilians this year than last," the future in general holds less and less in the way of over-all fuel for household consumption, with military demands expected to increase constantly until the war ends.

Little WAC Who Saved Big Soldier Cited

By John O'Reilly

Algiers, Nov. 17.—Pvt. Margaret H. Maloney, smallest WAC in North Africa, was decorated for heroism today and thus became first WAC to be decorated for bravery in this theater.

Private Maloney, who had to get a waiver to join the WACS because she is only four feet 11 inches tall, one inch below the five-foot minimum, saved the life of a six-foot soldier. Her citation, by command of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, says in part:

"Pvt. Margaret H. Maloney saw a soldier fall into a pool of flaming gasoline. Without hesitation or thought of the danger to herself she rushed into the flames and dragged the soldier from them. She then smothered some of his burning clothing with her body and had beaten out much of the rest with her bare hands when additional assistance arrived."

She was acting supply sergeant of her company on September 11 when Pvt. Kenney J. Jacobs of York, Pa., who was pouring gasoline into the stove in the WAC kitchen, dropped the large can. The burning gasoline splashed over his clothing and set him afire.

Private Maloney suffered slight burns on her face and second-degree burns on her legs in beating out the flames. Private Jacobs suffered much more severe burns.

"Peewee" was the big—or little—attraction at a ceremony during which Maj. Gen. E. S. Hughes, deputy commander of this theater, pinned the medal on her blouse. There was the Army band, a color guard and three platoons of WACS, but the most exciting thing was when General Hughes, who is about 6 feet 3, leaned over and kissed Private Maloney on the left cheek.

Chevy Chase To Frame Plan On Delinquency

A plan to meet the problems of juvenile delinquency, drawn up following a request from a committee of the Board of Education that "each community study its particular problems," will be presented to a Chevy Chase community night at Woodrow Wilson High School December 13, Dr. Bertie A. Backus, principal of Alice Deal Junior High School, told the Chevy Chase Citizens Association last night.

Dr. Backus said the school principals of the community are working on the project, and that they will extend an invitation to every citizens' group in Chevy Chase to meet that night and map their plans.

Policeman C. C. Brown of No. 8 Precinct, called the attention of the audience to the increasing delinquency among girls, which also was cited by Frank T. Sabotka, manager of the Avalon Theater, who enumerated instances of vandalism.

President Archibald M. McLachlen announced a nominating committee which will present a slate for election at the January meeting. The committee, headed by Frank H. Myers, includes Lee L. Townshend, C. B. Hurd, F. McKey Smith and Clyde D. Garrett.

Tax Inquiry Voted

Investigation of the Recreation Board practice whereby custodians of public school buildings have been receiving a flat withholding tax deduction of $4 from their overtime pay, regardless of the amount, was demanded last night by the Friendship Citizens Association.

At a meeting in the Janney School, the group moved for adjustment of the situation, and will refer the resolution to the tax collector of the District, the superintendent of schools, the Northwest Council of Citizens Associations and the Federation of Citizens' Associations.

The association, which is undertaking a membership campaign, voted to urge the federation to sponsor a similar general campaign.

Improved bus service on the N-2 route was sought in another resolution, to be referred to the PUC.

Lieut. Rupert Lanier, Navy pharmacist, who recently returned from duty in the South Pacific, told the group how medical supplies had aided servicemen.

10,000 Jobs Open In D. C.; Supply Of Labor Ample

More than 10,000 jobs are open in the Washington metropolitan area and they must be filled within 30 days, the local office of the U. S. Employment Service announced last night.

Of this number 7000 are new openings which is in addition to the normal monthly demand for 3800 workers.

The jobs range from day laborer to those requiring the highest technical skill, Director Charles Farmer of the local office announced, and more than one-fourth will be permanent.

The unusually large number of job openings is caused by seasonal demand, Farmer explained. "And," said he. "I wish to stress the fact we have an ample supply of labor right here to fill the order."

YMCA Gets 159 New Members in Day

The annual membership drive of the Washington YMCA netted 159 new members on the first day, it was announced yesterday by W. C. Hansom, chairman of the drive.

The Navy division led, with 87 new members to its credit. The Marine division was second with 48, and the Army division third with 24.

OFFICIAL NOTICES 5

COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia, November 17, 1943. Notice is hereby given that in accordance with the provisions of an item authorizing changes in the permanent system of highways contained in D. C. Appropriation Act for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1914 (Public Act No. 435, 62nd Congress), approved March 4, 1913, as amended by an Act approved April 30, 1926 (Public Act No. 38, 69th Congress), the Commissioners of the District of Columbia will give a public hearing in the Board Room in the District Building, 14th and E Streets, Northwest, Washington, D. C., on MONDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1943, at 10 o'clock A. M., to interested property owners in the matter of a proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways affecting property in the Southeast Section of the District of Columbia located within the area bounded on the north by Alabama Avenue and Jasper Street, on the southeast by the District of Columbia-Maryland Boundary Line, and on the west by Camp Simms, revising the proposed street system by eliminating proposed streets and providing new proposed streets within the above described territory. A plat showing the proposed changes, numbered as Surveyor's Office Map 2029, is on file in the office of the Surveyor, D. C., Room 405 District Building, 14th and E Streets, N.W., Washington, D. C., and may be examined by interested parties during business hours prior to the hearing. Said map will also be displayed at the hearing and the Commissioners will consider any suggestions or protests concerning the proposed changes as shown on above-mentioned map. JOHN RUSSELL YOUNG, C. W. KUTZ, GUY MASON, Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

DONALD DUCK — By Walt Disney

NOPE, WE HAVEN'T FINISHED.
SO! NO STICK-TO-IT-IVENESS! LET ME GIVE YOU SOME ADVICE!
WE GOT TIRED!
—SO ALWAYS REMEMBER, WHEN YOU'VE STARTED SOMETHING, NEVER GIVE UP! NO MATTER WHAT HAPPENS! SUCCESS IS SIMPLY STICK-TO-IT-IVENESS!
GEE, WE'LL REMEMBER THAT!
WE'VE FINISHED IT!
MAY WE GO TO THE MATINEE?
SOME OTHER TIME, BOYS, NOT TODAY!
IT'S A GOOD SHOW
WELL, WHY CAN'T WE GO?
GIVE US ONE REASON!
WE GOT OUR OWN MONEY!

RIGHT AROUND HOME — By Dudley Fisher

MYRTLE! MISS STACCATO IS HERE FOR YOUR MUSIC LESSON!
I BROUGHT YOU SOMETHING NEW, THE MOONLIGHT SONATA!
WOW! THAT WOULD BE SWELL EVEN WITHOUT THE MOONLIGHT!
IT GOES LIKE THIS!
I THOUGHT SHE SAID SINATRA!

JOE PALOOKA — The Spendthrift — By Ham Fisher

LOOK AT THEM POIFUMES—WISH I HAD SOMEBUDDY T'BUY 'EM FER.
THEY'D COST A FORTUNE BACK IN THE STATES.
ALI HALBIE
PARFUME
WHATCHA GONNA DO?
I'LL TAKE A BOTTLE OF THAT AN' ONE OF THOSE..
HEY—THAT'LL BE A WHOLE MONTH'S PAY, WHO YA BUYIN' 'EM FER?
I'M GONNA TAKE 'EM BACK WITH ME FER—UH—SOMEBUDDY.
THINK YER KIDDIN' ME?

JANE ARDEN — What Did It Get Me? — By Monte Barrett and Russell Ross

SO YOUR HEART HASN'T TURNED TO STONE AFTER ALL—COME IN—
IT HAS, TOO—I JUST CAME HERE OUT OF—OUT OF CURIOSITY
SO YOU THINK I NEED HELP MORE THAN THIS FAMILY, DO YOU? BAH!
YOU DO, IF YOU'RE GOING TO LET ONE UNFORTUNATE EXPERIENCE HARDEN YOUR HEART AGAINST THE WHOLE WORLD—
I TRIED HELPING PEOPLE—AND WHAT DID IT GET ME?
WELL THEN YOU WERE HAPPY AND YOUR HEART WAS YOUNG—NOW YOU'RE A BITTER OLD MAN!

SUPERMAN — Hear Superman 5:45 P.M. Today—WOL — By Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster

IMPERSONATE ME, WILL YOU! SPY AGAINST THE UNITED STATES, WILL YOU!
TSK, TSK!
I—I DIDN'T MEAN IT!
GET ME INTO TROUBLE WITH SUPERMAN, WILL YOU! WHEN I GET THROUGH WITH YOU, YOU'LL BE GLAD TO BE HANDED OVER TO THE AUTHORITIES!
YES—YES! HAND ME OVER NOW!
EXIT SUPERMAN!
THERE'S SOMETHING PRETTY FUNDAMENTAL ABOUT A WOMAN LIKE LOIS WHEN SHE REALLY GETS ANGRY. IT—IT SORT OF FRIGHTENS ME. SO—
--WITH MISS DRESSER APPARENTLY WELL TAKEN CARE OF, AND HER FELLOW SPIES, MR. AND MRS. EVAN DOUT, ALREADY IN CUSTODY, I GUESS IT'S TIME TO DRAW THE CURTAIN ON THIS STRANGE ADVENTURE THAT GREW FROM THE SIMPLE QUESTION: "WHERE IS LOIS LANE?"
AND NOW—GET READY FOR SUSIE!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — By Clifford McBride

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — In the Lurch in the Air — By Milton Caniff

NEED ANY HELP CHAUFFEURING THIS THING, CAPTAIN MACK?
SIT IN, GRETT! MACK THINKS YOU'RE PRETTIER THAN I AM, ANYHOW!
HOW DOES THE BIRMINGHAM KID LIKE RUNNING OVER THE HUMP WITH AN ESCORT?
WHY, FLIGHT OFFICER LEE AND FLIGHT LIEUTENANT BONNY ARE JUST EXCESS WITH YOU ALONG, LIGHT OF MY LIFE!
—BUT I HEAH YOU'VE BEEN HIGH-EYEIN' THIS UPSTART, TERRY LEE... I'M A MEAN THING WHEN MY JEALOUSY'S AROUSED!
WHY, MACK, I NEVER KNEW YOU CARED—AREN'T YOU GOING TO TAKE ME IN YOUR ARMS?
DAWGONNIT, YOU SAY A THING LIKE THAT WHEN I'M PUSHIN' THIS TRUCK UP-GRADE WITH BOTH HANDS FULL—BUT WHEN WE LAND, YOU'LL RUN!... GO AWAY, WOMAN, YOU'RE A MENACE TO NAVIGATION!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — By Dale Allen

I GATHER THAT YOU MADE YOUR PEACE WITH BILL, BIFF, GYPSY?
SURE! I GAVE HIM THE "YOU BIG HUNK O' MAN" ROUTINE! HE FELL LIKE A THIRD-ACT CURTAIN!
BUT—LOOK, MRS. WORTH! I DON'T MEAN TO CHISEL ON YOU HERE! I CAN PAY MY WAY!
YOU'RE WELCOME TO STAY!—EVEN IF!
NO, NO! I GOT WORRIES, BUT BEIN' BROKE'S NOT ONE OF 'EM! HERE! THIS IS FOR MY COFFEE AN' CAKES! TELL ME WHEN IT'S GONE!

MICKEY FINN — Food for Thought — By Lank Leonard

OWNEY! WHAT IN THE WORLD HAS BROUGHT YOU HERE?
WHY, PAW! WELL, WELL—THIS IS CERTAINLY A SURPRISE!
WHAT'S HAPPENED? HAVE YOU AND FANNY SPLIT UP?
OH, NO! I JUST—
LISTEN! IF THIS IS A FAMILY RE-UNION, IT'LL HAVE TO WAIT UNTIL LUNCH TIME! GET BACK TO YOUR MACHINE, PHIL!
IS HE THE BROTHER THAT YOU ONCE TOLD ME WAS SUCH A SMART GAMBLER?
THE SAME ONE, DEVANNY! GOOD OLD OWNEY!
THEN YOU'D BETTER NOT LET HIM KNOW THAT YOU'RE CLEANIN' UP ON THE HORSES! HE MIGHT START TAKIN' BETS FROM THE BOYS, HIMSELF!
BY GOLLY—I NEVER THOUGHT OF THAT!

MR. AND MRS. — Concerning a Pain in the Neck — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoover

GOSH, I GOT A TERRIBLE KINK IN MY NECK. GEE!
HERE! TAKE THIS OINTMENT AND RUB IT HARD
HURTS LIKE BLAZES! IF YOU HADN'T SAT BY THE WINDOW LAST NIGHT READING, YOUR NECK WOULD BE ALL RIGHT
I—I—ONLY SAT BY THE WINDOW FIVE MINUTES AND IT WAS OPEN AND I WARNED YOU. I SAW THE SHADE BLOWING
IT WASN'T OPEN
LOOK! THAT WINDOW WASN'T OPEN MORE THAN HALF AN INCH!
NEVER MIND. A WINDOW OPEN A QUARTER OF AN INCH WILL GIVE ME A KINK IN THE NECK!

DIXIE DUGAN — Best Friend! — By J. P. McEvoy and H. J. Striebel

HEY! STEVE—WHO'S THAT?
MICKEY?—DIXIE'S BEST FRIEND
OH—BOY—EVERY MAN FOR HIMSELF!
SO YOU'RE MICKEY! —I HEARD ALL ABOUT YOU—BUT NOT ENOUGH—S'POSING WE WALK AND TALK IT OVER—
WHY—UH—NOT TODAY, SOLDIER—I—I JUST TOLD ART HERE I'D GO WALKING WITH HIM—AFTER MY WORK
DIXIE'S BEST FRIEND? —HUH!!

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Greda Obeys Voice — By Frank Martinek

HURRY, SCIPO, GIVE ME YOUR GUN! GOWITRO WANTS YOU!
COME, SCIPO, GIVE IT TO ME!
NO.. NO.. YOU CAN'T HAVE IT! I'LL NOT GIVE IT UP TO ANY ONE!
WHY YOU...! GIVE ME THAT GUN!!
NO... I'LL KILL YOU FIRST!
YOU DIRTY.... YOU'VE KILLED ME!!
BANG!

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — By Saunders and Woggon

YOU STILL WAKE, STEVE?
LIKE AN OWL, CHIEF! TRYIN' TO FIGURE OUT WHY YVETTE BEAUMONT WOULDN'T ADMIT SHE KNEW ME!
AND THAT'S ONLY CHAPTER ONE! WHAT'S A FRENCH GAL DOIN' IN NATAL? WHY DID SHE TRY TO KILL THE BOZO SHE WAS DANCING WITH?—HE SPOKE FRENCH, TOO!
THE ANSWERS MAY BE IN THE BACK OF THE BOOK—BUT I SUPPOSE WE'LL NEVER SEE 'EM!
HEY, YOU TWO JOES! STOP BATTIN' TH' BREEZE AN' LET A GUY DO A LITTLE BUNK-FLYIN', WON'T YA?
YOU'RE RIGHT, PAL! A LITTLE SNOOZE WOULDN'T HURT US, BEFORE WE START HOPPIN' OCEANS!

WINNIE WINKLE — It May Be His Bridgework — By Branner

AHH—MAYBE THE POOR MAN WAS COLD AND HUNGRY!
WHAT DOES HE LOOK LIKE, FATHER?
I DIDN'T SEE HIM—BUT I HEARD HIS VOICE—AN' I KNOW HE'S A LOW-DOWN SNAKE——'CAUSE HE HISSES WHEN HE TALKS!!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

HEY, SNAP OUT OF IT, SIRE! I'M NO GHOST!
NO! NO, SPIRIT! DON'T KILL ME! GO AWAY!
JEEPERS, KING! OLD SIRE'S GONE NUTTY!
HE'S BEEN SCARED OUT OF HIS WITS, KID, BY SOME APPARITION HE'S SEEN!
—AND HIS 'GHOST' WASN'T AN ILLUSION! LOOK AT SIRE'S POCKETS—HE'S BEEN ROBBED!

Christmas without a robe is like Hallowe'en without a costume, Thanksgiving without a turkey and the Redskins without Sammy Baugh. That's why a robe is the ideal gift for Christmas .... and a warm robe, at that, now that we're all conserving coal and oil to further the war effort. A robe is something that every man wants, yet actually, he seldom buys for himself. The reason, quite obviously, is that he would like to see one under the tree come Christmas morn. Don't disappoint him this year. Play up to his sentimental side this Christmas. And to his practical side, as well. Give Husband, Dad or Uncle Charlie a robe that's warm, that's comfortable, that's mighty good-looking for his hours of relaxation. And you'll find a grand selection at The Hecht Co. Modern Man's Store . . . Your Office of Wardrobe Information.

P. S. If you don't know his size, just glance around at our salesmen, and if one seems to be the same build, he'll be glad to try it on for size.
